British Rush Troops Into Beihan Area

Action Is Taken Following Plane Raids By Yemeni

BEIHAN, West Aden (UPI) — Royal Air Force planes and British trained troops of the Southern Arabian Federation army patrolled this barren border area Saturday following bombing raids by planes allegedly flying from the newly-proclaimed Yemeni Republic.

The troops were rushed here from their base at Ataq, 150 miles away, in the wake of the recent bomb and rocket attacks against the Emirate of Beihan.

NEAR BORDER

Their concentration at this "Beau Geste"-like outpost [illegible] miles from the ill-defined desert border with tinderbox Yemen has produced Yemeni charges that an invasion was being planned.

These charges were dismissed as "nonsense" by the commander of the federation's army, British Brig. James Lunt, a veteran of John Glubb Pasha's famed Jordanian Arab Legion.

"We are here to prevent trouble, not to cause it," Lunt said, saying that "defense positions" had been constructed merely as a precaution.

"At present there are no indications that further Yemeni actions against the federation are likely, but in an area where the border is not too well demarcated, and where every man carries a rifle automatically, trouble is always possible," he said.

Day after day, land rover and armored car reconnaissance patrols swing out to comb through the desolate area by land while RAF Hawker Hunter jet fighters scream overhead on continuous border patrols.

The Southern Arabian Federation consists of sheikdoms and emirates. All members of the federation, formed 11 months ago, have treaty relations with Britain which guarantees their defense. But they are not British colonies.

Former Broker Charged With Theft Of Stock

NEW YORK (AP) — A [illegible]-year-old former Wall Street broker was arrested Saturday and charged with the theft of more than $1 million worth of stock which he contended was taken from a brokerage firm as a prank.

Ralph H. Rapp also was questioned about the disappearance of 13 oil paintings valued at $25,000 from the walls of the Fifth Avenue brokerage office of Robert A. Martin Associates.

Martin reported the thefts Friday. Police traced Rapp to the Manhattan residence of a woman friend where they said he was found in possession of the certificates for shares of American Dimensions Corp. stock, valued at $1,075,000.

Rapp's attorney, Eugene Jones, told Criminal Courts Judge Manuel A. Gomez that his client had been a partner in the Martin firm until a few weeks ago.

"This was only a prank," Jones said. "These men used to be partners and friends."

Judge Gomez set $2,000 bail for a hearing Nov. 16 on grand larceny charges in connection with the stock theft. Rapp also was charged with illegal possession of a rifle and shotgun, which police said he had when arrested.

Police said Rapp was seen in the brokerage firm building early Friday morning.

ROBBERY SUSPECTS

FBI Fugitive, Girl Captured

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Bobby Randell (One Eye) Wilcoxson, sought on both sides of the Atlantic for a series of bank robberies, was arrested with his girl friend Saturday by the FBI in Baltimore.

The FBI said Wilcoxson, one of their 10 most wanted fugitives, was arrested with Jacqueline Ruth Rose, 19, as the pair stepped out of a house they had rented only last week. Miss Rose also faces bank robbery charges. The FBI believes she drove the getaway car in at least one of the robberies.

ADMIT IDENTITIES

A third member of the wanted trio, Albert Frederick Nussbaum Jr., 23, was captured last Sunday in Buffalo, N.Y., after a 20-minute, high-speed auto chase through the downtown area.

At a hearing before U.S. Commissioner H. Allen Mezger, held a few hours later merely to establish their identity and fix bail, Wilcoxson and Miss Rose admitted their identity.

Mezger ordered them held in bail of $100,000 each on a bench warrant from Buffalo. Both were taken to the Baltimore city jail.

"Nothing to say now," Wilcoxson replied to a question from Mezger, but did say he had been told he would be allowed to telephone a lawyer after the hearing.

Wilcoxson wore a blue pullover sweater, olive green slacks and a white shirt open at the collar. Miss Rose was wearing corduroy slacks, a sweater with broad blue and white stripes, flat shoes and a kerchief on her head.

Wilcoxson, 33, and Nussbaum also are prime suspects in the record $1.5 million haul from a postal truck in Plymouth, Mass., last August.

Indians Repulse Chinese Attacks

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Pro-Peiping Communists are increasing their sabotage and subversive efforts in the threatened northeastern area of India while Peiping keeps up steady military pressure on the gateway to the rich Assam plains, it was reported here.

No major fighting was reported anywhere along the 1,500-mile border but an Indian Defense Ministry spokesman said Indian troops repulsed two Chinese Communist attacks near Walong, at the extreme eastern end of the line near Burma. He said the Indians suffered no casualties.

The spokesman reported enemy shelling near Walong and in the Towang area at the intersection of the borders of India, Bhutan and Tibet—scene of a major assault Oct. 20. Indian and Chinese troops now hold positions around [illegible] village, five miles to the east.

UNCHANGED

The spokesman said the situation was unchanged in the Ladakh area where Friday he said the Chinese were moving tanks toward the vital supply air base of Chusul. Chusul is one of India's most important defensive points in the Ladakh area of Kashmir.

Praja Socialist member of Parliament Hem Barua told Parliament Saturday that Indian Communists were collecting money from the unsophisticated hill people and villagers in the northeastern areas and issuing them receipts for use when the Chinese Communists come.

He said this activity was under way in the hill stations of Darjeeling near the former entry route to Tibet and in Assam state just south of the embattled Northeast Frontier Agency (NEFA). He said some of the unknowing villagers had swallowed the bait.

Cap Barham Hints Race Is Possible

Former Lieutenant Governor Says Candidacy Urged

RUSTON (Special) — C. E. (Cap) Barham, member of a Ruston law firm and former lieutenant governor, said Saturday he is being urged to announce his candidacy for governor.

In making the statement, Barham took issue with two possible gubernatorial candidates — deLesseps Morrison and ex-Governor Robert Kennon.

He pointed out that "Ambassador Morrison recently stated in the press that the people should support his, Morrison's, candidacy for the office of governor because he was a close friend of the Kennedys and he could, as a result, obtain a favorable settlement of the tidelands issue.

"CHILDISH"

"How childish and naive can Ambassador Morrison get? John F. Kennedy has been president of the United States for two years now, and Ambassador Morrison has been a confidant and appointee of the president.

"If Ambassador Morrison cannot now get Louisiana a settlement for the $100,000,000 held in escrow by the federal courts, of what value can he possibly be to the citizens as governor of the state when it comes to getting their rightful funds? Furthermore, Ambassador Morrison must know that the people of Louisiana will never submit to intimidation, veiled threats and political blackmail, his close friendship with the Kennedys notwithstanding."

Barham also stated that the people in Louisiana did not intend to elect an ex-governor to that office again. He stated further that most of the financial troubles that the state now has can be laid to ex-governor Kennon because he used money obtained through the mineral board for oil leases in the operating budget when he knew that this revenue would not be recurring each year. He further stated that Kennon is now operating the Wildlife and Fisheries Department through his appointee, L. D. Young, is operating the Highway Department through his close friends, Ted Dunham and Ray Burgess, and is operating the Welfare Department through his close friend, James Bolton."

Barham listed the following main points which, he stated, would be in his platform if he became a candidate:

"Code of Ethics: The people of Louisiana are entitled to have their public officials abide by and be bound by a code of ethics. Any candidate who opposes abiding by a code of ethics should not be elected to public office.

"Idle Funds: All idle state funds

BABY 'MERCY DEATH' CASE

Five Freed In Slaying

LIEGE, Belgium (AP) — A 12-man jury, all parents but one, acquitted a young mother, three relatives and their family doctor Saturday in the mercy killing of an armless, 8-day-old thalidomide baby.

The courtroom, packed to the walls throughout the five-day trial, rang with cheers. Some women wept. One woman was injured in the crush of a crowd outside. A Brussels newspaper was on the streets with an extra in minutes after the verdict.

A battery of defense attorneys in two days of summation countered prosecution demands for a verdict of guilty by appealing to the jury to consider the killing of 8-day-old Corinne Vandeput to be society's crime.

On this final, tense day, defense attorney Edgar-Emile Jeunehomme made one more appeal to the jury: "You know, as we do, that this trial should also have considered the responsibility of society, science, some doctors and all the merchants of infirmities who should be on the bench of the accused. My clients are victims of thalidomide."

Thalidomide is a tranquilizing drug which has been found to cause deformities in the offspring when given to pregnant women.

Suzanne Vandeput took it during her pregnancy. Her child was born May 22 and died on May 29.

The young mother admitted she put a barbiturate into the baby's formula. She was charged with homicide. Her husband, Jean, 35; her sister, Monique de la March, 25; the child's grandmother, Fernande Yerna, 50, and Dr. Jacques Casters, 33, where charged with complicity.

Dr. Casters was accused of supplying the fatal drug to the family.

They were not in court when the verdict was reported by the jury president, but were brought in later to be informed by the court president, Paul-Emile Trousse. "You are acquitted. You are to be freed immediately."

"I always believed in the acquittal," said Mrs. Vandeput.

"I hoped all the time but I was not that confident," Dr. Casters said. "I am of a pessimistic nature."

The jury deliberated one hour and 40 minutes to reach its verdict. The jury's complete acquittal meant the prosecution, which had suggested a verdict of guilty with leniency, could not appeal.

But a high Belgian court official in Brussels disagreed with the verdict.

"For me, having killed a child is a crime and there is no excuse for that," he said. "What is to be feared is that other persons will allow themselves, on the basis of this verdict, to act in the same way."

Soviets Yield On Missiles Inspection After Holdout

GUANTANAMO BAY, Cuba (AP) — The U.S. guided missile warship Dahlgren dogged a Soviet freighter through the Windward Passage on Saturday to make sure the vessel's cargo of missiles would not be returned to Cuba.

Lashed to the deck of the Soviet ship, the 12,016-ton Leninsky Komsomol, were eight canvas-shrouded long objects, presumably the missiles the Soviet skipper exposed to U.S. surveillance Friday after a six-hour holdout against inspection.

With the Dahlgren only 900 feet astern, the Leninsky Komsomol cut through the waters between Haiti and Cuba at a swift 18 knots. She was riding so high in the water she appeared to be traveling in ballast—evidence that the Russians were hurrying to remove the 1,200-mile and 2,000-mile range missiles from Cuba.

ESCORTS SHIP

An hour later the Norfolk asked that all missiles be uncovered, and repeated the request shortly after noon. The Soviet skipper refused, and the Norfolk continued to shadow the Soviet vessel.

At about 4 p.m., some six hours after the Norfolk made its first request, the Soviet crew uncovered all the missiles. Soviet crewmen busily photographed the Americans while the Norfolk completed its survey and messaged thanks.

Thant Predicts Red Cross Pact On Inspections

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — U.N. Acting Secretary General U Thant reported conditional agreement Saturday on arrangements for the International Committee of the Red Cross to look for missiles on Cuba-bound Soviet ships.

He told inquiring correspondents that the Red Cross committee, Cuba, the Soviet Union and the United States "have all agreed with certain conditions."

He declined to give details. But he said he expected final, conclusive agreement early next week, probably by Tuesday.

The Red Cross inspection is intended to replace the naval arms quarantine the United States threw around Cuba on Oct. 21 to keep out Soviet missiles, bombing planes and accessories.

Thant answered the correspondents' questions after a final conference with Red Cross representatives who came here from the committee's Geneva headquarters Tuesday to negotiate on the matter.

The representatives were Paul Ruegger, ex-president of the all-Swiss committee, and Melchior Borsinger, secretary of its executive board.

They planned to fly back to Geneva and report on their talks with Thant. They have described these talks privately as exploratory.

TRAPPED IN FLAMES

Plane Hits Homes; Child, Pilot Killed

EAST MEADOW, N.Y. (AP) — A small private plane torn out of control by an explosion, plunged through an overcast into a row of homes Saturday, killing the pilot and a child on the ground.

The child was trapped in the home which went up in flames along with two others seconds after the plane crashed. The infant's parents and another child were injured.

Witnesses said a loud explosion preceded the crash, strewing large pieces of wreckage along a five-block path leading to the scene in this suburban Long Island community.

"It was a big, white plane and the wings were in many pieces and the wings were falling apart (sic) when I saw it," said an excited Andrew Germain, 14, a resident of a nearby home. He said he was playing football in the area when the plane crashed.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Norman Germain, said, "It was probably the most horrible mess I've ever seen."

She said Mrs. Shapiro started screaming, "There's a baby in the house. She was in a state of shock."

Mrs. Germain said a passerby broke a window in the Shapiro house and, using a ladder, attempted to enter the burning building but was driven back by the flames.

Police said the aircraft was believed piloted by David Feder, 34, of Jersey City, N.J.

The second weekend storm in a row flogged the eastern states Saturday with gale-force winds that boosted ocean tides and destroyed property.

The storm was accompanied by flooding rains that caused a rash of traffic accidents and washed out sports events.

BOATS AGROUND

Powerful east to northeast winds pushed Lake Erie from its normal shoreline at Dunkirk, N.Y., and the four-foot drop in water level exposed a big mud flat.

Two boats went aground in the harbor, a tug and commercial fishing boat. A veteran fisherman said it was the first time in memory the harbor water dropped so low.

Storm-related traffic accidents Friday and Saturday caused at least six deaths in North Carolina, three in Pennsylvania and one in New Jersey.

A mother and daughter drowned at Charlotte, N.C., when their car plunged into a rain-swollen stream. Rescue workers were unable to locate the car for two hours.

The storm area extended from Eastern Tennessee through New England, covering most of the eastern third of the nation. It whirled around an almost stationary center positioned on the Ohio-West Virginia border Saturday morning, then drifted northeast.

The storm weakened in its northward movement and sunshine returned to New England Saturday afternoon.

Girl Who Fell Half Mile In Sky Dive Weds

EAST BREWSTER, Mass. (AP) — A plucky 20-year-old telephone operator who plunged half a mile through space when her parachute failed to open was married Saturday.

Nearly three months after celebrating her engagement by taking a sky dive, Miss Lois Ann Frotten and John E. Burke, 31, exchanged vows in Immaculate Conception church.

They gave each other an engagement present of sorts last July 18 by agreeing to take their first parachute jump together. Burke landed safely in a Marstons Mills target area.

Lois then bailed out at 2,500 feet but the sleeve chute, which normally opens the main chute, tangled around her ankle and she tumbled over and over into Mystic Lake.

She hit the water feet first, plunged 20 feet to the bottom of the lake and hit soft mud, escaping with only two small vertebrae fractures and a cut nose.

My clients are victims of thalidomide."

Thalidomide is a tranquilizing drug which has been found to cause deformities in the offspring when given to pregnant women.

Suzanne Vandeput took it during her pregnancy. Her child was born May 22 and died on May 29.

The young mother admitted she put a barbiturate into the baby's formula. She was charged with homicide. Her husband, Jean, 35; her sister, Monique de la March, 26; the child's grandmother, Fernande Yerna, 50, and Dr. Jacques Casters, 33, where charged with complicity.

Dr. Casters was accused of supplying the fatal drug to the family.

They were not in court when the verdict was reported by the jury president, but were brought in later to be informed by the court president, Paul - Emile Trousse, "You are acquitted. You are to be freed immediately."

"I always believed in the acquittal," said Mrs. Vandeput.

"I hoped all the time but I was not that confident," Dr. Casters said. "I am of a pessimistic nature."

The jury deliberated one hour and 40 minutes to reach its verdict. The jury's complete acquittal meant the prosecution, which had suggested a verdict of guilty with leniency, could not appeal.

But a high Belgian court official in Brussels disagreed with the verdict.

"For me, having killed a child is a crime and there is no excuse for that," he said. "What is to be feared is that other persons will allow themselves, on the basis of this verdict, to act in the same way."

Soviets Yield On Missiles Inspection After Holdout

GUANTANAMO BAY, Cuba (AP) — The U.S. guided missile warship Dahlgren dogged a Soviet freighter through the Windward Passage on Saturday to make sure the vessel's cargo of missiles would not be returned to Cuba.

Lashed to the deck of the Soviet ship, the 12,016 - ton Leninsky Komsomol, were eight canvas-shrouded long objects, presumably the missiles the Soviet skipper exposed to U.S. surveillance Friday after a six-hour holdout against inspection.

With the Dahlgren only 900 feet astern, the Leninsky Komsomol cut through the waters between Haiti and Cuba at a swift 18 knots. She was riding so high in the water she appeared to be traveling in ballast—evidence that the Russians were hurrying to remove the 1,200-mile and 2,000-mile-range missiles from Cuba.

ESCORTS SHIP

An hour later the Norfolk asked that all missiles be uncovered, and repeated the request shortly after noon. The Soviet skipper refused, and the Norfolk continued to shadow the Soviet vessel.

At about 4 p.m., some six hours after the Norfolk made its first request, the Soviet crew uncovered all the missiles. Soviet crewmen busily photographed the Americans while the Norfolk completed its survey and messaged thanks.

Thant Predicts Red Cross Pact On Inspections

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — U.N. Acting Secretary-General U Thant reported conditional agreement Saturday on arrangements for the International Committee of the Red Cross to look for missiles on Cuba-bound Soviet ships.

He told inquiring correspondents that the Red Cross committee, Cuba, the Soviet Union and the United States "have all agreed, with certain conditions."

He declined to give details. But he said he expected final, conclusive agreement early next week, probably by Tuesday.

The Red Cross inspection is intended to replace the naval arms quarantine the United States threw around Cuba on Oct. 24 to keep out Soviet missiles, bombing planes and accessories.

Thant answered the correspondents' questions after a final conference with Red Cross representatives who came here from the committee's Geneva headquarters Tuesday to negotiate on the matter.

The representatives were Paul Ruegger, ex-president of the all-Swiss committee, and Melchior Borsinger, secretary of its executive board.

They planned to fly back to Geneva and report on their talks with Thant. They have described these talks privately as exploratory.

TRAPPED IN FLAMES

Plane Hits Homes; Child, Pilot Killed

EAST MEADOW, N.Y. (AP)— A small private plane torn out of control by an explosion, plunged through an overcast into a row of homes Saturday, killing the pilot and a child on the ground

The child was trapped in the home which went up in flames along with two others seconds after the plane crashed. The infant's parents and another child were injured.

Witnesses said a loud explosion preceded the crash, strewing large pieces of wreckage along a five-block path leading to the scene in this suburban Long Island community.

"It was a big, white plane and the wings were in many pieces and the wings were falling apart (sic) when I saw it," said an excited Andrew Germain, 14, a resident of a nearby home. He said he was playing football in the area when the plane crashed.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Norman Germain, said, "It was probably the most horrible mess I've ever seen."

She said Mrs. Shapiro started screaming, "There's a baby in the house. She was in a state of shock."

Mrs. Germain said a passerby broke a window in the Shapiro house and, using a ladder, attempted to enter the burning building but was driven back by the flames.

Police said the aircraft was believed piloted by David Feder, 34, of Jersey City, N.J.

Girl Who Fell Half Mile In Sky Dive Weds

EAST BREWSTER, Mass. (AP) — A plucky 20 - year - old telephone operator who plunged half a mile through space when her parachute failed to open was married Saturday.

Nearly three months after celebrating her engagement by taking a sky dive, Miss Lois Ann Frotten and John E. Burke, 31, exchanged vows in Immaculate Conception church.

They gave each other an engagement present of sorts last July 18 by agreeing to take their first parachute jump together. Burke landed safely in a Marstons Mills target area.

Lois then bailed out at 2,500 feet but the sleeve chute, which normally opens the main chute, tangled around her ankle and she tumbled over and over into Mystic Lake.

She hit the water feet first, plunged 20 feet to the bottom of the lake and hit soft mud, escaping with only two small vertebrae fractures and a cut nose.

Industrial Development Effort Pays Dividends

By BERT HATTEN
Managing Editor, News-Star

In the past three years the complexion of Greenville, Mississippi has been changed from that of a sleepy Mississippi river town into a bustling center of manufacturing industry.

This could be called some sort of miracle but that would not describe the cause of this economic leap forward in Greenville. What did it?

A group from the West Monroe Chamber of Commerce visited in Greenville Friday. They saw first hand what caused this "miracle along the Mississippi."

It was a driving Greenville Chamber of Commerce leadership solidly supported by an intelligent, progressive, sincere and hard working membership. These were Greenville's biggest assets in the city's quest for new industry.

INDUSTRIAL PARK

Greenville was moved into action in 1958 when there was reason to fear the possible loss of Greenville Air Force Base, which at that time was a vital factor in the city's economy. Realizing that the loss of the base would cripple the city, the community, led by the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, formed an industrial foundation with a designated purpose of attracting new industries.

The foundation, organized under the chamber of commerce, went to work. Options were secured on a track of land adjacent to the city limits. The land was chosen based on its proximity and general desirability as an industrial site.

Now in production on Greenville Industrial Park are plants of Atkins Saw Company, a division of Borg-Warner Corporation, Carrick products company, Moeller Manufacturing Company, Morrow Screw Company. These are industries that employ hundreds of skilled workers.

ANOTHER PLANT

On the western end Greenville Industrial Park construction is now underway for another new plant. Bulldozers are clearing out trees and levelling the area to which the country is busily building a road which includes a bridge across a ravine.

Greenville has scored big. And those responsible are not resting on their laurels. They are still searching for industrial prospects. They will find them, too. And some of them will come to Greenville.

Another thing that is expected to help Greenville's development is the recent establishment of a port of entry which opens the port to commerce without having to go through New Orleans customs. Shipping tonnage through the river port leads all others in the state, including those on the gulf coast.

Observers expect the recent port development to push Greenville into a commanding position in water borne commerce.

The influence of the rivers role in transportation helps to overcome some of the city's transportation deficiencies. For instance, there is no east-west rail service, no east-west commercial air carrier and limited north-south rail coach service.

But Greenville has long realized that it must sell itself by stressing the good points while never trying to conceal any facts. Industrialists know when they are being mislead.

SIMPLE FORMULA

In 1958 an industrial foundation was organized. It's purpose was to handle the coordination of efforts to procure and finance the option on the industrial park site. Members of the industrial foundation were drawn from members of the Chamber of Commerce with broad vision. They foresaw that success could be achieved.

Each member of the foundation paid an equal amount into the foundation's operating fund. Chamber Manager C. E. Landrum explained that 50 members of the Chamber were enrolled in the foundation originally. "Only one member has withdrawn and that was due to the fact that he moved from the city," Landrum said.

"The foundation has been extremely popular and well supported," he declared. He agreed that this support had continued due to the success in procuring new industry.

GOOD HOSTS

Landrum and four members of the Greenville Industrial Foundation entertained the West Monroe visitors with a morning session at the Chamber of Commerce conference room where they explained their operation. They served lunch at a local hotel and in the afternoon conducted a tour of the industrial parks. They were great hosts, modest, sincere and they seemed proud that their success had attracted a touring delegation from over 100 miles.

In addition to Landrum, the Greenville hosts included: Anse Dees, a Greenville Insurance man; John Gibson, general manager of the local newspaper; W. T. (Buster) Brown, local Ford dealer and Jim McRee, a banker.

THE VISITORS

Included in the West Monroe delegation were West Monroe Chamber President Eugene Scott; Chamber Manager Eugene Smith; Tex R. Kilpatrick, Leslie Hamm and Bert Hatten, members of the chamber board.

Scott named the delegation two weeks ago and assigned a visit to Greenville to study the industrial development picture there. Scott explained that it was his hope to conduct a thorough study of industrial development with the idea of putting together an effective organization that can "go out and sell Ouachita parish to new industry.'

"I am more convinced after our visit to Greenville that such a selling job can be done without great expense," Scott said.

THE PLAN

It was obvious to those who made the trip to Greenville that the industrial development job there had been achieved through a well coordinated utilization of the industrial development facilities of various public utilities, the local industrial foundation, state laws specifically designed to allow local government to induce new industry and a genuine desire in the community to expand its economy.

Dees, the Greenville insurance man, pointed out that the industrial development departments of various public utilities had been tremendously beneficial to Greenville. "If we have need to call on an industrial prospect in the northern part of the United States we are always able to secure the services of an industrial representative of the one of the utility companies that serve our area," Dees said. "They are willing to go as our representative," Dees said, pointing out that expense of making such contacts is borne by the utility company.

Greenville's Ford dealer, Brown shed some light on where the prospects are found. He said that every member of the Chamber and Industrial Foundation served as a listening post for a prospective lead. All tips are reported and followed up.

"Many are duds but some have led to pay dirt," he said.

BOND ISSUES

Mississippi's Balance Agriculture with Industry program has been well utilized by Greenville, too. This special legislative act enables Greenville to float bond issues for the purpose of building industrial buildings to house new industry. These buildings are built with bond funds and are leased to the industry.

In theory, the rentals repay the bonded debt and the buildings are eventually owned by the city.

This program, together with the state's special tax exemption on new industry, has been a very effective inducement in attracting new industry to Greenville.

The Industrial Foundation in Greenville practices selectivity in locating new industry in the Industrial Park there.

"In the first place," according to Chamber Manager Landrum, "we don't care to float bonds to build a plant for a firm that is poorly financed and likely to fold, leaving us with a bonded obligation and no tenant. That is one example of a prospect which might be screened out.

"Another type would be a highly automated plant, which would require considerable space in our industrial park while employing a very few people. We are interested in payrolls.

"And, if we provide space in our industrial park and float bonds to build facilities we expect the plant to provide a large enough payroll to make it worth the effort to the community," Landrum said.

"Don't misunderstand us," Landrum said, "we're not getting so much industry we are trying to be particular. We just feel that it is to our best interest to be practical and we are more interested in payrolls than we are in capital investment of an industry," he said.

WEST MONROE PLANS

West Monroe Chamber President Scott, after his group's return from Greenville said that he "was greatly impressed with what we saw there, and with all respect to our gracious hosts there I feel that we have more to offer industry in Ouachita parish.

"The people of Greenville have done a magnificent job of selling their community. They have gone out, secured prospects and sold them on Greenville. They have done it through sincere organized efforts."

Scott said the West Monroe Chamber's immediate goal was to "complete a fact - finding survey on ways and means of organizing an industrial development effort. The trip to Greenville was our initial move.

"In the immediate future we will hold conferences with industrial development directors of the various utility companies to appraise them of our aim and solicit any aid and advice they may have to offer. Contact has already been made with some of these people.

"The state Department of Commerce and Industry has also been contacted in Baton Rouge. Mr. Henry Davis, the director, has assured us of the cooperation of his department. He has agreed to meet with us, either in West Monroe or at his office in Baton Rouge," Scott said.

"Our chamber manager, Mr. Eugene Scott, will coordinate our fact - finding effort. He did a splendid job in setting up our trip to Greenville.

"I expect it will require at least another month for the special committee of the Chamber's board to conclude its study. But as soon as the survey is finished we will make a complete report to the full chamber board and our Industrial Development Committee.

"It is expected that the special committee will make specific recommendations as to a course of action. We hope to get full support from our chamber membership and the entire community."

ROUGH OUTLINE

Scott said he personally favored a plan similar to the one used in Greenville. "Of course it will be necessary to make any changes needed to meet our particular situation."

Members of the delegation that visited Greenville seemed in agreement that any industrial development effort led by the West Monroe Chamber should be designed to encourage industrial development in any part of Ouachita parish.

"Industry that comes to any part of the parish will help the economy of the entire area," commented Tex Kilpatrick, a West Monroe funeral home and insurance company executive.

"My thoughts would be to establish industrial parks in various sections of the parish," according to Leslie Hamm, a former businessman and member of the Ouachita Parish Police Jury from ward five.

"I don't see any reason why we couldn't show an industrial prospect sites on the fringe of West Monroe, Sterlington, Fairbanks, and anywhere else we might have one and let the industrialist make his choice," Hamm said.

One thing is certain. The members of the five - man delegation of the West Monroe Chamber that visited Greenville were impressed. And they are thinking in terms of an industrial foundation, industrial parks and new industry. And if their enthusiasm becomes an epidemic the industrial economies of Ouachita parish will expand during the next 10 years.

Castro Reported Holding Firm To 5-Point Demands

HAVANA (AP)— Fidel Castro's ire over Soviet missile withdrawals appeared spreading Saturday into the field of ideology. Highly informed sources reported he has told Cuba's old guard Communists to forget the party line, saying: "Only Cuba matters now."

Diplomats here detected open differences between the Castro regime and the Kremlin behind the tinkling of glasses raised last week in toasts to the 45th anniversary of Russia's Communist revolution.

Castro is said to be irked by the Kremlin's decision to pull out the medium and long - range ballistic missiles it had planted here. Premier Khrushchev's Cuban troubleshooter, Anastas I. Mikoyan, seemed to have made no headway in soothing him.

Mikoyan's extended stay in Cuba—now more than a week—lent strong indication that he has been unable to make any headway with Castro on the Kremlin's solution to the problem.

Castro is reported to be holding firm to his five demands for settling the crisis with the United States. These include the surrender of the U. S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay, the lifting of all U. S. trade embargoes on Cuba, and ironclad guarantees against invasion.

While the five demands got mild support in the Kremlin, Communist China quickly embraced them. The Red Chinese are seen here as making a big play as an unconditional friend of Cuba. Eastern European Communist sources here now describe the Cuban government as having its head in Moscow and its heart in Peiping, the Red Chinese capital.

Diplomats canned with interest a speech by ranking Cuban Communist Carlos Rafael Rodriguez this week, admonishing the Russians that Cuba was not a 1938 Czechoslovakia, ready to be sacrificed for the sake of appeasement.

Rodriguez, head of the National Institute of Agrarian Reform, is viewed as the No. 2 man among old guard Communists. He is credited with being the first Red to make contact with Castro while the revolutionary was fighting dictator Fulgencio Batista.

"We all remember the horrid hour of Munich where the sale of a people a pretention to organize forces to bring down feudalism was being organized," Rodriguez said at a public homage to the Bolshevik revolution.

Present at the occasion were Mikoyan, Soviet ambassador Alexander Alexseyev and some countries, countries with power and deserted countries," he said. members of the Cuban government, but not the three top revolutionaries: Castro, his borhter Raul and Ernesto (Che) Guevara.

Rodriguez recalled World War II Russia where, he said, there had been "no national treason, no treason to socialism."

"In socialism, nations cannot be divided into large and small

Rodriguez insisted on the need for Communist nations to stick together against "imperialism" and underlined Castro's statements that Cuba could only accept "peace with dignity," a reference to Castro's five demands.

"These five points are in the rifles of our militiamen," he cried, implying the Fidelistas will fight in defense of what they consider the only solution in the face of a Soviet missile pullout.

Mississippi Has Budget Surplus

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Mississippi will have a cash balance at the end of the current biennium, after all its debts are paid, of about $8.65 million, it was predicted Saturday.

Earl Evans, director of the Commission of Budget and Accounting, and Exter Barr, chairman of the Mississippi State Tax Commission, made the prediction in a joint statement.

They said they believed the figure was a "very conservative estimate."

Burma To Get U.S. Food Aid

RANGOON, Burma (AP)—Burma is to get about $10.5 million worth of American agricultural products under a new agreement with the United States.

This neutral nation will set aside 50 million kyats, the local currency, in payment.

The United States will use the kyats to provide Burma grants and long-term loans for economic development. Similar pacts were signed in 1956 and 1959.

KENTUCKY LEGEND

SOMERSET, Ky. (AP) — The devil was jumping from hilltop to hilltop, scattering boulders to make things hard for farmers. His apron string broke, spilling all the rocks into the South Fork of the Cumberland River and giving the name to Devil's Jump, according to Kentucky's legend.

House - Senate conferees found a rocky path to compromise on the Omnibus Water Projects appropriations bill before eliminating a proposed dam at Devil's Jump on the final day of the 87th Congress.

"The state Department of Commerce and Industry has also been contacted in Baton Rouge. Mr. Henry Davis, the director, has assured us of the cooperation of his department. He has agreed to meet with us, either in West Monroe or at his office in Baton Rouge," Scott said.

"Our chamber manager, Mr. Eugene Scott, will coordinate our fact - finding effort. He did a splendid job in setting up our trip to Greenville.

"I expect it will require at least another month for the special committee of the Chamber's board to conclude its study. But as soon as the survey is finished we will make a complete report to the full chamber board and our Industrial Development Committee.

"It is expected that the special committee will make specific recommendations as to a course of action. We hope to get full support from our chamber membership and the entire community."

ROUGH OUTLINE

Scott said he personally favored a plan similar to the one used in Greenville. "Of course it will be necessary to make any changes needed to meet our particular situation."

Members of the delegation that visited Greenville seemed in agreement that any industrial development effort led by the West Monroe Chamber should be designed to encourage industrial development in any part of Ouachita parish.

"Industry that comes to any part of the parish will help the economy of the entire area," commented Tex Kilpatrick, a West Monroe funeral home and insurance company executive.

"My thoughts would be to establish industrial parks in various sections of the parish," according to Leslie Hamm, a former, businessman and member of the Ouachita Parish Police Jury from ward five.

"I don't see any reason why we couldn't show an industrial prospect sites on the fringe of West Monroe, Sterlington, Fairbanks, and anywhere else we might have one and let the industrialist make his choice," Hamm said.

One thing is certain. The members of the five - man delegation of the West Monroe Chamber that visited Greenville were impressed. And they are thinking in terms of an industrial foundation, industrial parks and new industry.

And if their enthusiasm becomes an epidemic the industrial complex of Ouachita parish will expand during the next 10 years.

ASC Removes Committeemen

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) —The Louisiana Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee (ASC) announced Saturday it has formally removed 10 Avoyelles Parish ASC committeemen.

The 10 were suspended four months ago for alleged irregularties in administration of the feed grain program.

The ouster will have immediate affect on only one committee member, Kirby Roy Jr. of Mansura. Roy, chairman of the Avoyelles county committee at the time of his suspension, was reelected to the committee in August.

Castro Reported Holding Firm To 5-Point Demands

HAVANA (AP)— Fidel Castro's ire over Soviet missile withdrawals appeared spreading Saturday into the field of ideology. Highly informed sources reported he has told Cuba's old guard Communists to forget the party line, saying: "Only Cuba matters now."

Diplomats here detected open differences between the Castro regime and the Kremlin behind the tinkling of glasses raised last week in toasts to the 45th anniversary of Russia's Communist revolution.

Castro is said to be irked by the Kremlin's decision to pull out the medium and long - range ballistic missiles it had planted here. Premier Khrushchev's Cuban troubleshooter, Anastas I. Mikoyan, seemed to have made no headway in soothing him.

Mikoyan's extended stay in Cuba—now more than a week—lent strong indication that he has been unable to make any headway with Castro on the Kremlin's solution to the problem.

Castro is reported to be holding firm to his five demands for settling the crisis with the United States. These include the surrender of the U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay, the lifting of all U.S. trade embargoes on Cuba; and ironclad guarantees against invasion.

While the five demands got mild support in the Kremlin, Communist China quickly embraced them. The Red Chinese are seen here as making a big play as an unconditional friend of Cuba. Eastern European Communist sources here now describe the Cuban government as having its head in Moscow and its heart in Peiping, the Red Chinese capital.

Diplomats canned with interest a speech by ranking Cuban Communist Carlos Rafael Rodriguez this week, admonishing the Russians that Cuba was not a 1938 Czechoslovakia, ready to be sacrificed for the sake of appeasement.

Rodriguez, head of the National Institute of Agrarian Reform, is viewed as the No. 2 man among old guard Communists. He is credited with being the first Red to make contact with Castro while the revolutionary was fighting dictator Fulgencio Batista.

"We all remember the horrid hour of Munich where the sale of a people a pretention to organize forces to bring down socialism was being organized," Rodriguez said at a public homage to the Bolshevik revolution.

Present at the occasion were Mikoyan, Soviet ambassador Alexander Alexseyev and some countries, countries with power and deserted countries," he said. members of the Cuban government, but not the three top revolutionaries: Castro, his borhter Raul and Ernesto (Che) Guevara.

Rodriguez recalled World War II Russia where, he said, there had been "no national treason, no treason to socialism."

"In socialism, nations cannot be divided into large and small Rodriguez insisted on the need for Communist nations to stick together against "imperialism" and underlined Castro's statements that Cuba could only accept "peace" with dignity," a reference to Castro's five demands.

"These five points are in the rifles of our, militiamen," he cried, implying the Fidelistas will fight in defense of what they consider the only solution in the face of a Soviet missile pullout.

Mississippi Has Budget Surplus

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Mississippi will have a cash balance at the end of the current biennium, after all its debts are paid, of about $6.65 million, it was predicted Saturday.

Earl Evans, director of the Commission of Budget and Accounting, and Exter Barr, chairman of the Mississippi State Tax Commission, made the prediction in a joint statement.

They said they believed the figure was a "very conservative estimate."

Burma To Get U.S. Food Aid

RANGOON, Burma (AP)—Burma is to get about $10.5 million worth of American agricultural products under a new agreement with the United States.

This neutral nation will set aside 50 million kyats, the local currency, in payment.

The United States will use the kyats to provide Burma grants and long-term loans for economic development. Similar pacts were signed in 1956 and 1959.

KENTUCKY LEGEND

SOMERSET, Ky. (AP) — The devil was jumping from hilltop to hilltop, scattering boulders to make things hard for farmers. His apron string broke, spilling all the rocks into the South Fork of the Cumberland River and giving the name to Devil's Jump, according to Kentucky's legend.

House - Senate conferees found a rocky path to compromise on the Omnibus Water Projects appropriations bill before eliminating a proposed dam at Devil's Jump on the final day of the 87th Congress.

The "Messiah" represents some of the most colorful and most magnificently arranged Christmas music ever penned. If you're looking for a spectacular way to break into local theatrics, this is it.

must be invested and produce interest to the state.

"Banks: There should be no State money deposited in any bank that has not been chartered for at least four years. This would prevent new banks from being organized and chartered and receiving state funds in order to get started. In other words, this would stop political banks, thereby saving the banking structure of our state.

"Insurance Commissions: The long - established practice of using insurance commissions to influence officials, votes and legislation must be stopped. This practice has been in existence now for many years and is bad government for the taxpayers.

"Deadheads: Every person drawing a check from the taxpaying public of Louisiana should have no opposition to his employer, the taxpayer, knowing his name, his address, the title of his job, and the duties of his job. "If he serves as governor," Barham stated, "there will be a central listing of all state employees so that any taxpayer, and this includes the press, may see who his employees are and the salary that they draw."

"Education: Having been a school teacher and having always been interested in the education system of this state, education should be the first obligation of the government. Education should have first call on the tax money of this state, and the school teachers and those connected with education in the state should not live in fear that their salaries may not be paid.

"Segregation: Every person in Louisiana who is acquainted with me knows my stand on segregation, both white and colored. At the time of the United States Supreme Court decision in 1954, I, as lieutenant governor, publicly disagreed with the decision. I do not intend to use segregation as an inflammatory issue because it is well known by all that I will stand more calm, firm and resolute in all questions confronting the South and the Southern way of life than any other avowed candidate. The real problems confronting the people of Louisiana lie in the hands of racial agitators, vile people who can expect no favorable treatment from me. Negro citizens will receive equal, impartial and fair treatment in every respect, but racial amalgamation and compulsory associationism are detrimental to both races, and I will staunchly oppose movements in that direction.

"While in office before I refused to allow my salary to be raised, I knew what the job paid when I ran for the office."

He also said he reduced the appropriation for his office of lieutenant governor by the sum of $20,000 during his term of office. He stated that the public did not have to rely upon his promise for economy in government; that he already has a record for same.

Barham stated that "What Louisiana needs most for the next four years is a sound, solid businessman who also knows Louisiana government and who has had some experience in business and in government." He stated that politics in Louisiana is a "brutal game" that they play in Baton Rouge, and anyone who is inexperienced in politics, in public office and in government "cannot possibly succeed as governor of this state." He further stated that a knowledge of law would be very helpful to the next governor.

Barham stated that he was one man in Louisiana who did not have to be governor and "if the people of this state who believe in good, sound, economical government and who believe in a balanced budget can come up with a man who they believe will carry out this principle, that he would be glad to support such a man. However, at this time the people are not satisfied with the present candidates."

Barham stated that he, "being a practical politician and knowing something about the psychology of the voters of Louisiana," believes that if Senator Russell Long should become a candidate for governor, "he would be hard to beat."

Barham continued, from the information that he had, he does not believe that Sen. Long intends to sacrifice a six - year term in the United States Senate, with the seniority that he now has, in order to serve four years as governor of the State of Louisiana."

Barham, a native of Lincoln parish, graduated from high school at Dubach, received a BA degree from Northwestern State College at Natchitoches and received his Law Degree from Louisiana State University Law School. He served as Lieutenant Governor from 1952 to 1956, at the same time Kennon was Governor.

However, Barham did not run on the Kennon ticket but ran on a ticket headed by Rep. Hale Boggs. Barham defeated Elmer Connor, Kennon's candidate for lieutenant governor.

Plane Reported Missing, Search Is Organized

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—A twin-engined Air Force plane carrying two persons was reported missing Saturday night over mountainous east Tennessee, and a search was organized.

The blue, U3B craft, similar to a Cessna 310, left Andrews Air Force base near Washington at 11:38 a.m. EST bound for Robins Air Force Base in Georgia. Shortly after takeoff, the pilot altered his flight plan to change his destination to tri-cities airport in northeast Tennessee and then changed it again to McGhee-Tyson airport at Knoxville. He was due here at 3 p.m. EST.

A radio report received here at 2:58 p.m. EST was the last word from the plane. The pilot reported at that time that he was over White Pine, Tenn., in Jefferson County..

Airport officials here said the pilot may have been mistaken about his location because no signal was picked up on radar equipment in the area where he should have been.

The Civil Air Patrol prepared to set up a search headquarters before dawn Sunday at Morristown. F-104 jets from the 151st Air National Guard at Knoxville flew four sorties between Knoxville and Kingsport but found no trace of the plane.

The Eastern Air Rescue Center at Robins AFB alerted air and ground search units and had the Federal Aviation Agency check all airports along the route. The search extended into areas of western North Carolina.

I do not intend to use segregation as an inflammatory issue because it is well - known by all that I will stand more calm, firm and resolute in all questions confronting the South and the Southern way of life than any other avowed candidate. The real problems confronting the people of Louisiana lie in the hands of racial agitators, vile people who can expect no favorable treatment from me. Negro citizens will receive equal, impartial and fair treatment in every respect, but racial amalgamation and compulsory associationism are detrimental to both races, and I will staunchly oppose movements in that direction.

"While in office before I refused to allow my salary to be raised, I knew what the job paid when I ran for the office."

He also said he reduced the appropriation for his office of lieutenant governor by the sum of $20,000 during his term of office. He stated that the public did not have to rely upon his promise for economy in government; that he already has a record for same.

Barham stated that "What Louisiana needs most for the next four years is a sound, solid businessman who also knows Louisiana government and who has had some experience in business and in government." He stated that politics in Louisiana is a "brutal game" that they play in Baton Rouge, and anyone who is inexperienced in politics, in public office and in government "cannot possibly succeed as governor of this state." He further stated that a knowledge of law would be very helpful to the next governor.

Barham stated that he was one man in Louisiana who did not have to be governor and "if the people of this state who believe in good, sound, economical government and who believe in a balanced budget can come up with a man who they believe will carry out this principle, that he would be glad to support such a man. However, at this time the people are not satisfied with the present candidates."

Barham stated that he, "being a practical politician and knowing something about the psychology of the voters of Louisiana," believes that if Senator Russell Long should become a candidate for governor, "he would be hard to beat.

Barham continued, from the information that he had, he does not believe that Sen. Long intends to sacrifice a six - year term in the United States Senate, with the seniority that he now has, in order to serve four years as governor of the State of Louisiana."

Barham, a native of Lincoln parish graduated from high school at Dubach, received a BA degree from Northwestern State College at Natchitoches and received his Law Degree from Louisiana State University Law School. He served as Lieutenant Governor from 1952 to 1956, at the same time Kennon was Governor.

However, Barham did not run on the Kennon ticket but ran on a ticket headed by Rep. Hale Boggs. Barham defeated Elmer Connor, Kennon's candidate for lieutenant governor.

Plane Reported Missing, Search Is Organized

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—A twin-engined Air Force plane carrying two persons was reported missing Saturday night over mountainous east Tennessee, and a search was organized.

The blue, U3B craft, similar to a Cessna 310, left Andrews Air Force base near Washington at 11:38 a.m. EST bound for Robins Air Force Base in Georgia. Shortly after takeoff, the pilot altered his flight plan to change his destination to tri-cities airport in northeast Tennessee and then changed it again to McGhee-Tyson airport at Knoxville. He was due here at 3 p.m. EST.

A radio report received here at 2:58 p. m. EST was the last word from the plane. The pilot reported at that time that he was over White Pine, Tenn., in Jefferson County..

Airport officials here said the pilot may have been mistaken about his location because no signal was picked up on radar equipment in the area where he should have been.

The Civil Air Patrol prepared to set up a search headquarters before dawn Sunday at Morristown. F-104 jets from the 151st Air National Guard at Knoxville flew four sorties between Knoxville and Kingsport but found no trace of the plane.

The Eastern Air Rescue Center at Robins AFB alerted air and ground search units and had the Federal Aviation Agency check all airports along the route. The search extended into areas of western North Carolina.

GARRISON, JUDGES

Gremillion Says Dispute Is Grave

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion, after an hour-long meeting with four New Orleans judges, said Saturday their dispute with Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison was "a grave matter involving the integrity of the judicial system."

The attorney general said, "I am going to look into it to determine if I have any jurisdiction."

The delegation of judges which came up from New Orleans to talk with Gremillion at his home here were Judges Oliver Schulingkamp, Thomas Brahney, Shirley Wimberly, and J. Bernard Cocke.

Gremillion said the group called upon me to discuss their controversy with the district attorney and the various charges he has made against the district judges.

"I gladly met with them," Gremillion said, "and discussed the matter just as I would discuss it with the district attorney if he should call upon me."

Also taking part in the talks was Mike Culligan, Gremillion's chief assistant in his New Orlens branch office.

Two bar associations also are looking into the hassle between Garrison and judges of the Orleans Parish criminal district court.

They are the Criminal Courts Bar Association and the New Orleans Bar Association. The criminal court group has called Garrison's dismissal of defamation charges against himself "high-branded and improper."

The judges made two attempts Thursday to pin the charges on the 42-year-old district attorney. Each time, his office had the charges dismissed.

Garrison has accused the judges of blocking his anti-vice raids on Canal and Bourbon Street clubs by withholding funds due his office. He also had criticized the court's extended holiday and vacation schedule as a racket."

Davis' Beach Project Poll Results Kept Confidential

BATON ROUGE (AP) — One month ago Gov. Jimmie H. Davis' state Bond and Building Commission asked the legislature in a mail ballot to approve speading $975,000 for sandy beaches at Cypremort Point, on Vermilion Bay.

It wasn't long after that until a new controversy began building up.

So far, there has been no word whether the administration has mustered the required majority approval in each house.

One legislative source from the area who didn't want to be quoted by name said the latest word was a House majority had given the nod, but two or three Senate votes still were needed.

The Davis commission, which the governor heads, approved the beach project after a few legislators from southern Louisiana asked for it.

Since then, several lawmakers from various sections of the state voiced objection, complaining particularly state colleges were short of fiscal needs.

The running count on how the legislators are voting is kept confidential in the governor's office, until a majority is reached in each house. Then the governor certifies to the state comptroller's office the necessary majority has been obtained and the vote is made public.

The beach would take in land on the St. Mary-Iberia Parish boundary known as a 16th section school tract, or 640 acres, jointly owned by the school board of St. Mary and Iberia Parishes.

Reps. E. J. Grizzaffi of St. Mary Parish and Fred Decuir of Iberia were in the original delegation asking Bond and Building Commission approval. Decuir stressed the public beach would offer a recreational center for up to 500,000 persons in an eight-parish region.

Grizzaffi said it was his understanding officials on the local scene were in favor of the project.

Supt. B. E. Boudreaux of St. Mary Parish Schools said his school board five years ago adopted a resolution favoring such a project, but that has been the only board action. The board president was authorized to enter negotiations.

However, Supt. F. F. Wimberly of Iberia Parish schools said since school 16th section land was involved, there was no record anyone officially had consulted his board.

"Two of our school board members said they didn't recall the matter being taken up with the board," Wimberly said, "and we checked back some six years on every item of business brought before our board.

"We couldn't find any record of our school board ever being approached about building a beach on property belonging to the school system," Wimberly said.

Other than that, the school superintendent said he had no comment unless the question was brought before his board.

Private camps already are in the vicinity of the proposed two-beach project, which would require sand to be barge in.

For years, Grand Isle in Jefferson Parish has been the only well-known gulf beach area on Louisiana's rugged coastline. Recently, Holly Beach, west of Cameron, has entered the picture at the far southwestern tip of Louisiana. Both are far from population centers.

The Cypremort Point area, sponsors said, would sit in the heart of a thickly populated region. The new beaches would be only 10 miles from a major east-west highway, U.S. 90, a tourist route.

Army Troops To Use Miami Park Quarters

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—U.S. Army troops moved into Gulfstream Park Saturday and it was reported the contingent would number 1,000.

Gulfstream President James Donn Jr., said the troops would not interfere with the stabling of horses or their workouts and would be withdrawn no later than Dec. 31, well in advance of Gulfstream's March 5-April 24 racing season.

The vanguard of the men who will call Gulfstream home for the next seven weeks arrived early Saturday and set up installations for the others expected during the weekend. They came from Ft. Hood, Tex.

Donn said the troops would use the grandstand areas only, and that stable, track and clubhouse areas would remain open for horsemen and their thoroughbreds.

Famed Stairway To Get Retread

WASHINGTON (AP) — The stairs of the Washington Monument will be closed about a week for a retread job beginning Nov. 13, the National Park Service announced Saturday. The elevator will continue to operate.

The present composition covering on the iron stairway has worn smooth in places. Those portions will be replaced with a slip-proof, hard rubberlike material, the service said.

T. Sutton Jett, regional director of the national capital region, said the monument's 898 steps are the steepest in Washington, rising 500 feet to a top platform.

Heart Council Meets; 1963 Leaders Set

The Ouachita Parish Heart Council met on Wednesday evening to recognize 1963 Heart Fund leaders.

Dr. Joe Kern, president of the local council, presided. James L. McDuffie, general chairman for 1963 Ouachita Parish Heart Fund presented to the council his Heart Fund leaders as follows: Mrs. Jack Tarver, Heart Sunday chairman, Monroe; Mrs. Jack Dew, Heart Sunday chairman, West Monroe.

Mrs. Charles P. Chisholm, special gifts chairman, West Monroe; Johnnie Usrey, Jr., corporate gifts chairman; Jerome I Braud, general business chairman; Kenneth C. Wagley, special events chairman, and Bobby G. Tucker, vice chairman.

The program was concluded with the showing of the Louisiana Heart documentary film, "The Search."

Kern expressed appreciation and congratulations for the new Heart Fund leaders. "I am confident that these leaders will help us step up the fight against Heart disease, our states most pressing health problem. Last year, diseases of the heart and blood vessels claimed almost 15,000 lives in Louisiana, more than all other diseases combined. In Ouachita Parish over 500 deaths were from Cardiovascular causes."

The local Heart Council directs programs of public education, professional education, and community service, and sponsors the annual Heart Fund each February.

SCATTERED SNOW flurries are forecast for Sunday over the mountains of New England. Rain is forecast for the upper Mississippi Valley. Youth Seeping Into Senate

The upper chamber is what the 100 members of the U.S. Senate consider themselves to be. Members of the House insist the two chambers are equal. But senators generally feel that the Senate is a little more equal.

Observers attribute this opinion to the undeniable exclusiveness of the Senate and the authoritative air many senators have developed in dozens of years of public service.

But this year several senators decided to bow out and a few more received their walking orders in last Tuesday's off - year elections.

Ten new men were elected to the Senate, and they averaged nearly 17 years younger than the men they replace.

The youngest man they replace is 35-year-old Maurice Murphy of New Hampshire; the oldest is Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin, who at 78 was the senior Republican in the Senate.

But the remarkable thing is that of the 10 new senators, five are in their 30's. Six of the outgoing senators were over 60. Some of the departing senators are old enough to be the fathers of some of the new ones.

In fact, the most drastic change the voters imposed on the new Senate was in its age, not its attitude.

The Senate traditionally is more liberal than the House. Last session, for example, it gave the Kennedy administration nowhere near the trouble the House did.

The only difference in sight next year is that the ayes in the Senate will be a little louder and a little clearer. Kennedy legislation should have somewhat easier sailing, but not enough to be startling.

Of the 10 new men, eight are Democrats. The two Republicans are avowed conservatives and probably will give little consolation to the liberal wing of the party led by New York Sens. Jacob Javits and Kenneth Keating.

However, the new Republican senator from Colorado, Peter H. Dominick, says he is a "liberal where people's rights and liberties are concerned." He said he was for more civil rights legislation.

Of the Democrats, one is the President's youngest brother and two others — Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut and George McGovern of South Dakota—used to work for him.

The other five are considered to be in Kennedy's corner on most subjects. At least two are, in the administration's eyes, an extremely welcome change.

Bayh upset Republican Sen. Homer Capehart. Nelson turned out Wiley. Both were fierce opponents of the administration.

Bayh is one of the least known of the new crop. He is an Indiana state legislator who may make some effort to rival the Senate's venerable orator, Everett Dirksen, if his campaign speeches are any indication.

Public Works Grants Okayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Welfare department announced Saturday grants to help finance 26 more projects under the accelerated public works program.

The work will involve construction of such facilities as sewage treatment plants, sewers and pumping stations.

The communities, the federal share under the accelerated public works program and, where applicable, funds provided under the water pollution control act, included:

WMHS Open House Is Set

West Monroe High School will have an open house Monday between 7 and 8:30 p.m.

During the affair, sponsored by the Future Teachers organization, all departments of the school will be open to the public. Pat Manning is president of the Future Teachers.

Cuba Expulsion Of Arbez Asked

GUATEMALA (AP) — President Miguel Ydigoras demanded Saturday that Cuba immediately expel Guatemala's ex-President Jacobo Arbenz. Otherwise, he said, he will permit the establishment of a Cuban exile government in Guatemala.

The presidential communique said a "provisional Guatemalan government operates in Cuba. Subversive groups also are organized there, it said, and Arbenz directs threatening speeches toward Guatemala over Havana radio.

Group Begins Health Study Of Tobacco

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A group of top scientists and researchers laid the ground work Saturday for a determination of the controversial question of how tobacco smoking affects human health.

The government - sponsored study began in an atmosphere of secrecy that resembled the Cuban crisis. Initial meetings were closed to newsmen. Interviews of members of the panel were discouraged. Efforts were taken to shield them from newsmen.

In contrast to most previous studies on whether cigarette smoking, in particular, causes cancer and other diseases, the survey has the full support of both sides in the dispute—the tobacco industry itself and those who condemn smoking.

A government spokesman said tobacco officials had given "nothing but wonderful cooperation, including offers to provide any data the study group desires.

Surgeon General Luther L. Terry explained that the secrecy lid was clamped on the panel's deliberations to assure it of complete freedom. He said the government would help wherever it is asked but will not interfere. The White House reemphasized this.

The study will take six months or more, it was estimated. The first step was to pin down approaches and methods the study will undertake. The group broke up into a number of sub-groups Saturday to tackle aspects of the matter.

MAY OPPOSE JFK

Rockefeller Top 1964 Contender

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In 1960 the Democrats snarled and fought and finally after a bitter struggle nominated John F. Kennedy for President. The Republicans gently went through the formalities and to no one's surprise selected Richard M. Nixon.

In 1964 the Democrats will go through the formalities — probably even more gently — and name Kennedy to run for a second term.

The Republicans, on the other hand, probably will snarl and fight and finally after a bitter struggle nominate — who? Nelson Rockefeller, the way it looks right now.

This, at least, is the way the 1964 presidential campaign shapes up in the aftermath of the mid-term elections last Tuesday. The greatest victory for a party in power since Franklin D. Roosevelt's mid-term in 1934, the balloting gave the Democrats hope they will make another sweep under Kennedy two years from now.

For the GOP the outlook was far from rosy. Republicans counted on mid-term victories to both build a good congressional record and boost the morale and fighting spirit of the rank and file. Instead, they lost four Senate seats and picked up only two in the House.

What they did accomplish, however, was to bring to the fore two new presidential possibilities — William W. Scranton, governor-elect of Pennsylvania, and George Romney, governor-elect of Michigan.

Any lineup of GOP presidential possibilities must now include these two, as it must also include Rockefeller and Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

Definitely omitted is Nixon. He had been considered a potential candidate despite his protestations that he would serve out his four-year term if elected governor of California. But his defeat by Democrat Edmund G. Brown totally ruled out any 1964 consideration.

Kennedys Plan To See Russian Ballet Tuesday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President and Mrs. Kennedy will attend the Washington opening night performance of the world famous Russian Bolshoi Ballet Tuesday night, it was learned Saturday.

The President and the First Lady will match the friendly gestures that Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev has shown to American artists performing in Moscow.

The President and Mrs. Kennedy are expected to be among an audience of top ranking Washington official and diplomatic dignitaries. Also on hand to applaud the Russian dance troupe will be Soviet Ambassador and Mrs. Anatoly Dobrynin and other Soviet embassy officials.

For opening night, the Bolshoi will perform "Swan Lake," featuring Prime Ballerina Maria Plisetskaya, who became the top star of the company upon the retirement of Galina Ulanova.

U. S. artists who have toured the Soviet Union — most of them under the State Department's cultural exchange program — have urged American officials to turn out for their Russian counterparts who tour this country. Jazz man Benny Goodman, in particular, called on the President last summer after a six week tour of Russia and urged him to attend such events as the Bolshoi ballet.

IN STUDENT CASE

U.S. Depositions Slated At Oxford

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Deputy Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach and chief U.S. Marshal James McShane, two instrumental figures in the University of Mississippi desegregation case—faced a federal order Saturday to appear in Oxford, Miss., to file depositions in the case of an Ole Miss student who sued them.

U.S. Dist. Judge Harold Cox, in a hearing here Saturday, ordered the federal officials to appear upon pleadings for the student by his attorney.

In Washington, a Justice Department spokesman said Katzenbach and McShane had no comment on the judge's action.

Cyril Faneca Jr. of Handsboro, Miss., an Ole Miss junior, alleges he was deprived of his constitutional rights of freedom of speech and freedom of assembly by actions of Katzenbach and McShane.

Katzenbach headed up Justice Department activities when the federal government rushed in troops to quell rioting which saw the death of two persons and injuries to scores more.

Federal troops continue to guard Meredith, a 29-year-old Kosciusko, Miss., Negro, while he attends classes as the first knowingly admitted Negro.

U.S. attorneys argued the federal pair were unable to appear for the previously court-ordered depositions because of the inconvenience and "balance of need."

The U.S. attorneys sought to have the depositions taken in Washington. They also sought to have motions in Faneca's suit quashed and rescinded but Cox withheld action pending the taking of the depositions.

The suit by Faneca has been the only one of its kind thus far stemming from the Ole Miss incident.

Cox set Friday as the date to take the depositions at Oxford but after a suggestion by Cates, the federal judge agreed to let Cates and the U.S. attorneys agree on a date which would be convenient to both parties in the case.

One attorney for Katzenbach and McShane argued acquiring the facts — the depositions — could easily be done in Washington as in Mississippi because location was irrelevant in that the facts would be the same no matter where acquired.

Cates, who figured prominently in earlier Meredith proceedings, made note that the situation from which the case arose happened in Mississippi and that Faneca was a resident of Mississippi.

Cates also noted Katzenbach and McShane had appeared in Mississippi during the incident prompting the suit.

The eventual outcome of the case — if in favor of Faneca — could set the stage for a number of such suits by Ole Miss students.

Head Of U.S. Foreign Aid May Resign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fowler Hamilton, head of the U.S. foreign aid program, has offered to resign, a government official said Saturday night.

Hamilton, formerly a highly successful lawyer in New York City, took the job on a "limited basis," the official said, and would like to return to his law practice, or to private business.

The source, an official in the Kennedy administration, gave this version of the circumstances leading up to Hamilton's offer to resign as head of the Agency for International Development: Hamilton had been called on several times in the past to take government positions at considerable sacrifice in income, and President Kennedy considered naming him to head the Central Intelligence Agency.

The President told Hamilton, 50, about a year ago that he was needed to head the AID, the newly formed agency set up to handle all aid to foreign countries.

"I can't make a commitment for very long," Hamilton was reported to have told the President.

On Oct. 3, 1961, Hamilton took office and said he would build "a new team at the top" of the foreign aid agency.

Hamilton is not resigning because of any disagreements over policy, the official said, "but there are a couple of people at the White House who think Hamilton is not a liberal. Hamilton is liberal—he's a humanitarian—but these people don't know that. In private practice he had an income of about $200,000 a year, and he has received several good offers from businesses.

"He feels that the agency is in good shape and that he has done a good job."

Woman Who Saved Life Of FDR Is Buried

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A courageous little brunette who saved Franklin Delano Roosevelt from an assassin's bullet in 1933 was buried Saturday a few hours after the funeral of Mrs. Roosevelt.

Lillian Cross became a national hero when she spoiled the aim of an assassin at a Miami political rally. She attended Roosevelt's inauguration and a White House tea.

Thursday, Mrs. Cross died at the age of 78 in a St. Petersburg Masonic home for the elderly.

Twenty-nine years ago, President-elect Roosevelt rode to a political rally at Bayfront Park. Mrs. Cross, a small woman, stood on a steel bench to get a better view.

"A small, foreign-appearing man caught me by my left shoulder and pulled himself up beside me," she remembered. "I recall he had only his left foot on the bench when he began firing a revolver he had in his hand. The first shot he fired was so close to my face, I got powder burns from it.

"I grabbed his arm and pushed it up in the air and out, trying to keep him from hitting anyone else. By that time members of the American Legion, who were acting as an escort to the President, came leaping over the back of the seats toward us.

"They grabbed him, lifted him bodily out from between the seats and strapped him to the back of an automobile."

The spray of bullets struck four men and fatally injured Chicago Mayor Anton Cermak. The assassin, Guiseppe Zangara, was electrocuted March 20, 1933.

Roosevelt wrote Mrs. Cross, "It is hard for me to find words to convey to you my appreciation for your heroism. How much greater and sadder a tragedy was averted by your unselfish courage and quick thinking of course no one can estimate."

Mrs. Roosevelt Buried By FDR

HYDE PARK, N. Y. (UPI) — Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, the shy and self-imagined "ugly duckling" orphan who in womanhood found true beauty through service to humanity, rested in death Saturday night beside her husband in the rose garden they had tended together in life.

Under a patchwork November sky, the "first lady of the world" was buried Saturday afternoon alongside the grave of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, 32nd President of the United States. They had been parted, until now, by Franklin Roosevelt's wartime death in office in 1945.

President Kennedy and former presidents Eisenhower and Truman headed a group of distinguished mourners who came to the ancestral Roosevelt estate, country home of the late President's family since 1819.

The 78-year-old Mrs. Roosevelt, niece of President Theodore Roosevelt, died Wednesday in New York after a battle of more than two years with anemia and tuberculosis.

After a heavy early-morning rain, the sky began clearing shortly before the funeral service started at 2:10 p.m. in the quaint 115-year-old stucco St. James Episcopal Church.

A gentle breeze ruffled the large pine trees overlooking the grave and fluttered the bright flowers in the 40 wreaths set on stands behind a great white oblong headstone bearing the names of both Franklin Delano and Anna Eleanor Roosevelt.

The stone was still wet and glistening when the Rev. Dr. Gordon L. Kidd, for 16 years Mrs. Roosevelt's rector at St. James, delivered a graveside eulogy saying that the world had suffered an irreparable loss.

"The entire world becomes one family orphaned by her passing. Her deep concern for the welfare of all people, her understanding of their problems, and her efforts in their behalf gained this most remarkable woman a permanent place in the hearts of all devoted to the advancing of the cause of freedom and peace with justice for all peoples.

"Her great sympathy for the homeless and the refugee made the underprivileged and the downtrodden her special concern.

"Never have I known her to raise her voice in anger against any jibes and unfair stories that one heard from time to time."

The Kennedys, Eisenhowers, and Trumans were guests at lunch at Mrs. Roosevelt's Val-Kill cottage, which is down a winding country lane across town from the Roosevelt estate. The estate now is the Franklin D. Roosevelt memorial site, a public property but closed to the public today.

The Rev. Dr. Gordon L. Kidd, Mrs. Roosevelt's rector for 16 years at St. James, read the 20-minute funeral service from the Protestant Episcopal Book of Common Prayer.

Her five children were in attendance, as well as 12 of her 19 grandchildren.

Mrs. Chauncey, 70, Succumbs; Rites Are Held

Funeral services for Mrs. Georgia Mae Chauncey, 70, were held from the chapel of Hixson Brothers Funeral Home Friday at 2 p.m. with the Rev. Louis McDaniel of Bossier City officiating.

Interment was in the Hasley Cemetery under the direction of Hixson's.

Mrs. Chauncey, who resided at 102 N. 5th St., West Monroe, died in a local hospital Thursday after a short illness. A native of England, Ark., she was a long-time resident of West Monroe.

Survivors include her husband, Thomas B. Chauncey of West Monroe; one son, Wesley Monroe Street of Los Angeles; one daughter, Mrs. Bennie Lowery of Minden; one grandchild and two great-grandchildren.

Japanese Sign Pact On Trade With Red China

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China Saturday signed a trade memorandum with Japan calling for an exchange of some $450 million dollars worth of goods between the two countries in the next five years, a Peiping broadcast said.

The communist broadcast said the agreement, reached in talks in the Chinese communist capital, was "non-governmental" in character.

Under the memorandum, Japan will send Red China such badly needed items as rolled steel, agricultural machinery, farm implements, chemical fertilizers and insecticides.

Japanese newspapers carried frontpage stories on the trade arrangement and speculated nervously on American reaction to it.

GOING TO EUROPE

Preview Of Tour Set By Ensemble

Northeast State's Jazz Ensemble presents its final concert in Monroe Thursday night before leaving for its European tour. The Thursday concert will begin at 8:15 in Brown Auditorium.

The concert will be a preview performance of the program the group will present before U.S. servicemen in France, Italy and Germany early next year. The tour, sponsored by the Department of Defense and the United Service Organizations (USO), will begin Jan. 26, 1963.

Proceeds from the Thursday concert will be used to buy equipment for the tour.

One of the few musical groups of its type in the country, the Ensemble was formed by John F. "Del" Sawyer, assistant professor of music at Northeast, in 1959 and has developed into one of the school's top advertisements.

It has made appearances throughout Louisiana and Mississippi and has appeared at the Miss Louisiana Beauty Pageant in Lake Providence for the past three years.

This year's Miss Louisiana, incidentally, Diana Jane Smith of Oak Ridge and Northeast, will be the Ensemble's special guest at the Thursday performance.

Tickets for the concert are on sale at eight locations in Monroe — Dew Music, Frances Hotel, Hewitt Music, Paramount Theater, Penn Hotel, Rendezvous, Virginia Hotel and the college.

Conference Set On Congo Unity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Undersecretary of State George C. McGhee will fly to Europe next week for conferences with British and Belgian officials on further efforts to unify the Congo.

McGhee will leave Monday afternoon for Brussels and London, the State Department said, and may visit other capitals.

"Among subjects to be discussed," the announcement said, "will be his recent visit to the Congo and progress toward Congolese reconciliation."

It is understood that U.S. and United Nations officials are studying ways of bringing economic pressures to bear on secessionist Katanga Province in a further effort to persuade Katanga President Moise Tshombe to accept a draft constitution for Congo consideration.

Kennedys Fly To Estate For Weekend Stay

They boarded the helicopter immediately after the President's big jet transport brought the Kennedys back from the funeral of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The Kennedy children, Caroline and John Jr., came to Glen Ora earlier in the day by car.

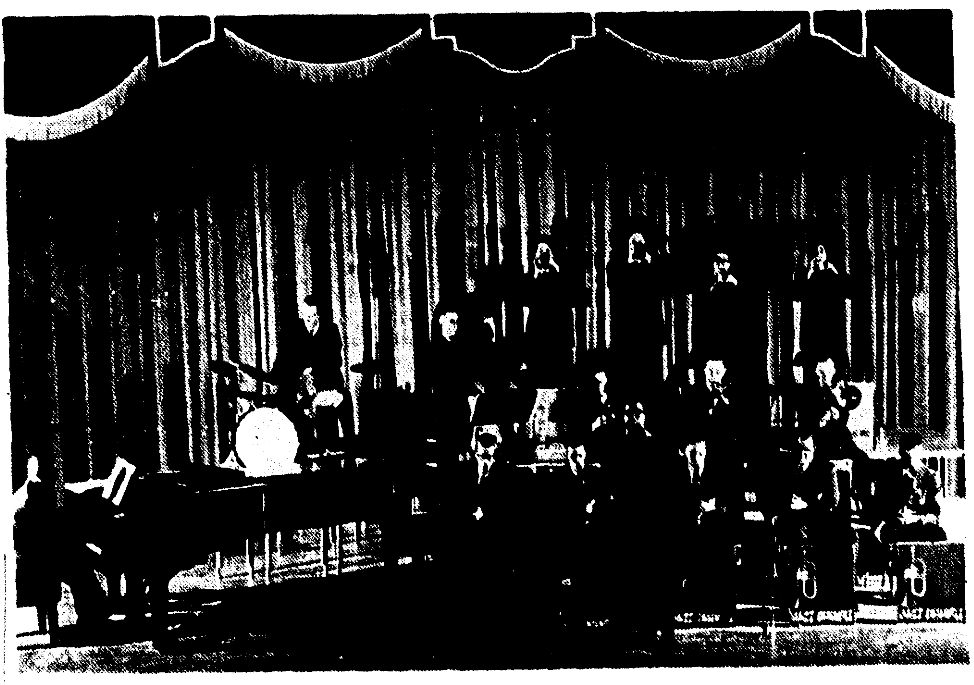
The President plans to return to the White House early Monday.

Kennedy and the First Lady went to Hyde Park, N.Y., earlier Saturday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Roosevelt.

Five minutes after their plane landed at Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland near Washington, they left for Glen Ora.

ITALY FLOODS RECEDE

ROME (UPI)—Flood waters receded Saturday in northern Italy following a wave of bad weather which took five lives and caused millions of dollars damage. The Po and Ticino rivers were still nearly 10 feet above normal but falling rapidly.



HERE IS NORTHEAST'S Jazz Ensemble, which presents a preview performance of its European tour program Thursday night in Brown Auditorium at 8:15. That's director Del Sawyer out front on the trumpet. The group leaves for a tour of U.S. military bases in France, Germany and Italy early next year.

19 Hurt As Trains Collide

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — A passenger and a freight train collided in clear weather Saturday because of an apparent switching error or failure.

There were no fatalities but an estimated 19 persons were injured. All were treated at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Belleville and 10 were admitted.

The crash occurred three miles southeast of Belleville in open countryside. Visibility was excellent. Belleville is across the Mississippi River from St. Louis.

The passenger train was the Louisville & Nashville Railroad's Hummingbird en route to St. Louis from the south. The freight was an Illinois Central local taking about 70 empty coal cars back to a mine near Freeburg, Ill.

Illinois state police said the Hummingbird was heading northwest and the freight was going south when they collided. The front of the Hummingbird hit the freight about 13 cars behind the engine.

Leo Yates, a mail clerk on the passenger train, said, "Suddenly there was a tremendous jolt. I was thrown 20 or 30 feet down the car, along with other clerks."

A witness said 31 cars of the 70-car freight train were derailed and two cars of the passenger train left the track. Engines on both trains were derailed.

The Louisville & Nashville train was using the Illinois Central tracks to detour around an earlier freight train derailment on L&N lines near Belleville. And the Hummingbird had been delayed earlier at Nashville, Tenn., because of a freight train derailment near Chattanooga, Tenn.

Among those injured were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Love of Sedalia, Mo. He is vice president and business manager of the Sedalia Democrat. Mrs. Love suffered a cut on the head and was admitted to the hospital.

Others admitted to the hospital were Edward Overby, engineer, and Nick Frankenberger, fireman, both of Evansville, Ind., and N. R. Crowell, an Illinois Central engineer serving as a pilot engineer on the L&N train.

Tax Exemptions Are Requested By Industries

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Louisiana industries have applied for property tax exemptions on over $8 million in new manufacturing facilities, chairman Guy C. Billups of the state Board of Commerce and Industry said Saturday.

The board will consider the applications at its regular bi-monthly meeting Thursday.

Billups said the 16 new applications for new and expanded facilities would bring the year's total of exemptions to more than $131 million.

The largest application is for a $5 million addition to International Paper Co.'s Bastrop mill to increase manufacturing capacity of sulphate pulp and paper by 17 per cent. The new facility will provide 300 temporary jobs.

President Kennedy and former presidents Eisenhower and Truman headed a group of distinguished mourners who came to the ancestral Roosevelt estate, country home of the late President's family since 1819.

The 78-year-old Mrs. Roosevelt, niece of President Theodore Roosevelt, died Wednesday in New York after a battle of more than two years with anemia and tuberculosis.

After a heavy early - morning rain, the sky began clearing shortly before the funeral service started at 2:10 p.m. in the quaint 115-year-old stucco St. James Episcopal Church.

A gentle breeze ruffled the huge pine trees overlooking the grave and fluttered the bright flowers in the 40 wreaths set on stands behind a great white oblong headstone bearing the names of both Franklin Delano and Anna Eleanor Roosevelt.

The stone was still wet and glistening when the Rev. Dr. Gordon L. Kidd, for 16 years Mrs. Roosevelt's rector at St. James, delivered a graveside eulogy saying that the world had suffered an irreparable loss:

"The entire world becomes one family orphaned by her passing Her deep concern for the welfare of all people, her understanding of their problems, and her efforts in their behalf gained this most remarkable woman a permanent place in the hearts of all devoted to the advancing of the cause of freedom and peace with justice for all peoples.

"Her great sympathy for the homeless and the refugee made the underprivileged and the downtrodden her special concern.

"Never have I known her to raise her voice in anger against any jibes and unfair stories that one heard from time to time."

The Kennedys, Eisenhowers, and Trumans were guests at lunch at Mrs. Roosevelt's Val-Kill cottage, which is down a winding country lane across town from the Roosevelt estate. The estate now is the Franklin D. Roosevelt memorial site, a public property but closed to the public today.

The Rev. Dr. Gordon L. Kidd, Mrs. Roosevelt's rector for 16 years at St. James, read the 20-minute funeral service from the Protestant Episcopal Book of Common Prayer.

Her five children were in attendance, as well as 12 of her 19 grandchildren.

GOING TO EUROPE

Preview Of Tour Set By Ensemble

Northeast State's Jazz Ensemble presents its final concert in Monroe Thursday night before leaving for its European tour. The Thursday concert will begin at 8:15 in Brown Auditorium.

The concert will be a preview performance of the program the group will present before U.S. servicemen in France, Italy and Germany early next year. The tour, sponsored by the Department of Defense and the United Service Organizations (USO), will begin Jan. 26, 1963.

Proceeds from the Thursday concert will be used to buy equipment for the tour.

One of the few musical groups of its type in the country, the Ensemble was formed by John F. "Del" Sawyer, assistant professor of music at Northeast, in 1959 and has developed into one of the school's top advertisements.

It has made appearances throughout Louisiana and Mississippi and has appeared at the Miss Louisiana Beauty Pageant in Lake Providence for the past three years.

This year's Miss Louisiana, incidentally, Diana Jane Smith of Oak Ridge and Northeast, will be the Ensemble's special guest at the Thursday performance.

Tickets for the concert are on sale at eight locations in Monroe — Dew Music, Frances Hotel, Hewitt Music, Paramount Theater, Penn Hotel, Rendezvous, Virginia Hotel and the college.

Conference Set On Congo Unity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Undersecretary of State George C. McGhee will fly to Europe next week for conferences with British and Belgian officials on further efforts to unify the Congo.

McGhee will leave Monday afternoon for Brussels and London, the State Department said, and may visit other capitals.

"Among subjects to be discussed," the announcement said, "will be his recent visit to the Congo and progress toward Congolese reconciliation."

It is understood that U.S. and United Nations officials are studying ways of bringing economic pressures to bear on secessionist Katanga Province in a further effort to persuade Katanga President Moise Tshombe to accept a draft constitution for Congo consideration.

Kennedys Fly To Estate For Weekend Stay

They boarded the helicopter immediately after the President's big jet transport brought the Kennedys back from the funeral of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The Kennedy children, Caroline and John Jr., came to Glen Ora earlier in the day by car.

Kennedy and the First Lady went to Hyde Park, N.Y., earlier Saturday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Roosevelt.

Five minutes after their plane landed at Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland near Washington, they left for Glen Ora.

ITALY FLOODS RECEDE

ROME (UPI)—Flood waters receded Saturday in northern Italy following a wave of bad weather which took five lives and caused millions of dollars damage. The Po and Ticino rivers were still nearly 10 feet above normal but falling rapidly.

HERE IS NORTHEAST'S Jazz Ensemble, which presents a preview performance of its European tour program Thursday night in Brown Auditorium at 8:15. That's director Del Sawyer out front on the trumpet. The group leaves for a tour of U.S. military bases in France, Germany and Italy early next year.

19 Hurt As Trains Collide

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — A passenger and a freight train collided in clear weather Saturday because of an apparent switching error or failure.

There were no fatalities but an estimated 19 persons were injured. All were treated at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Belleville and 10 were admitted.

The crash occurred three miles southeast of Belleville in open countryside. Visibility was excellent. Belleville is across the Mississippi River from St. Louis.

The passenger train was the Louisville & Nashville Railroad's Hummingbird en route to St. Louis from the south. The freight was an Illinois Central local taking about 70 empty coal cars back to a mine near Freeburg, Ill.

Illinois state police said the Hummingbird was heading northwest and the freight was going south when they collided. The front of the Hummingbird hit the freight about 13 cars behind the engine.

Leo Yates, a mail clerk on the passenger train, said, "Suddenly there was a tremendous jolt. I was thrown 20 or 30 feet down the car, along with other clerks."

A witness said 31 cars of the 70-car freight train were derailed and two cars of the passenger train left the track. Engines on both trains were derailed.

The Louisville & Nashville train was using the Illinois Central tracks to detour around an earlier freight train derailment on L&N lines near Belleville. And the Hummingbird had been delayed earlier at Nashville, Tenn., because of a freight train derailment near Chattanooga, Tenn.

Among those injured were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Love of Sedalia, Mo. He is vice president and business manager of the Sedalia Democrat. Mrs. Love suffered a cut on the head and was admitted to the hospital.

Others admitted to the hospital were Edward Overby, engineer, and Nick Frankenberger, fireman, both of Evansville, Ind., and N. R. Crowell, an Illinois Central engineer serving as a pilot engineer on the L&N train.

ALTAMAHA NO HA HA

He left the boat overturned in the river after encountering snakes dropping from tree limbs and rapids that finally caused him to abandon ship

Tax Exemptions Are Requested By Industries

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Louisiana industries have applied for property tax exemptions on over $8 million in new manufacturing facilities, chairman Guy C. Billups of the state Board of Commerce and Industry said Saturday.

The board will consider the applications at its regular bi-monthly meeting Thursday.

Billups said the 16 new applications for new and expanded facilities would bring the year's total of exemptions to more than $131 million.

The largest application is for a $5 million addition to International Paper Co.'s Bastrop mill to increase manufacturing capacity of sulphate pulp and paper by 17 per cent. The new facility will provide 300 temporary jobs.

Japanese Sign Pact On Trade With Red China

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China Saturday signed a trade memorandum with Japan calling for an exchange of some $450 million dollars worth of goods between the two countries in the next five years, a Peiping broadcast said.

The communist broadcast said the agreement, reached in talks in the Chinese communist capital, was "non-governmental" in character.

Under the memorandum, Japan will send Red China such badly needed items as rolled steel, agricultural machinery, farm implements, chemical fertilizers and insecticides.

Japanese newspapers carried frontpage stories on the trade arrangement and speculated nervously on American reaction to it.

The pastor of the First Methodist Church in Bastrop, the Rev. Robert L. Peyton, will be evangelist for Thanksgiving revival services scheduled today through Friday at St. Mark's Methodist Church on Swartz Road.

Rev. Peyton received bachelor degree from Mississippi Southern College and Emory University, and a master's degree from the University of Texas. He is completing work on a doctorate from the same university.

He served in churches in Mississippi and Texas before coming to the Monroe district seven years ago.

There will be a daily worship service at 7 p.m. and a children's worship period after school hours from 4 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. The programs will include special music and various choir groups at every service, it was announced by the Rev. James O. Evans, pastor.

LONDON (AP) — Rev. David L. Edwards, a member of an Anglican group called the Modern Churchmen's Union, said at a meeting of the union recently that leading clergymen of all faiths could sit in the House of Lords alongside Anglican bishops who are members of the House automatically. METHODIST LEADER

Bishop Views Century Of Life

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Americans don't revere old age the way Orientals do.

But even in this youth-obsessed land, we respect the wisdom a man can accumulate in living for a whole century.

Last week, more than 1,000 people gathered in the grand ballroom of New York's Waldorf-Astoria hotel to celebrate the 100th birthday of Bishop Herbert Welch, the grand old man of Methodism.

Herbert Welch was born on the day that Abraham Lincoln fired Gen. George B. McClellan as commander of the Union Army.

He started to school in the year that Andrew Johnson was impeached, and was graduated from college about the time that A. Conan Doyle published his first Sherlock Holmes story.

STARTED CAREER

He began his career as a Methodist minister during the Gay Nineties. By the time of the San Francisco earthquake, he was president of Ohio Wesleyan College.

Shortly before America entered World War I, he was elected a bishop of the Methodist Church, and was sent to the Far East to administer Methodist missionary work in China, Japan and Korea.

He retired for the first time in 1936 but was soon called back to serve as Methodist bishop of the Boston area. He retired again in 1939, but a year later was back in harness, directing the Methodist committee for overseas relief which distributed more than $8 million in aid to suffering people in many lands during World War II.

In 1948, at the age of 86, Bishop Welch "retired" for the third time.

But he has continued to be almost as active as ever, preaching, lecturing, writing books and generally making himself useful in the service of his Lord.

His 100th birthday last week found him still full of beans. He looks no older than 70, and has a mental and physical vigor which many men of 60 could envy.

CHARACTERISTIC

It was characteristic that his speech at the birthday dinner was entitled "As I Enter My Second Century." Bishop Welch is still looking to the future.

He is a gentle, humorous man with a vast affection for all sorts and conditions of people. Like a certain beverage which he never touches, he has been mellowed by age.

"A compensation of old age," he said recently, "is that it gives you time enough to change your mind. The haste and rashness of youth give way to a more sober peace. As one looks back over so many years, it is almost a matter of course that he should gain a better perspective, see events and people in their relations, and draw the line more clearly between the important and the trivial.

LESSONS

"One may even learn lessons of tolerance and patience. When I see a good cause moving with exasperating slowness, I can now be almost contented, providing it is moving in the right direction.

"I have come to place less confidence in the complex, more in the simple; less confidence in law, more in persuasion; less reliance upon big people and spectacular events and more reliance upon mere leadership and more upon service.

"Among the virtues and graces, I have come to set the highest value on humility, compassion, not pity, understanding rather than mere tolerance, love above and beyond the call of duty, sharing and good cheer."

As his life has lengthened, his creed has shortened. After 100 years as a human being, 88 years as a baptized Christian, and more than 75 years as an ordained minister, he can sum up his deepest convictions in [illegible] words:

"God's wisdom, power and love are supreme; all men are brothers. God is behind the history of mankind; and loving service is the secret of everlasting joy."

Church Meeting Is Scheduled Next Sunday

A meeting of persons interested in taking part in activities of the newly organized Messiah Lutheran Church will be held Sunday, Nov. 18, instead of today as previously announced.

The Rev. Charles Vorkoper, pastor, said the purpose of the meeting will be to prepare for the first service of the church December 2. The Lutheran service will be rehearsed and explained, among other things.

The meeting will be held at the parsonage, 2307 Sauvelle Dr., Monroe.

Location of the church and schedule of services will be announced soon.

Many Areas Represented

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — There are only 131 students at the College of the Bible here, but they come from 30 states, one territory and four foreign countries. The school is a graduate seminary of the Disciples of Christ Church.

GETS HEAD START

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The ballots from Tuesday's Oregon election still were being counted when the first candidate for 1964 made his appearance.

Jim Bacaloff, 37, a Portland contractor, paid a $100 filing fee for the Republican nomination to Congress from the Third District, which includes the Portland area.

Bacaloff was defeated for the U.S. GOP senatorial nomination in the May primary this year.

REV. JOHN DALLALIO, pastor of Liberty Baptist Church, 401 Slack St., West Monroe, will be evangelist at 7:30 p.m. daily revival services there starting Monday and extending through the following Sunday. Theme of the revival will be, "Ye Must be Born Again." There will be special music featured at the services. The church nursery will be open.

Group Asks Prayers For Leadership

The Monroe Ministerial Association last week unanimously approved a resolution calling on residents of the area to pray for the nation and its leaders, and "even our enemies, during this time of international crisis."

The meeting was held last Wednesday at the First Methodist Church, with the Rev. John C. Stewart, president of the organization, presiding.

The association announced that it and the West Monroe Ministerial Alliance will cooperate in presenting a series of 13 weekly television "panel" programs on KNOE-TV, beginning the first Saturday in January.

CHAIRMAN

Dr. W. H. McFadden is chairman of committee arranging program details.

Special guests at the association meeting were Jack Pankey and [illegible] Johnson of the Ouachita Valley Council of Boy Scouts. Pankey spoke on how the churches and scouts work together in a character building program. He placed emphasis on the religious awards program in scouting. A filmstrip on the subject was also shown.

COMMITTEE

Association President Stewart appointed a nominating committee for new officers of the organization to be elected at the next meeting.

The Rev. Bill Tyndall, protestant chaplain at Louisiana Training Institute, invited the group to hold its December meeting at LTI. A representative of Gideons Society will be guest speaker at the December 12 luncheon meeting.

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: Why does not God tell us the exact location of heaven? By that, I mean, why is it that we have never been told in terms we can understand, the planet or planets which will be our heaven?

ANSWER: God has told us all that is necessary for us to know. If we were told the exact location, greedy men would aspire to invade it; Godless nations would bend every effort to capture it, or clutter it up with space vehicles, and to take as spoil its pearly gates, its jasper walls, and streets of gold.

Most things heavenly can be ours if we are Christian, right here on this earth. Jesus said: "The kingdom of God is within you." God is in heaven, but He is also with us. He has said: "I will never leave thee nor foresake thee." Christ is in heaven. But He said: "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." There is joy in heaven. But the Bible says: "In His presence is fullness of joy."

But there is, of course, a final, permanent, home of the soul. The book of Revelation tells us symbolically of its wonder and beauty. But the Bible says, "It is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." (I Cor. 2:9)

The big question is not: where is heaven? But, are you prepared to go there?

METHODIST LEADER

Bishop Views Century Of Life

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Americans don't rever old age the way Orientals do.

But even in this youth-obsessed land, we respect the wisdom a man can accumulate in living for a whole century.

Last week, more than 1,000 people gathered in the grand ballroom of New York's Waldorf-Astoria hotel to celebrate the 100th birthday of Bishop Herbert Welch, the grand old man of Methodism.

Herbert Welch was born on the day that Abraham Lincoln fired Gen. George B. McClellan as commander of the Union Army.

He started to school in the year that Andrew Johnson was impeached, and was graduated from college about the time that A. Conan Doyle published his first Sherlock Holmes story.

STARTED CAREER

He began his career as a Methodist minister during the Gay Nineties. By the time of the San Francisco earthquake, he was president of Ohio Wesleyan College.

Shortly before America entered World War I, he was elected a bishop of the Methodist Church, and was sent to the Far East to administer Methodist missionary work in China, Japan and Korea.

He retired for the first time in 1936, but was soon called back to serve as Methodist bishop of the Boston area. He retired again in 1939, but a year later was back in harness, directing the Methodist committee for overseas relief, which distributed more than $8-million in aid to suffering people in many lands during World War II.

In 1948, at the age of 86, Bishop Welch "retired" for the third time.

But he has continued to be almost as active as ever—preaching, lecturing, writing books and generally making himself useful in the service of his Lord.

His 100th birthday last week found him still full of beans. He looks no older than 70, and has a mental and physical vigor which many men of 60 would envy.

CHARACTERISTIC

It was characteristic that his speech at the birthday dinner was entitled "As I Enter My Second Century." Bishop Welch is still looking to the future.

He is a gentle, humorous man, with a vast affection for all sorts and conditions of people. Like a certain beverage which he never touches, he has been mellowed by age.

"A compensation of old age," he said recently, "is that it gives you time enough to change your mind. The haste and rashness of youth give way to a more sober peace. As one looks back over so many years, it is almost a matter of course that he should gain a better perspective, see events and people in their relations, and draw the line more clearly between the important and the trivial.

LESSONS

"One may even learn lessons of tolerance and patience. When I see a good cause moving with exasperating slowness, I can now be almost contented, providing it is moving in the right direction.

"I have come to place less confidence in the complex, more in the simple; less confidence in law, more in persuasion; less reliance upon big people and spectacular events and more reliance upon mere leadership and more upon service

"Among the virtues and graces, I have come to set the highest value on humility, compassion, not pity, understanding rather than mere tolerance, love above and beyond the call of duty, sharing and good cheer."

As his life has lengthened, his creed has shortened. After 100 years as a human being, 88 years as a baptized Christian, and more than 75 years as an ordained minister, he can sum up his deepest convictions in 33 words:

"God's wisdom, power and love are supreme; all men are brothers; God is behind the history of mankind; and loving service is the secret of everlasting joy."

REV. JOHN DALLALIO, paspor of Liberty Baptist Church, 401 Slack St., West Monroe, will be evangelist at 7:30 p.m. daily revival services there starting Monday and extending through the following Sunday. Theme of the revival will be, "Ye Must be Born Again." There will be special music featured at the services. The church nursery will be open.

Church Meeting Is Scheduled Next Sunday

A meeting of persons interested in taking part in activities of the newly organized Messiah Lutheran Church will be held Sunday, Nov. 18, instead of today as previously announced.

The Rev. Charles Vorkoper, pastor, said the purpose of the meeting will be to prepare for the first service of the church December 2. The Lutheran service will be rehearsed and explained, among other things.

The meeting will be held at the parsonage, 2307 Sauvelle Dr., Monroe.

Location of the church and schedule of services will be announced soon.

Many Areas Represented

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—There are only 131 students at the College of the Bible here, but they come from 30 states, one territory and four foreign countries. The school is a graduate seminary of the Disciples of Christ Church.

GETS HEAD START

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)— The ballots from Tuesday's Oregon election still were being counted when the first candidate for 1964 made his appearance.

Jim Bacaloff, 37, a Portland contractor, paid a $100 filing fee for the Republican nomination to Congress from the Third District, which includes the Portland area.

Bacaloff was defeated for the U.S. GOP senatorial nomination in the May primary this year.

Group Asks Prayers For Leadership

The Monroe Ministerial Association last week unanimously approved a resolution calling on residents of the area to pray for the nation and its leaders, and "even our enemies, during this time of international crisis."

The meeting was held last Wednesday at the First Methodist Church, with the Rev. John O. Stewart, president of the organization presiding.

The association announced that it and the West Monroe Ministerial Alliance will cooperate in presenting a series of 13 weekly television panel programs on KNOE-TV, beginning the first Saturday in January.

CHAIRMAN

Dr. W. H. McFadden is chairman of committee arranging program details.

Special guests at the association meeting were Jack Pankey and Jason Johnson of the Ouachita Valley Council of Boy Scouts. Pankey spoke on how the churches and scouts work together in a character building program. He placed emphasis on the religious awards program in scouting. A filmstrip on the subject was also shown.

COMMITTEE

Association President Stewart appointed a nominating committee for new officers of the organization to be elected at the next meeting.

The Rev. Bill Tyndall, protestant chaplain at Louisiana Training Institute, invited the group to hold its December meeting at LTI. A representative of Gideons Society will be guest speaker at the December 12 luncheon meeting.

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: Why does not God tell us the exact location of heaven? By that, I mean, why is it that we have never been told in terms we can understand, the planet or planets which will be our heaven?

ANSWER: God has told us all that is necessary for us to know. If we were told the exact location, greedy men would aspire to invade it; Godless nations would bend every effort to capture it, or clutter it up with space vehicles, and to take as spoil its pearly gates, its jasper walls, and streets of gold.

Most things heavenly can be ours if we are Christian, right here on this earth. Jesus said: "The kingdom of God is within you." God is in heaven, but He is also with us. He has said; "I will never leave thee nor foresake thee." Christ is in heaven. But He said; "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." There is joy in heaven. But the Bible says; "In His presence is fullness of joy."

But there is, of course, a final, permanent, home of the soul. The book of Revelation tells us symbolically of its wonder and beauty. But the Bible says, "It is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." (I Cor. 2:9)

The big question is not : where is heaven? But, are you prepared to go there?

U.S. Guards Big Problem To Meredith

MEMPHIS (AP) — James H. Meredith hinted strongly Saturday that he wanted the removal of federal forces guarding him at the University of Mississippi campus.

In a special news conference, the 29-year-old Negro said the excitement surrounding his presence on the campus made normal school work impossible. He said troops, marshals and newsmen were his biggest problem.

Meredith said he would be willing to risk withdrawal of the guard in hopes of "a situation which will admit normal study.

Of the protective force, Meredith said he wanted removal of the cause which makes the guard necessary, but added quickly "I dont see a cause and I don't think there is a cause."

The news conference was called to deny reports that Meredith was considering withdrawing from the university. "If I ever did, I didn't know about it," he said.

However, the slender, dapper student admitted he was having difficulty keeping up with his studies under the pressure of constant public attention.

He said his abrupt departure from the Oxford, Miss., campus Thursday, which caused him to miss two examinations, was because "I thought I had better come away to think about it a while.

"It had become obvious to me that I couldn't meet other responsibilities and still study and get my lessons like I should," Meredith said. But he affirmed that he had decided to stick it out.

Issues Facing Newly-Elected Congressmen Outlined; Kennedy Program Is Predicted

By United Press International

The main issues confronting the 88th Congress:

Taxes — President Kennedy already has served notice he will propose across-the-board cuts in individual and corporation income taxes. He will ask Congress to offset part of the revenue loss by closing some existing tax "loopholes." Kennedy contends tax relief is necessary to take the brakes off U.S. economic growth. But congressional conservatives argue that spending should be cut first, so tax reduction won't throw the government deep into the red. There will be a brisk battle over the "loophole" closing provisions, with affected interests putting up a strong fight to avoid any changes in present tax benefits.

Medicare — The administration will wage an all-out campaign for approval of its controversial plan to provide health insurance for to aged under Social Security. The proposal was defeated in the Senate this year by a close 52-48 vote. The biggest hurdle will be getting the bill to the House floor over the vigorous opposition of Republicans and some conservative Democrats on the House Ways & Means Committee, which has jurisdiction over all Social Security measures.

Rules Committee — First big fight of the session will come when administration supporters seek to enlarge the House Rules Committee as they succeeded in doing on a temporary basis in the 87th Congress. The Rules Committee decides which legislation is cleared for floor action. Unless it is enlarged by addition of Kennedy Democrats it will be dominated by a conservative coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats hostile to many administration programs. The temporary enlargement in the last Congress was approved by a hairline vote of 217 to 212.

Aid to Education—Kennedy is expected to try again with his proposal for federal assistance to colleges and universities. Both the House and Senate approved bills for aid to higher education last session. But they were unable to get together on a single version. Although Kennedy may repeat for the record his request for aid to public elementary and secondary schools, this program apparently is foredoomed unless the administration can find some way to resolve the religious controversy over inclusion of parochial schools.

Youth Opportunities — On the President's "must" list is legislation to provide new job-training and job-placement opportunities for school dropouts and other unemployed youth. The proposal calls for a revised version of the Civilian Conservation Corps which took unemployed youngsters off the streets and put them to work in the forests during the depression years of the 1930's.

Mass Transit—Federal subsidies will be sought to help cities conquer the problem of traffic strangulation and develop modern rapid transit systems to speed commuters to and from work. This program also was advanced —but fell by the wayside—in the 87th Congress.

Farm Policy—The administration is putting together a new farm plan aimed at permanently curbing the nation's chronic surpluses of feed grains. It hopes the new plan will be somewhat less controversial than the production controls which Congress rejected this year.

Civil Rights—Kennedy may propose legislation to bolster Negro employment opportunities. He avoided a head-on collision with Southern Democrats on civil rights legislation in the 87th Congress. But Northern liberals expect him to grasp the nettle in the new Congress, seeking House action in 1963 and facing the inevitable Senate filibuster in 1964.

PLANTS, NIGHT AND DAY

Rain one night forced most of them to move indoors.

6 Tech Faculty Members Listed On Meet Agenda

RUSTON (Special) — Six members of the Louisiana Tech faculty are listed for parts on programs of the 68th annual convention of the Louisiana Teachers Assn. to be held in New Orleans Nov. 18-21.

At a session of the Business Education Assn. division, the speaker will be introduced by Dr. Irol Balsley, professor of office administration at Tech. The speaker will be Dr. Elvin S. Eyster, chairman of the business education department of Indiana University, of which Mrs. Balsley is a graduate.

I. P. McLane, professor of physical education and director of the student health program at Tech, will speak at a meeting of the Driver and Safety Education Assn. at 2 p.m. on Nov. 20. His topic will be "Developing an Effective Program of Community Relations for Driver Education."

U.S. Guards Big Problem To Meredith

MEMPHIS (AP) — James H. Meredith hinted strongly Saturday that he wanted the removal of federal forces guarding him at the University of Mississippi campus.

In a special news conference, the 29-year-old Negro said the excitement surrounding his presence on the campus made normal school work impossible. He said troops, marshals and newsmen were his biggest problem.

Meredith said he would be willing to risk withdrawal of the guard in hopes of "a situation which will admit normal study.

Of the protective force, Meredith said he wanted removal of the cause which makes the guard necessary, but added quickly "I dont see a cause and I don't think there is a cause."

The news conference was called to deny reports that Meredith was considering withdrawing from the university. "If I ever did, I didn't know about it," he said.

However, the slender, dapper student admitted he was having difficulty keeping up with his studies under the pressure of constant public attention.,

He said his abrupt departure from the Oxford, Miss., campus Thursday, which caused him to miss two examinations, was because "I thought I had better come away to think about it a while.

"It had become obvious to me that I couldn't meet other responsibilities and still study and get my lessons like I should," Meredith said. But he affirmed that he had decided to stick it out.

Issues Facing Newly-Elected Congressmen Outlined; Kennedy Program Is Predicted

By United Press International

The main issues confronting the 88th Congress:

Taxes — President Kennedy already has served notice he will propose across-the-board cuts in individual and corporation income taxes. He will ask Congress to offset part of the revenue loss by closing some existing tax "loopholes." Kennedy contends tax relief is necessary to take the brakes off U.S. economic growth. But congressional conservatives argue that spending should be cut first, so tax reduction won't throw the government deep into the red. There will be a brisk battle over the "loophole" closing provisions, with affected interests putting up a strong fight to avoid any changes in present tax benefits.

Medicare — The administration will wage an all-out campaign for approval of its controversial plan to provide health insurance for to aged under Social Security The proposal was defeated in the Senate this year by a close 52-48 vote. The biggest hurdle will be getting the bill to the House floor over the vigorous opposition of Republicans and some conservative Democrats on the House Ways & Means Committee, which has jurisdiction over all Social Security measures.

Rules Committee — First big fight of the session will come when administration supporters seek to enlarge the House Rules Committee as they succeeded in doing on a temporary basis in the 87th Congress. The Rules Committee decides which legislation is cleared for floor action. Unless it is enlarged by addition of Kennedy Democrats it will be dominated by a conservative coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats hostile to many administration programs. The temporary enlargement in the last Congress was approved by a hairline vote of 217 to 212.

Aid to Education—Kennedy is expected to try again with his proposal for federal assistance to colleges and universities. Both the House and Senate approved bills for aid to higher education last session. But they were unable to get together on a single version Although Kennedy may repeat for the record his request for aid to public elementary and secondary schools, this program apparently is foredoomed unless the administration can find some way to resolve the religious controversy over inclusion of parochial schools.

Youth Opportunities — On the President's "must" list is legislation to provide new job-training and job-placement opportunities for school dropouts and other unemployed youth. The proposal calls for a revised version of the Civilian Conservation Corps which took unemployed youngsters off the streets and put them to work in the forests during the depression years of the 1930's.

Mass Transit—Federal subsidies will be sought to help cities conquer the problem of traffic strangulation and develop modern rapid transit systems to speed commuters to and from work. This program also was advanced —but fell by the wayside—in the 87th Congress.

Farm Policy—The administration is putting together a new farm plan aimed at permanently curbing the nation's chronic surpluses of feed grains. It hopes the new plan will be somewhat less controversial than the production controls which Congress rejected this year.

Civil Rights—Kennedy may propose legislation to bolster Negro employment opportunities. He avoided a head-on collision with Southern Democrats on civil rights legislation in the 87th Congress. But Northern liberals expect him to grasp the nettle in the new Congress, seeking House action in 1963 and facing the inevitable Senate filibuster in 1964.

B. W. BIEDENHARN pulls helicopter from hanger onto ramp at his farm near West Monroe, in preparation for takeoff.

Flying Bubble

Monroe Morning World
SUNDAY FEATURES
Section B, Page One November 11, 1962
Editorials Spotlight Sports

The first privately owned helicopter in north Louisiana is based on a farm near West Monroe. Its owner, B. W. Biedenharn, started flying fixed wing planes back in the days when aviation was still in its pioneering stages. Here is an account of his experiences with the "flying bubble."

A PHOTOGRAPH taken in 1932, shows B. W. Biedenharn, right; his father, J. A. Biedenharn, next to him, and his two brothers from left, Henry, and M. S., standing by Curtiss Wright Robin plane, of which B. W. was pilot.

HERE IS A BIRD'S EYE view photographed from the helicopter of pecan orchard and contour border irrigation system on the Biedenharn farm.

They signal that B. W. Biedenharn is aloft in his "big bubble of air." That is one of the terms he uses in describing his three-passenger model 47 G-2A Bell Helicopter.

The craft, incidentally, is the first privately owned helicopter in north Louisiana. Biedenharn also has the distinction of having owned the first private plane in Monroe, a DeHavilan Gypsy Moth, back in 1930. The craft was a two place biplane. He purchased the helicopter July 21 of this year at Fort Worth, Texas, and completed a course of instruction in three weeks, one-half the time usually required. After passing a flight test under FAA supervision at Fort Worth, he was granted a commercial license.

FLYING TIME

Since that time Biedenharn has flown more than 100 hours with the helicopter and taken up more than 115 persons, most of whom had never been in a 'copter before.

The craft is based at a heliport on his farm on Arrant Road near West Monroe. The port is located about a block from his house, but there is an ideal landing area on a grassy lawn a few yards from the back of the residence.

In his long time of pursuing flying as a hobby and a business adjunct, Biedenharn has never lost his enthusiasm for going aloft. He has flown more than 1,600 hours, and estimates that would amount to more than 160,000 air miles of travel.

"I never cease to be fascinated," he said "at that great big bubble of air and what it can do."

The 'copter is more difficult to fly than an airplane, he said, explaining, "It has five controls which must be used while flying and you still have just two feet and two hands. But still its as simple as can be."

The craft has a cruising speed of 80 to 85 miles an hour, and comes in for a landing and takes off much slower than a fixed wing plane.

"You don't come straight down," he said, "but must have some forward, backward or side motion. The minimum prescribed landing area is called a helistop, which is 20 by 20 feet."

HELIPORT

The hangar on his hill land, pine-tree studded farm is 40 by 48 feet, with a ramp which is 20 feet by 50 feet. He plans to eventually erect a landing port on a downtown Monroe building.

The 'copter weighs about 2,000 pounds. The rotor blades measure 38 feet from tip to tip. The craft is 37 feet in length. The bubble in which pilot and passenger ride has a height of about 7½ feet from the base of the skids underneath. The height of craft from bottom to top is about nine feet.

When cruising through sunny skies, the helicopter is a colorful sight with its blue-tinted plastic bubble and red and white framework. At present it is equipped with dual controls which limits it to pilot and one passenger. With only one control unit, it could accommodate pilot and two passengers.

When in flight, riders in the craft have a virtually unobstructed wide range view of the scenery ahead and below. As Biedenharn described it, "It seems as if you are flying unattached in the air."

Explaining how the machine had been used since he got it, Beidenharn said, "I now have over 100 hours in flying the helicopter, and have had the pleasure of taking up over 115 persons, most of whom have never been up in a helicopter before."

AERIAL VIEW

Those who go up with him have an opportunity to look down on his 816-acre farm, cattle grazing in lush green pastures, a fascinating pattern of contour border irrigation system running through a pecan orchard, a large lake and smaller ponds.

Biedenharn may land the craft on a difficult to reach area surrounded on one side by the large lake on his place. On some occasions he will point out a small white spot on an island surrounded by water in a gravel pit area, then gently bring the 'copter in for a landing on it.

The upward and downward travel of the machine impresses most passengers as being milder motion than that of a high speed elevator.

Many passengers are treated to a panoramic view of nearby Cheniere Lake. In the distance, steam vapors rising from the paper mill in West Monroe, provide an immediate indication of wind direction.

The craft carries enough fuel for two hours and 40 minutes of flight, with some left in reserve for an emergency.

Every day before the helicopter is taken aloft, it is subjected to a thorough check for security and air worthiness. A regular routine of inspection is followed covering the craft from front to rear and top of rotor blades back to landing skids.

The 'copter is housed under the protective canopy of the hangar and brought out only when it is to be used. A pair of small, rubber tired wheels affixed to the skids make it easy for one person to roll it out onto the ramp. The wheels are then raised so the craft rests firmly on the skids which are 10 feet in length and 7½ feet apart.

GAUGES

Before takeoff the pilot must check about six gauges to see that various units are operating properly.

The standard procedure calls for checking to ascertain that motor and rotor speeds are synchronized and that cylinder head temperature and air carburetor temperature are at certain limits before taking off.

How did he come to decide on helicopter flying as a hobby? Here is his explanation:

"I became really interested in helicopters at the recent World Fair in Seattle, Wash., where I saw one on exhibition in May, 1962. I had never flown in one or been near one before. After getting literature from several manufacturers, I became interested in Bell which is manufactured at Fort Worth, Texas, and arranged for an hour's flying lesson which was also my first trip in one. Six weeks later I decided to purchase one, taking my first lesson in my own ship July 21, 1962."

His wife was his first passenger in the new helicopter, and often flies with him when he's not taking someone else.

Air travel is not new to her, he explained, "She learned to fly my Dehavilan Gypsy Moth in the middle 30's."

His wife is the former Miss Mary Elizabeth Eason of New Albany, Miss. The plane in which they took their honeymoon trip Nov. 9, 1932, was the one which in July of that year crashed near Woodbury, Ga. with Biedenharn and two passengers aboard.

IN CROSS-WIND

The craft, a Curtiss Wright Robin, four-place cabin monoplane, was caught in a strong cross-wind at 6,000 feet "which blew me 60 miles off course and running out of gas was forced to land," he said. "The field being muddy caused me to turn over upon contact with the ground."

He recalled that the passengers were M. L. Bawcom, an employee of the Ouachita Candy Co. here, and Ralph Corn, an employee of the Monroe News-Star — World. No one was injured, but the plane was damaged.

His companions asked him what they were going to do after the crash, and he told them, "We'll go to Atlanta and get a plane back to Monroe." And they did.

He was involved in two crackups while flying a DeHavilan Gypsy Moth biplane, but no one was injured in either of these mishaps. The first crackup, he said, occurred at McGehee, Ark. The lone passenger on this flight was Amos Smelser, then of Monroe, now of Sterlington.

Biedenharn recalled how he developed an early interest in airplanes:

FIRST RIDE

"My first ride in an airplane was in 1930. I flew to Shreveport to buy a motor boat and liked my first ride so much I decided to learn to fly and buy a plane instead of a boat. I didn't buy that boat or any since.

"At that time Delta was pioneering the southern route and I was the only passenger on the plane. It was a Stinson 300 six place plane. And I sat right behind the pilot. I was 23 years old at the time."

It was shortly afterwards that he bought his first plane. Those were pioneering days of aviation when the average plane did not have radio communications facilities, he recalled.

Biedenharn has made two round trips to Fort Worth in his helicopter, and plans to fly to New Orleans, December 1, and to Blackshear, Ga. for Christmas. The flight to Georgia will require about four refuelings.

In the meantime, however, Biedenharn and his helicopter will be a familiar sight in the skies over Ouachita Parish.

The first privately owned helicopter in north Louisiana is based on a farm near West Monroe. Its owner, B. W. Biedenharn, started flying fixed wing planes back in the days when aviation was still in its pioneering stages. Here is an account of his experiences with the "flying bubble."

HERE IS A BIRD'S EYE view photographed from the helicopter of pecan orchard and contour border irrigation system on the Biedenharn farm.

A PHOTOGRAPH taken in 1932, shows B. W. Biedenharn, right; his father, J. A. Biedenharn, next to him, and his two brothers from left, Henry, and M. S., standing by Curtiss Wright Robin plane, of which B. W. was pilot.

They signal that B. W. Biedenharn is aloft in his "big bubble of air." That is one of the terms he uses in describing his three-passenger model 47 G-2A Bell Helicopter.

The craft, incidentally, is the first privately owned helicopter in north Louisiana. Biedenharn also has the distinction of having owned the first private plane in Monroe, a DeHavilan Gypsy Moth, back in 1930. The craft was a two place biplane. He purchased the helicopter July 21 of this year at Fort Worth, Texas, and completed a course of instruction in three weeks, one-half the time usually required. After passing a flight test under FAA supervision at Fort Worth, he was granted a commercial license.

FLYING TIME

Since that time Biedenharn has flown more than 100 hours with the helicopter and taken up more than 115 persons, most of whom had never been in a 'copter before.

The craft is based at a heliport on his farm on Arrant Road near West Monroe. The port is located about a block from his house, but there is an ideal landing area on a grassy lawn a few yards from the back of the residence.

In his long time of pursuing flying as a hobby and a business adjunct, Biedenharn has never lost his enthusiasm for going aloft. He has flown more than 1,600 hours, and estimates that would amount to more than 160,000 air miles of travel.

"I never cease to be fascinated," he said "at that great big bubble of air and what it can do."

The 'copter is more difficult to fly than an airplane, he said, explaining, "It has five controls which must be used while flying and you still have just two feet and two hands. But still its as simple as can be."

The craft has a cruising speed of 80 to 85 miles an hour, and comes in for a landing and takes off much slower than a fixed wing plane.

"You don't come straight down," he said, "but must have some forward, backward or side motion. The minimum prescribed landing area is called a helistop, which is 20 by 20 feet."

HELIPORT

The hangar on his hill land, pine-tree studded farm is 40 by 48 feet, with a ramp which is 20 feet by 50 feet. He plans to eventually erect a landing port on a downtown Monroe building.

The 'copter weighs about 2,000 pounds. The rotor blades measure 38 feet from tip to tip. The craft is 37 feet in length. The bubble in which pilot and passenger ride has a height of about 7½ feet from the base of the skids underneath. The height of craft from bottom to top is about nine feet.

When cruising through sunny skies, the helicopter is a colorful sight with its blue-tinted plastic bubble and red and white framework. At present it is equipped with dual controls which limits it to pilot and one passenger. With only one control unit, it could accommodate pilot and two passengers.

When in flight, riders in the craft have a virtually unobstructed wide range view of the scenery ahead and below. As Biedenharn described it, "It seems as if you are flying unattached in the air."

Explaining how the machine had been used since he got it, Beidenharn said, "I now have over 100 hours in flying the helicopter, and have had the pleasure of taking up over 115 persons, most of whom have never been up in a helicopter before."

AERIAL VIEW

Those who go up with him have an opportunity to look down on his 816-acre farm, cattle grazing in lush green pastures, a fascinating pattern of contour border irrigation system running through a pecan orchard, a large lake and smaller ponds.

Biedenharn may land the craft on a difficult to reach area surrounded on one side by the large lake on his place. On some occasions he will point out a small white spot on an island surrounded by water in a gravel pit area, then gently bring the 'copter in for a landing on it.

The upward and downward travel of the machine impresses most passengers as being milder motion than that of a high speed elevator.

Many passengers are treated to a panoramic view of nearby Cheniere Lake. In the distance, steam vapors rising from the paper mill in West Monroe, provide an immediate indication of wind direction.

The craft carries enough fuel for two hours and 40 minutes of flight, with some left in reserve for an emergency.

Every day before the helicopter is taken aloft, it is subjected to a thorough check for security and air worthiness. A regular routine of inspection is followed covering the craft from front to rear and top of rotor blades back to landing skids.

The 'copter is housed under the protective canopy of the hangar and brought out only when it is to be used. A pair of small, rubber tired wheels affixed to the skids make it easy for one person to roll it out onto the ramp. The wheels are then raised so the craft rests firmly on the skids which are 10 feet in length and 7½ feet apart.

GAUGES

Before takeoff the pilot must check about six gauges to see that various units are operating properly.

The standard procedure calls for checking to ascertain that motor and rotor speeds are synchronized and that cylinder head temperature and air carburetor temperature are at certain limits before taking off.

How did he come to decide on helicopter flying as a hobby? Here is his explanation:

"I became really interested in helicopters at the recent World Fair in Seattle, Wash., where I saw one on exhibition in May, 1962. I had never flown in one or been near one before. After getting literature from several manufacturers, I became interested in Bell which is manufactured at Fort Worth, Texas, and arranged for an hour's flying lesson which was also my first trip in one. Six weeks later I decided to purchase one, taking my first lesson in my own ship July 21, 1962."

His wife was his first passenger in the new helicopter, and often flies with him when he's not taking someone else.

Air travel is not new to her, he explained, "She learned to fly my Dehavilan Gypsy Moth in the middle 30's."

His wife is the former Miss Mary Elizabeth Eason of New Albany, Miss. The plane in which they took their honeymoon trip Nov. 9, 1932, was the one which in July of that year crashed near Woodbury, Ga. with Biedenharn and two passengers aboard.

IN CROSS-WIND

The craft, a Curtiss Wright Robin, four-place cabin monoplane, was caught in a strong cross-wind at 6,000 feet "which blew me 60 miles off course and running out of gas was forced to land," he said. "The field being muddy caused me to turn over upon contact with the ground."

He recalled that the passengers were M. L. Bawcom, an employee of the Ouachita Candy Co. here, and Ralph Corn, an employee of the Monroe News-Star — World. No one was injured, but the plane was damaged.

His companions asked him what they were going to do after the crash, and he told them, "We'll go to Atlanta and get a plane back to Monroe." And they did.

He was involved in two crackups while flying a DeHavilan Gypsy Moth biplane, but no one was injured in either of these mishaps. The first crackup, he said, occurred at McGehee, Ark. The lone passenger on this flight was Amos Smelser, then of Monroe, now of Sterlington.

Biedenharn recalled how he developed an early interest in airplanes:

FIRST RIDE

"My first ride in an airplane was in 1930. I flew to Shreveport to buy a motor boat and liked my first ride so much I decided to learn to fly and buy a plane instead of a boat. I didn't buy that boat or any since.

"At that time Delta was pioneering the southern route and I was the only passenger on the plane. It was a Stinson 300 six place plane. And I sat right behind the pilot. I was 23 years old at the time."

It was shortly afterwards that he bought his first plane. Those were pioneering days of aviation when the average plane did not have radio communications facilities, he recalled.

Biedenharn has made two round trips to Fort Worth in his helicopter, and plans to fly to New Orleans, December 1, and to Blackshear, Ga. for Christmas. The flight to Georgia will require about four refuelings.

In the meantime, however, Biedenharn and his helicopter will be a familiar sight in the skies over Ouachita Parish.

Welfare Versus Faith

"The old order changeth, yielding place to new," so says one of the poets writing about new developments near the end of King Arthur's life.

But sometimes the change of the old order isn't possible without a fight, particularly when some God-fearing, Pennsylvania farming people are involved. To them, government welfare violates basic religious principles. Their lives are distinguished by devout religious faith, hard work, frugality and self-sufficiency.

Such a way of life is regarded as quaint by many Americans. The end product, however, is not so quaint. Tourists passing through Amish settlements in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana marvel at the fertility of the fields, the fat cattle, sleek horses and the freshly painted houses and barns.

Perhaps more significant in this day of rapidly growing cities and social problems is the fact that the "plain people" have no crime rate, no divorce or broken homes, no juvenile delinquency, no unemployment or old-age problems.

Family and neighbors are to the Amish his insurance. And it was the inclusion of self-supporting farmers in the 1954 change in the Social Security code which brought about a clash between the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and the Amish.

Described as a classic case by the Reader's Digest was that of Valentine Byler, a western Pennsylvania Amish farmer, versus the United States of America.

Late in 1959, agents of the Internal Revenue Service computed Byler's Social Security taxes for the three previous years at $214.45. Presented with the bill, Byler explained:

"We Amish pay our taxes because the Bible says, 'Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's.' But our religion forbids insurance."

To arguments that Social Security is not technically insurance, but a tax, he replied, "Doesn't the title say 'Old Age, Survivors and Disability Insurance'?"

The agents tried to levy on Byler's bank account, but he had none. When they served him with a summons to appear in court, he ignored it. So they cited him for contempt and Byler was brought into the U.S. District Court in Pittsburgh. The judge looked at Byler and demanded of the agents:

"Don't you have anything better to do than to take a peaceful man off his farm and drag him into court?" He dismissed the case.

But the Internal Revenue service continued to move forward against the Amish, particularly Byler who appeared to be a test case for an old order of freedom which saw no need for a change.

Reluctantly, the Amish decided to push the case as an example of unlawful seizure of private property. Thus the stage is set for a trial, which to many Americans in all 50 states will be a sad reminder of how far we've drifted from the founding fathers' concept of government as something to foster and not squelch those independent virtues that made America what it is.

Who Is Spying Now?

When former U-2 Pilot Francis Gary Powers of the United States Central Intelligence Agency was forced down in Russia, and failed to destroy his craft, as he had been ordered to do, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev let out a terrific roar and acted as if the United States had committed an unpardonable diplomatic sin. That was to be expected but when the United States government acted the same way and apologized, the situation became ridiculous.

Now a well-known news commentator has reported authoritatively that Soviet jet reconnaissance flights are being made over the United States, with the planes taking off in Cuba and flying as far north as Georgia and as far west as Texas. As far as can be determined, this has not caused any of the New Frontier administration members so much as to bat an eye, nor do congress and the people seem particularly aroused.

Why is it routine for Soviet planes to make spy trips over this country when the discovery of one American plane over Russia caused such an international uproar that the trip was first denied by this country and then admitted, along with an apology?

It is not very comforting to think that Soviet planes are flying over the southern states, watching what we are doing and, in all probability, mapping points of attack, yet our officials accept it matter-of-factly. There likely is not much we can do about it but neither was there much Russia could do about our U-2 flights except to complain. No one thinks a complaint by the United States to Russia would do any good and there was no reason for the United States to take the Russian complaint so seriously. Most of the time since the end of World War II we've been running scared from Russia but on the few occasions we have stood our ground Russia has back-tracked. A firm position has always payed off, so why are we wishy-washy?

Officers Eying Officers

Memphis is about to create a sort of officers-watching-officers setup which Chief of Police MacDonald says "is not going to be a popular job." The Memphis police internal security squad will be established next year if money for the project is approved.

A primary objective of the internal security squad would be to guard against violation of "rules, regulations and even laws," says the International Association of Police Chiefs.

The squad would supervise all aspects of police work, the chief said. It would maintain continuing supervision of equipment, records, training and investigations to insure that all personnel are adequately performing their duties.

"In effect, the unit would be a built-in team of efficiency experts for the police department," Chief MacDonald said.

It would handle complaints against officers "and take this out of the hands of the officers' immediate superiors," a job for which special training will be provided.

"This isn't going to be undercover work. It will be out in the open. There'll be some resentment but not much. The FBI does this and we can do it, too," Chief MacDonald said.

This experiment is certain to arouse considerable interest and speculation in other police departments throughout the south. As the chief says, it won't be popular among the officers, many of whom would prefer to be directly responsible to their immediate superiors than to efficiency experts, some of whom might be long on theory and short on actual experience in dealing with the officers' problems.

In some cities police scandals have been disclosed but this is the exception rather than the rule. If police must investigate themselves, there is still the question of whether the efficiency experts would be better than the seasoned officers in the matter of ordinary direction and discipline.

Judge Lashes At Kennedy

A federal judge is doing some astonishing talking about the President and his brother, Attorney General Robert Kennedy.

District Judge Waldo Rogers, Albuquerque, N. M., has bluntly and caustically criticized the Kennedys for failing to fill a long-standing, logjamming vacancy on the federal bench in that state.

The urgently - needed judgeship has been unfilled since last March. That was when Judge Carl Hatch, 72, one - time Democratic senator from New Mexico, retired because of poor health.

Despite a heavily crowded docket and a six weeks absence by Judge Rogers because of surgery, the months have gone by with the administration doing nothing about naming a successor to Hatch. There has been no explanation for this curious inaction. Inquiries at the White House and Justice Department have brought no answers.

"I am led to the conclusion that, consciously or unconsciously, the administration is attempting to give a note of stark realism to the brand new, grand New Frontier by abrogating a completely filled federal bench, and with dissatisfied members of this jurisdiction there might be effected justice by vigilantes.

"Long before now, there should have been appointed a permanent federal judge for this district. There are a number of men in the political party now in power who would make admirable federal judges for New Mexico. I won't name them; that might be the kiss of death. But I fail utterly to understand why they won't or can't make an appointment. Certainly they have had plenty of time to do so.

"In the meanwhile, I will do my best to avoid vigilante justice."

A one - time Republican state judge, Rogers was named to the federal bench by President Eisenhower. Rogers is noted for his outspokenness and sharp comments from the bench. Lawyers who practice before him are very circumspect in their attitude.

ANOTHER MYSTERIOUS VACANCY - No judge or anyone else has said anything about it publicly, but there also has been a long — unfilled federal judgeship in Massachusetts.

The reason for that is as unexplained as in New Mexico.

One report circulating among politicos is that the district judgeship in Massachusetts is being "kept on ice" for Senator Benjamin Smith, classmate of the President who was named to his seat and is now relinquishing it to his 30-year-old brother, Teddy. How much there is to this inside tale remains to be seen.

Actually, there are 16 federal judgeships that the President and Attorney General Robert Kennedy have left dangling in the air for months — in most instances without apparent reason.

Since the President took office 22 months ago, he has had the opportunity to appoint 142 federal judges — 10 circuit and 132 district.

This is more than any other President in a comparable period. This total is approximately one-third of the entire federal judiciary, and is greater than all the federal judges named by Presidents Harding, Coolidge and Hoover.

There are now 409 federal judges, including the 16 mysteriously unfilled vacancies.

Views Of Our Readers

Civil Defense Needs

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

May I commend you for the editorial appearing in the Monday, November 5, 1962, edition of the Monroe Morning World regarding Civil Defense. It is encouraging to see such a strong stand taken and also the emphasis given to the fact that Civil Defense is the responsibility of the federal government. Actually, it is nations, rather than their political subdivisions, that carry on warfare and have the responsibility for defending their people. The American people have the constitutional right to look to Washington for vigorous leadership and the use of national resources, in developing many kinds of defenses necessary for the protection of the civilian population should atomic and hydrogen bomb warfare occur. Such protection would not only be for the immediate welfare of our people but also to enable us to fight back our Communist enemy.

None of us can really perceive the potentials for horror, the many millions of persons who could be killed or seriously injured, the destruction of our industrial and commercial enterprises, our farms and factories which is a very real potentiality should missile warfare with atomic and hydrogen bombs ever occur. There would be no genuine front line warfare with relatively protected rear areas such as we have had in the past. The distinction between military forces and civilian population would by no means be as clearly drawn as has been true in the past. Each of us, whether in uniform or not, would be a soldier in a very real sense in protecting our nation and fighting back. Preparation for this kind of warfare is by no means solely one of army, navy, and air corps with the associated weapons necessary, but calls for an additional total preparation in every community of the nation, the protection of our population and our economic resources to the fullest extent possible. Such total defense preparation is not accomplished in a day, a month or a year. If we assume that Mr. Khrushchev was planning to "push the button" a year from today, it would already be too late.

Those of us who have had some responsibility for Civil Defense are frequently disheartened by the lack of genuine interest and strong leadership at the national level regardless of the administration in power. Furthermore, there is reason to be concerned at the state and local levels as well. For example, it is disconcerting to see public buildings being erected or planned without any consideration being given to building in fallout protection which could be done during the building state at a relatively small increase in cost. It is disconcerting to see how lackadaisical the public is until a crisis occurs and then the frantic rush for information, the hasty and often ill - thought - out preparations which some people attempt and then the falling back into a "fool's paradise" of security and inactivity as soon as the crisis tension abates.

It is for this reason that your editorial was most timely. Can you keep it up? Would it be of value to have at least one weekly column devoted to Civil Defense? I feel certain that those of us active with Civil Defense could supply you with ample material to have at least a weekly article.

Thanks again.

Another On UNICEF

Wisner, La.

To the Editor:

Since a Mr. R. C. White, Jr. has chosen to take one phrase from my recent letter regarding the UNICEF program and twist a rather harsh conclusion from it, I'd like to answer his remarks in the most Christian way I know.

First let me attack the pagan IDEA of death that a great many people seem to hold. There are many things worse than death for the person who has redemption through Christ. In my life I have heard many Christian people beg the Lord to take them, to get them out of their pain and suffering in life. I believe that all children below the time of personal spiritual accountability are cared for by the wondrous grace of Christ. For the person who is in God's Grace death is not a horrible thing. Paul wrote, "For me to live is Christ, to die is gain."

Death by starvation seems to most anyone a horrible thing. I agree with those who feel that we should feed the hungry if we can by keeping them alive at the same time give them something to live for. A careful student of the scriptures will see that Jesus' feeding and healing ministry was secondary to his offer of the abundant life. My argument in the recent letter is just this. We must emphasize rolling back Communism that we may offer the world abundant life.

THE ALMANAC

By United Press International

Today is Sunday, Nov. 11, the 315th day of 1962 with 50 to follow. This is Veterans Day.

The moon is full.

The morning star is Mars.

The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1889, the state of Washington became the 42nd state admitted to the Union.

In 1918, the first World War ended with the signing of an armistice between the Allied and Central powers in a railway car in France.

In 1957, Jamaica became the first British West Indian colony to achieve internal self-government.

A thought for the day: The American writer, William Woodward, said: "The turning point of lives are not the great moments. The real crises are often concealed in occurrences so trivial in appearance that they pass unobserved."

Sit-In Decisions

Seven Appeals Heard By United States Supreme Court Thorny

The lunch counter "sit - in" cases, argued in the Supreme Court the past week, present that tribunal with its thorniest civil rights problem since the school desegregation cases of the early 1950's.

The court granted an extraordinarily long time for the arguments, which because of the election attracted less general attention than otherwise would have been the case.

Almost all the previous civil rights cases have involved Federal, State or local governments — public schools, state - licensed bus companies, or municipal swimming pools.

These sit - in demonstrations, however, all took places on private property. State action took place in almost every instance after the proprietors told the demonstrators to leave. The demonstrators were then arrested and charged with trespassing on private property.

Out of a number of sit - in cases dating from 1960, the Court decided to hear arguments on seven, being appealed from North Carolina, Louisiana, Alabama, South Carolina and Georgia.

The facts of each case are slightly different, but the problems common to all of them raise these questions:

—Does a person who operates a store open to all races have a right to segregate races in one section of the store — the lunch counter?

— Even if he does, can he legally call on help from the State — that is, the police — to evict or arrest people who violate his store policy?

— If lunch counter segregation is unconstitutional, can members of country clubs, lodges or any other organization keep out members on racial grounds?

— Does a state or city government become responsible for a store proprietor's segregation policy if a statute requires segregated lunch counter seating?

In recent years the Supreme Court has approached closer and closer to these issues. It has ruled that private restaurants cannot discriminate if they are part of public air, bus or rail line facilities. They ruled that a restaurant which merely leases space from a city parking lot cannot discriminate.

Last year, the Court took up the first sit - in case, which involved prosecution of demonstrators in Baton Rouge, La., on grounds of disturbing the peace. Although local police said the arrests were necessary to prevent disorder from arising, the Court ruled there was no evidence any disturbance occurred.

The Baton Rouge case did not raise the issue of trespassing, however. In the view of the state governments fighting the appeals, this is the central issue. They argue it is one of the time-honored principles of the common law that the owner of property has the right to determine who shall be allowed on his land. They say the law also upholds the right of the owner to order people off his property once they are there.

One exception which remains in the common law since the days of medieval England applies to "innkeepers", who are barred from turning away peaceable clients, but the innkeeper doctrine, the states insist, has no relation to a five and dime store.

Sweeping away the trespass law, according to North Carolina Attorney General T. W. Bruton, would impose a completely new standard of social behavior. Accepting the demonstrators' arguments fully, he states, would require "every citizen to select his personal friends and associates according to a racial or ethnic cross - section which would be made up of persons having different and varied ancestries."

An extreme view of the situation would invoke the Constitution to prevent the police — as a state agency — from enforcing trespass code where racial discrimination appears to be involved.

One 14 - year - old case cited as a precedent here is the decision which ruled out so - called "racial covenants" which attempted to write clauses in real estate deeds permanently barring sale of the property to minority groups. The Court held, in effect, that the covenants are simply not enforceable by law—thus making them valueless.

The Justice Department, in a brief filed as a friend of the Court, has urged a middle course which would reverse the convictions of the "sit - ins" without reaching the fundamental Constitutional question of the trespass law.

The Justice Department urges the Court to note that in most of the sit - in cases the lunch counter owners were required by local ordinances or by state law to maintain segregated eating facilities.

The states "share the responsibility for the invidious discrimination," the Department's brief states. In the Department's view, the convictions can be set aside on the grounds that the state (or city) set up the very conditions which led to the arrests.

DR. PETER J. STEINCROHN

Man Effeminate

Husband, Father Likes To Wear Women's Clothes At Night

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Would you please help me before I lose my reason? We have been married 20 years and have two children who are in their teens.

My husband is a man by day but insists on dressing up like a woman at night! He spends a lot of money on women's clothes and shoes. He seems to be so happy if we don't interfere with him or try to stop him. When we do, then real trouble starts in the family.

I am about fed up with his actions and the children are getting a terrible, inferiority complex — and so am I, trying to cover up for him. He says he wants his privacy; so we can't have friends in for fear they will see him all dressed up like a woman.

He is not at all a bad fellow but what I would like to know, Dr. Steincrohn, is should I get medical aid for him? Or should I call the police? The Bible says it is a sin for a man to be effeminate. — Brokenhearted.

Comment: There's a name for this apparent weakness in your husband. We call it "transvestism" (an abnormal desire to wear the clothes of the opposite sex). I can see how it would disturb you and your children. The remedy, however, is not simple. There is some deep psychological disturbance which only a psychiatrist can handle. That is your next move. But can you get him to agree?

Incidentally, I know many readers will wonder if it is normal for so many women to wear slacks. Isn't this transvestism, they ask? Isn't this an abnormal desire to wear clothes of the opposite sex?

In a way, I suppose this is true. But what is normal or abnormal usually depends upon what is accepted as the social norm.

A woman who wears slacks occasionally is considered normal. However, if one has discarded all of her feminine apparel in favor of an all-slack wardrobe, I'd be tempted to make the diagnosis of transvestism in her case, too.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My son, 18, has begun to lose his hair quite rapidly. He has worn a flat top for several years and his hair line is receding. His father and I feel that the constant combing and brushing he does to make his hair stand up is causing this condition, but his barber tells him no. Our doctor, who is also bald, says there is nothing that can be done about it. Do you agree? —Mrs. H.

Comment: I would consider any bald doctor an expert on what ca and cannot be done for loss o hair. You can make a safe wage that he has talked to quite a fe of his dermatologist colleague and has read up on the probler in many medical journals. If the were even a slight gleam of ho on the subject he would kno about it. The fact that he is st bald is the answer.

There's no cure for baldne of the ordinary type. Please b lieve this, or you will go spen ing money on fake promises cure. Lately, many people ha asked me about the new plas surgery which grafts hair fro another part of the body to scalp. All I can say, is that I were bald I would prefer wait until something simpler ca along than submitting to an eration to get some hair on head. I may sound gruff, bu hate to see millions spent ne lessly on baldness "cures."

Dr. Steincrohn's leaflet, "H To Overcome Your Child's Gr est Menace: Accidents," will mailed to you on receipt o stamped, self - addressed en ope and 10 cents in coin for h ling. Address your request to Steincrohn, in care of this n paper.

Such a way of life is regarded as quaint by many Americans. The end product, however, is not so quaint. Tourists passing through Amish settlements in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana marvel at the fertility of the fields, the fat cattle, sleek horses and the freshly painted houses and barns.

Perhaps more significant in this day of rapidly growing cities and social problems is the fact that the "plain people" have no crime rate, no divorce or broken homes, no juvenile delinquency, no unemployment or old-age problems.

Family and neighbors are to the Amish his insurance. And it was the inclusion of self-supporting farmers in the 1954 change in the Social Security code which brought about a clash between the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and the Amish.

Described as a classic case by the Reader's Digest was that of Valentine Byler, a western Pennsylvania Amish farmer, versus the United States of America.

Late in 1959, agents of the Internal Revenue Service computed Byler's Social Security taxes for the three previous years at $214.43. Presented with the bill, Byler explained:

"We Amish pay our taxes because the Bible says, 'Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's.' But our religion forbids insurance."

To arguments that Social Security is not technically insurance, but a tax, he replied, "Doesn't the title say 'Old Age, Survivors and Disability Insurance'?"

The agents tried to levy on Byler's bank account, but he had none. When they served him with a summons to appear in court, he ignored it. So they cited him for contempt and Byler was brought into the U.S. District Court in Pittsburgh. The judge looked at Byler and demanded of the agents:

"Don't you have anything better to do than to take a peaceful man off his farm and drag him into court?" He dismissed the case.

But the Internal Revenue service continued to move forward against the Amish, particularly Byler who appeared to be a test case for an old order of freedom which saw no need for a change.

Reluctantly, the Amish decided to push the case as an example of unlawful seizure of private property. Thus the stage is set for a trial, which to many Americans in all 50 states will be a sad reminder of how far we've drifted from the founding fathers' concept of government as something to foster and not squelch those independent virtues that made America what it is.

Who Is Spying Now?

When former U-2 Pilot Francis Gary Powers of the United States Central Intelligence Agency was forced down in Russia, and failed to destroy his craft, as he had been ordered to do, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev let out a terrific roar and acted as if the United States had committed an unpardonable diplomatic sin. That was to be expected but when the United States government acted the same way and apologized, the situation became ridiculous.

Now a well-known news commentator has reported authoritatively that Soviet jet reconnaissance flights are being made over the United States, with the planes taking off in Cuba and flying as far north as Georgia and as far west as Texas. As far as can be determined, this has not caused any of the New Frontier administration members so much as to bat an eye, nor do congress and the people seem particularly aroused.

Why is it routine for Soviet planes to make spy trips over this country when the discovery of one American plane over Russia caused such an international uproar that the trip was first denied by this country and then admitted, along with an apology?

It is not very comforting to think that Soviet planes are flying over the southern states, watching what we are doing and, in all probability, mapping points of attack, yet our officials accept it matter-of-factly. There likely is not much we can do about it but neither was there much Russia could do about our U-2 flights except to complain. No one thinks a complaint by the United States to Russia would do any good and there was no reason for the United States to take the Russian complaint so seriously. Most of the time since the end of World War II we've been running scared from Russia but on the few occasions we have stood our ground Russia has back-tracked. A firm position has always payed off, so why are we wishy-washy?

Officers Eying Officers

Memphis is about to create a sort of officers-watching-officers setup which Chief of Police MacDonald says "is not going to be a popular job." The Memphis police internal security squad will be established next year if money for the project is approved.

A primary objective of the internal security squad would be to guard against violation of "rules, regulations and even laws," says the International Association of Police Chiefs.

The squad would supervise all aspects of police work, the chief said. It would maintain continuing supervision of equipment, records, training and investigations to insure that all personnel are adequately performing their duties.

"In effect, the unit would be a built-in team of efficiency experts for the police department," Chief MacDonald said.

It would handle complaints against officers "and take this out of the hands of the officers' immediate superiors," a job for which special training will be provided.

"This isn't going to be undercover work. It will be out in the open. There'll be some resentment but not much. The FBI does this and we can do it, too," Chief MacDonald said.

This experiment is certain to arouse considerable interest and speculation in other police departments throughout the south. As the chief says, it won't be popular among the officers, many of whom would prefer to be directly responsible to their immediate superiors than to efficiency experts, some of whom might be long on theory and short on actual experience in dealing with the officers' problems.

In some cities police scandals have been disclosed but this is the exception rather than the rule. If police must investigate themselves, there is still the question of whether the efficiency experts would be better than the seasoned officers in the matter of ordinary direction and discipline.

Judge Lashes At Kennedy

A federal judge is doing some astonishing talking about the President and his brother, Attorney General Robert Kennedy.

District Judge Waldo Rogers, Albuquerque, N. M., has bluntly and caustically criticized the Kennedys for failing to fill a long-standing, logjamming vacancy on the federal bench in that state.

The urgently - needed judgeship has been unfilled since last March. That was when Judge Carl Hatch, 72, one - time Democratic senator from New Mexico, retired because of poor health.

Despite a heavily crowded docket and a six weeks absence by Judge Rogers because of surgery, the months have gone by with the administration doing nothing about naming a successor to Hatch. There has been no explanation for this curious inaction. Inquiries at the White House and Justice Department have brought no answers.

"I am led to the conclusion that, consciously or unconsciously, the administration is attempting to give a note of stark realism to the brand new, grand New Frontier by abrogating a completely filled federal bench, and with dissatisfied members of this jurisdiction there might be effected justice by vigilantes.

"Long before now, there should have been appointed a permanent federal judge for this district. There are a number of men in the political party now in power who would make admirable federal judges for New Mexico. I won't name them; that might be the kiss of death. But I fail utterly to understand why they won't or can't make an appointment. Certainly they have had plenty of time to do so.

"In the meanwhile, I will do my best to avoid vigilante justice."

A one - time Republican state judge, Rogers was named to the federal bench by President Eisenhower. Rogers is noted for his outspokenness and sharp comments from the bench. Lawyers who practice before him are very circumspect in their attitude.

ANOTHER MYSTERIOUS VACANCY - No judge or anyone else has said anything about it publicly, but there also has been a long — unfilled federal judgeship in Massachusetts.

The reason for that is as unexplained as in New Mexico.

One report circulating among politicos is that the district judgeship in Massachusetts is being "kept on ice" for Senator Benjamin Smith, classmate of the President who was named to his seat and is now relinquishing it to his 30-year-old brother, Teddy. How much there is to this inside tale remains to be seen.

Actually, there are 16 federal judgeships that the President and Attorney General Robert Kennedy have left dangling in the air for months — in most instances without apparent reason.

Since the President took office 22 months ago, he has had the opportunity to appoint 142 federal judges — 10 circuit and 132 district.

This is more than any other President in a comparable period. This total is approximately one-third of the entire federal judiciary, and is greater than all the federal judges named by Presidents Harding, Coolidge and Hoover.

There are now 409 federal judges, including the 16 mysteriously unfilled vacancies.

Civil Defense Needs

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

May I commend you for the editorial appearing in the Monday, November 5, 1962, edition of the Monroe Morning World regarding Civil Defense. It is encouraging to see such a strong stand taken and also the emphasis given to the fact that Civil Defense is the responsibility of the federal government. Actually, it is nations, rather than their political subdivisions, that carry on warfare and have the responsibility for defending their people. The American people have the constitutional right to look to Washington for vigorous leadership and the use of national resources, in developing many kinds of defenses necessary for the protection of the civilian population should atomic and hydrogen bomb warfare occur. Such protection would not only be for the immediate welfare of our people but also to enable us to fight back our Communist enemy.

None of us can really perceive the potentials for horror, the many millions of persons who could be killed or seriously injured, the destruction of our industrial and commercial enterprises, our farms and factories which is a very real potentiality should missile warfare with atomic and hydrogen bombs ever occur. There would be no genuine front line warfare with relatively protected rear areas such as we have had in the past. The distinction between military forces and civilian population would by no means be as clearly drawn as has been true in the past. Each of us, whether in uniform or not, would be a soldier in a very real sense in protecting our nation and fighting back. Preparation for this kind of warfare is by no means solely one of army, navy, and air corps with the associated weapons necessary, but calls for an additional total preparation in every community of the nation, the protection of our population and our economic resources to the fullest extent possible. Such total defense preparation is not accomplished in a day, a month or a year. If we assume that Mr. Khrushchev was planning to "push the button" a year from today, it would already be too late.

Those of us who have had some responsibility for Civil Defense are frequently disheartened by the lack of genuine interest and strong leadership at the national level regardless of the administration in power. Furthermore, there is reason to be concerned at the state and local levels as well. For example, it is disconcerting to see public buildings being erected or planned without any consideration being given to building in fallout protection which could be done during the building state at a relatively small increase in cost. It is disconcerting to see how lackadaisical the public is until a crisis occurs and then the frantic rush for information, the hasty and often ill - thought - out preparations which some people attempt and then the falling back into a "fool's paradise" of security and inactivity as soon as the crisis tension abates.

It is for this reason that your editorial was most timely. Can you keep it up? Would it be of value to have at least one weekly column devoted to Civil Defense? I feel certain that those of us active with Civil Defense could supply you with ample material to have at least a weekly article.

Thanks again.

Another On UNICEF

Wisner, La.

To the Editor:

Since a Mr. R. C. White, Jr. has chosen to take one phrase from my recent letter regarding the UNICEF program and twist a rather harsh conclusion from it, I'd like to answer his remarks in the most Christian way I know.

First let me attack the pagan IDEA of death that a great many people seem to hold. There are many things worse than death for the person who has redemption through Christ. In my life I have heard many Christian people beg the Lord to take them, to get them out of their pain and suffering in life. I believe that all children below the time of personal spiritual accountability are cared for by the wondrous grace of Christ. For the person who is in God's Grace death is not a horrible thing. Paul wrote, "For me to live is Christ, to die is gain."

Death by starvation seems to most anyone a horrible thing. I agree with those who feel that we should feed the hungry if we can by keeping them alive at the same time give them something to live for. A careful student of the scriptures will see that Jesus' feeding and healing ministry was secondary to his offer of the abundant life. My argument in the recent letter is just this. We must emphasize rolling back Communism that we may offer the world abundant life.

THE ALMANAC

By United Press International

Today is Sunday, Nov. 11, the 315th day of 1962 with 50 to follow. This is Veterans Day.

The moon is full.

The morning star is Mars.

The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1889, the state of Washington became the 42nd state admitted to the Union.

In 1918, the first World War ended with the signing of an armistice between the Allied and Central powers in a railway car in France.

In 1957, Jamaica became the first British West Indian colony to achieve internal self-government.

A thought for the day: The American writer, William Woodward, said: "The turning point of lives are not the great moments. The real crises are often concealed in occurrences so trivial in appearance that they pass unobserved."

Sit-In Decisions

Seven Appeals Heard By United States Supreme Court Thorny

The lunch counter "sit - in" cases, argued in the Supreme Court the past week, present that tribunal with its thorniest civil rights problem since the school desegregation cases of the early 1950's.

The court granted an extraordinarily long time for the arguments, which because of the election attracted less general attention than otherwise would have been the case.

Almost all the previous civil rights cases have involved Federal, State or local governments — public schools, state - licensed bus companies, or municipal swimming pools.

These sit - in demonstrations, however, all took places on private property. State action took place in almost every instance after the proprietors told the demonstrators to leave. The demonstrators were then arrested and charged with trespassing on private property.

Out of a number of sit - in cases dating from 1960, the Court decided to hear arguments on seven, being appealed from North Carolina, Louisiana, Alabama, South Carolina and Georgia.

The facts of each case are slightly different, but the problems common to all of them raise these questions:

—Does a person who operates a store open to all races have a right to segregate races in one section of the store — the lunch counter?

— Even if he does, can he legally call on help from the State — that is, the police — to evict or arrest people who violate his store policy?

— If lunch counter segregation is unconstitutional, can members of country clubs, lodges or any other organization keep out members on racial grounds?

— Does a state or city government become responsible for a store proprietor's segregation policy if a statute requires segregated lunch counter seating?

In recent years the Supreme Court has approached closer and closer to these issues. It has ruled that private restaurants cannot discriminate if they are part of public air, bus or rail line facilities. They ruled that a restaurant which merely leases space from a city parking lot cannot discriminate.

Last year, the Court took up the first sit - in case, which involved prosecution of demonstrators in Baton Rouge, La., on grounds of disturbing the peace. Although local police said the arrests were necessary to prevent disorder from arising, the Court ruled there was no evidence any disturbance occurred.

The Baton Rouge case did not raise the issue of trespassing, however. In the view of the state governments fighting the appeals, this is the central issue. They argue it is one of the time-honored principles of the common law that the owner of property has the right to determine who shall be allowed on his land. They say the law also upholds the right of the owner to order people off his property once they are there.

One exception which remains in the common law since the days of medieval England applies to "innkeepers", who are barred from turning away peaceable clients, but the innkeeper doctrine, the states insist, has no relation to a five and dime store.

Sweeping away the trespass law, according to North Carolina Attorney General T. W. Bruton, would impose a completely new standard of social behavior. Accepting the demonstrators' arguments fully, he states, would require "every citizen to select his personal friends and associates according to a racial or ethnic cross - section which would be made up of persons having different and varied ancestries."

An extreme view of the situation would invoke the Constitution to prevent the police — as a state agency — from enforcing trespass code where racial discrimination appears to be involved.

One 14 - year - old case cited as a precedent here is the decision which ruled out so - called "racial covenants" which attempted to write clauses in real estate deeds permanently barring sale of the property to minority groups. The Court held, in effect, that the covenants are simply not enforceable by law—this making them valueless.

The Justice Department, in a brief filed as a friend of the Court, has urged a middle course which would reverse the convictions of the "sit - ins" without reaching the fundamental Constitutions question of the trespass law.

The Justice Department urges the Court to note that in most of the sit - in cases the lunch counter owners were required by by local ordinances or by state law to maintain segregated eating facilities.

The states "share the responsibility for the invidious discrimination," the Department's brief states. In the Department's view, the convictions can be set aside on the grounds that the state (or city) set up the very conditions which led to the arrests.

DR. PETER J. STEINCROHN

Man Effeminate

Husband, Father Likes To Wear Women's Clothes At Night

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Would you please help me before I lose my reason? We have been married 20 years and have two children who are in their teens.

My husband is a man by day but insists on dressing up like a woman at night! He spends a lot of money on women's clothes and shoes. He seems to be so happy if we don't interfere with him or try to stop him. When we do, then real trouble starts in the family.

I am about fed up with his actions and the children are getting a terrible, inferiority complex — and so am I, trying to cover up for him. He says he wants his privacy; so we can't have friends in for fear they will see him all dressed up like a woman.

He is not at all a bad fellow but what I would like to know, Dr. Steincrohn, is should I get medical aid for him? Or should I call the police? The Bible says it is a sin for a man to be effeminate. — Brokenhearted.

Comment: There's a name for this apparent weakness in your husband. We call it "transvestism" (an abnormal desire to wear the clothes of the opposite sex). I can see how it would disturb you and your children. The remedy, however, is not simple. There is some deep psychological disturbance which only a psychiatrist can handle. That is your next move. But can you get him to agree?

Incidentally, I know many readers will wonder if it is normal for so many women to wear slacks. Isn't this transvestism, they ask? Isn't this an abnormal desire to wear clothes of the opposite sex?

In a way, I suppose this is true. But what is normal or abnormal usually depends upon what is accepted as the social norm.

A woman who wears slacks occasionally is considered normal. However, if one has discarded all of her feminine apparel in favor of an all-slack wardrobe, I'd be tempted to make the diagnosis of transvestism in her case, too.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My son, 18, has begun to lose his hair quite rapidly. He has worn a flat top for several years and his hair line is receding. His father and I feel that the constant combing and brushing he does to make his hair stand up is causing this condition, but his barber tells him no. Our doctor, who is also bald, says there is nothing that can be done about it. Do you agree? —Mrs. H.

Comment: I would consider any bald doctor an expert on what can and cannot be done for loss of hair. You can make a safe wager that he has talked to quite a few of his dermatologist colleagues, and has read up on the problem in many medical journals. If there were even a slight gleam of light on the subject he would know about it. The fact that he is still bald is the answer.

There's no cure for bladness of the ordinary type. Please believe this, or you will go spending money on fake promises for cure. Lately, many people have asked me about the new plastic surgery which grafts hair from another part of the body to the scalp. All I can say, is that if I were bald I would prefer to wait until something simpler came along than submitting to an operation to get some hair on my head. I may sound gruff, but I hate to see millions spent needlessly on baldness "cures."

Dr. Steincrohn's leaflet, "How To Overcome Your Child's Greatest Menace: Accidents," will be mailed to you on receipt of a stamped, self - addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin for handling. Address your request to Dr. Steincrohn, in care of this newspaper.

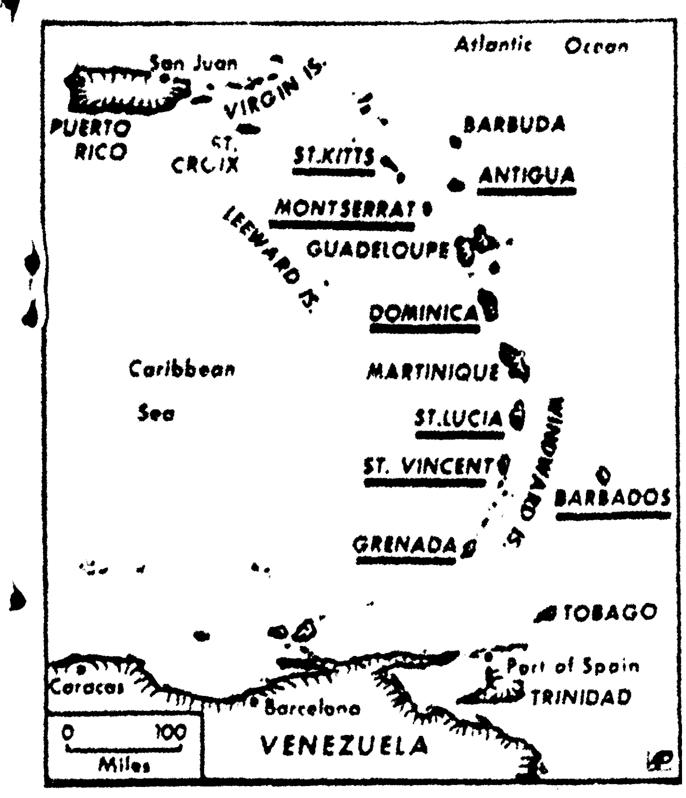
A Look Behind the Headlines



UNDERLINED are eight British West Indies islands whose leaders are worrying about the ways they can achieve independence as their big sister-islands, Jamaica and Trinidad-Tobago, did this year. The islands are Barbados, Grenada, St. Vincent, St. Lucia, Dominica, Montserrat, Antiguar and St. Kitts. (AP Wirephoto Map)

The West Indies Have No Worries On Communism

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP) — Eight lovely little British West Indies islands, lying in a row within rocket range of Cuba, are blissfully unbothered by communism's bristling fortress in the Caribbean sea.

Their easygoing, darkskinned people go about the harvesting of bananas, cocoa beans and sugar cane with scarcely a thought of Fidel Castro.

The leaders of the Windward and Leeward Islands are worrying instead about the ways they can achieve independence, as their big sister-islands, Jamaica and Trinidad and Tobago did this year.

REAL LUSH

One of the lush islands, Grenada of the nutmeg groves, has upset plans for an eastern Caribbean federation whereby they all would stay in the British Commonwealth but cease to be colonies.

Grenada's new government wants to join Trinidad and Tobago in a unitary state. This leaves seven other island governments talking about federation, with the capital in Barbados.

The eight islands, all hopeful attractions for tourists with their hot sun, tropical scenery and sandy beaches, are Barbados, Grenada, St Vincent, St Lucia, Dominica, Monserrat, Antigua and St Kitts.

Both in total area—1,526 square miles—and total population, about 700,000, they are smaller than Trinidad alone. Trinidad, with 800,000 people on its 1,864 square miles, lies 16 miles north of South America. Grenada, famed as the spice island of the Western Hemisphere, is the nearest of the Windwards, 90 miles north of Trinidad.

Trinidad was talked of as the head of a new grouping of Britain's Caribbean islands before the original West Indies Federation collapsed with Jamaica's withdrawal. Then Trinidad, with its tiny ward, Tobago, went independent soon afterward.

That left Barbados hopeful of heading a "little eight." Now Grenada's chief minister, Herbert Blaize, elected on a "join Trinidad" platform, claims a mandate from his people to ask union with that island. He has asked the British colonial office to call a conference to start negotiations.

TWO YEARS

"It may take two years for Grenada to join Trinidad and Tobago," Blaize said in St Geroge's, Grenada's capital.

"It would be of benefit for all. About 30,000 Grenadians, nearly one-third of the people born on this island, already live and work in Trinidad. There is not a single family in Grenada without some connection in Trinidad."

Blazie thought Grenada, with 88,000 inhabitants on 133 square miles of volcanic hills and valleys, would be no drain on Trinidad's economy.

"When we go in with Trinidad and Tobago, we will be able to cut expenses, lower our administration costs, intensify our agricultural production, develop our tourist industry and show a surplus that will more than pay our way in the unitary state," he said.

Trinidadians in Port-of-Spain are not as sure of Grenada's welcome. Prime Minister Eric Williams some months ago offered to take in other West Indians, but objection is reported among his political opposition.

Trinidad's population is about one-half of African descent, about one-third of East Indian ancestry. Some East Indians there have expressed concern over the possibility of becoming an even smaller minority with the addition of Grenada's almost totally African-descended inhabitants.

Eric Gairy, former chief minister whose party lost control of Grenada in September's election, says: "Trinidadians don't want more Grenadians because the Grenadians have a habit of working themselves up in good jobs."

Barbados' premier, Errol Barrow, says his government is willing to enter into a federation with one or more islands of the eastern Caribbean. Ernest Mottley, opposition political leader, agrees "in principle" with the federation idea.

Sweden's King Is Most Popular

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A king who waited 68 years to take his throne, Sweden's Gustaf VI Adolf turns 80 Sunday. Swedes and foreigners alike honor him as one of the most popular and dedicated kings in a monarchy whose roots stretch back through ancient times.

Only two other Swedish kings before him have reached the age of 80: his father, Gustaf V, who died at 92, and his great-great-grandfather, Carl XIV Johan, onetime marshal of France who founded the Bernadotte dynasty.

When Gustaf Adolf took the throne Oct. 30, 1950, he had behind him 43 years of apprenticeship as crown prince. In that time, he acquainted himself with the problems of this northern Europe kingdom. Perhaps no Swedish king ever has known his people and country as well.

He took his crown as king with the motto "duty above all" and even antimonarchists in Sweden concede he has lived up to it.

Gustaf Adolf has often been called the ideal 20th century monarch.

The duties of a king in Sweden's constitutional monarchy are largely representative and his share in government affairs is in effect limited to "advise, encourage and warn" his cabinet ministers on questions that arise.

But he has also learned the finest points of good relations with the public.

A few months ago, he introduced a string of 70 government functionaries to a foreign dignitary without once slipping on a name or title.

He has made press coverage of court easier and recently broke royal precedent by inviting Swedish and foreign newsmen to an informal reception at his palace.

A staunch supporter of the Swedish democratic system, Gustaf Adolf has personally done a great deal to open channels between the court and the people.

He is often seen in public, opening exhibitions or new industrial plants, watching an ice hockey game at the Stockholm Stadium or a ballet performance at the Royal Theater.

Cameras, Cuban Crisis

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cameras that can detect a golf ball on a fairway from an altitude of nine miles may have been the means of spotting the Soviet missile bases in Cuba.

The Pentagon, however, has thrown a quarantine around all discussion of its current aerial photography equipment and techniques that rivals the one the Navy imposed in the Caribbean. Experts in this field are suddenly unwilling to talk about any kind of camera more sophisticated than those used for family snapshots.

ENOUGH STRAWS

But there are enough straws in the wind—from material published prior to the Cuban crisis and from the pace of aerial photographic development since World war II—to indicate that perhaps not even Castro's beard is immune to being recorded on film from appreciable heights above the earth.

Records also indicate that aside from hot-shot cameras with telescopic lenses and supersensitive film of the conventional variety, the United States' aerial reconnaissance—and that of the Russians as well—gets help from:

1. Special black and white film that is sensitive to invisible infrared, or heat radiation, thus allowing cameras to penetrate haze and detect and distinguish objects by means of the varying degrees of heat they emit.

2. Special camouflage detection file, which can distinguish between living vegetation and the cut branches or green paint which an enemy might use to try to simulate nature.

3. Special infrared and thermal sensor devices, capable of penetrating darkness and haze, which can pick up heat emissions from such things as lines of motor trucks moving over a road and present them on a special screen—something like a radar scope—where they can be photographed. pictures obviously taken from altitudes as low as around 1,500 feet, where getaway speed might be a prime factor.

The Navy has F8U1P Photo for a permanent record, or transmitted to a ground station.

4. Electronic sensor devices, which can tune in on such things as gun-aiming and early warning radars used by the enemy, navigation systems for missiles, communications systems and electronic counter-measures systems.

PICKED UP

Information picked up by all these sensor devices, as well as that gleaned by airborne radar, must be checked against visial or photographic information to make possible precise identification.

Infrared film and infrared sensors are at least theoretically capable of detecting not only heat-emitting activities going on at a given moment, but also activities which took place earlier. This is because heat emissions from a source like a tank or truck would linger at the spot the vehicle was parked for perhaps 24 hours after it was moved.

Such information, posed against an actual photograph which might appear very innocent in content, could inspire a more definitive visual or photoraphic search for something the enemy might since have hidden.

There are unofficial reports that the Air Force does use equipment for such peering into the recent past.

When the Cuban crisis first came to light, and the United States produced the sensational aerial photographs of the missile sites, most speculation centered on U2 aircraft as the planes that brought home the evidence.

There seems little doubt that the U2, capable of flying at altitudes of about 70,000 feet, figured prominently in the venture. At least two U2s have been stationed at Patrick Air Force Base in Florida.

But, while the U2s fly high, their speed—under 500 miles an hour—is slow compared with some other aircraft used by the United States for photo reconnaissance. It can be presumed that some of the latter were used for Crusader planes — jet-powered craft that can fly at speeds exceeding 1,000 miles an hour. Planes like this, from the Navy's VFP62 (Light Photographic) Squadron, Cecil Field, Fla., have teamed up with Tiros meteorological satellite in weather reconnaissance, taking pictures covering 12.5 by 50 miles of the earth's surface from heights of 50,000 feet.

FOR NAVY

Another Navy favorite in the aerial snooping line is the P2V Neptune patrol bomber which has racked up such notable photographic feats as mapping some 100,000 square miles of the Antarctic Continent from heights up to 20,000 feet—including drops to 1,000 feet to count penguins.

While the aircraft and the powerful and sensitive camera equipment provide the important raw material of aerial reconnaissance, a relatively small corps of experts for all three military services, called photo interpreters, provide the pay-off analysis.

One of their chief techniques involves stereoscopy—the science of viewing two slightly overlapped pictures of the same scene with special lenses, so that a three-dimensional view results.

Photo interpreters look for such things as (1) shadows, which can give a clue to the height of an object, (2) the tone of the picture—that is, the brilliance with which light is reflected, a characteristic which can allow identification of particular types of vegetation which might preclude military traffic, and (3) the texture of the scene—as, for example, the characteristics of a given stretch of beach.

Size and shape and pattern of discerned objects are, of course, extremely important also.

In 1955, President Eisenhower provided a tip-off on progress made in aerial snooping since World War II, when he made his "open skies" proposal that would have entailed exchanges of defense maps by the U.S. and the Soviet Union and mutual aerial inspection.

SPELLED OUT

Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., then chairman of the U.S. delegation to the United Nations, spelled things out even more clearly. He declared it was possible at that time "to make a complete, accurate, meaningful photographic survey of a country the size even of the Soviet Union or the United States in a matter of less than six months and to keep making it week after week to see the changes."

Even before the aerial espionage activities of American U2 planes came to light in 1960, there were reports in this country of at least experimental techniques whereby, from an altitude of nine miles, pictures could be taken with such definition that golfers and even golfballs could be distinguished on a fairway.

Also, early in 1960, six months before the U2 incident, the Fairchild Camera & Instrument Corp. announced development of an experimental high-acuity camera system, described as being able to detect objects down to two feet in diameter (smaller than the top of a trash can) from altitudes of nearly 19 miles at speeds exceeding 1,200 miles an hour.

At the time Francis Gary Powers' U2 was downed in the Soviet Union, Premier Khrushchev said the camera equipment found on the plane was old-hat compared with what the Russians had developed.

Events in Cuba have clearly demonstrated that American aerial photography and interpretation was good enough for an assignment which may have averted World War III.

59ers Are Doing Well In Alaska

By WARD T. SIMS

Their numbers have wilted and endless toil and privation have taken their toll. But to the 17 Michigan 59ers who still live on the remote Susitna Valley, the wilderness has been licked.

Shielding his eyes from a bright autumn sun and looking approvingly over 17 acres of ripening oats, Marano Sik, to no one in particular, put it simply: "We have found peace in our valley."

NEW STATE

In the nation's newest state, all 42 had high dreams of carving a homestead — and a new life — from the dense birch forests and rich soil of the Susitna Valley, 80 miles north of Anchorage.

The Alaskan wilderness was too much of a hurdle for most of the 59ers, and they have long since drifted away.

Those who have managed to stick it out found their days filled to the brim with work, improving their homesteads and trying to make financial ends meet in a country where there are few available jobs.

Under the Homestead Act the 59ers get their land free provided they build a dwelling on it, cultivate at least an eighth of their land, usually 120 acres, and live on it at least seven months a year for three years.

Sik, lean and hard, is one of those still in the valley, along with his wife, young Lindy and Dino, who was born after Sik homesteaded on the Susitna.

Also remaining from the original group are Gerald and Bertha Donaldson; Ray and Bernice Kula, Nick Rubino, his wife and son; Steve Panewicz, his wife and son, Bill Orzechowski, Art Pjchlik, Eric Eckland and Bob Watkins.

The 59er homesteaders live on the west side of the Susitna River some five or six miles west of Talkeetna.

There is no bridge over the meandering stream. During the summer months it can be crossed only by boat or by bush aircraft. During the winter, heavy ice acts as a natural bridge.

Reminiscing in his trim, comfortable log home, Sik said he wouldn't recommend homesteading to every one.

"If you have the will to win a homestead, you can win one," Sik said, "but it's going to take hours and hours of sweat and work."

Sik's day is an example.

Morning chores precede an eight-hour day on a highway maintenance crew and the evenings are spent improving the homestead.

During the long, sunlit summer days, Sik works an average of 19 or 20 hours.

The Siks have 50 chickens, 10 rabbits and a cow and a calf.

All demand daily attention, particularly during the bitterly cold winter months, when the temperature often skids to 40 or 50 degrees below zero.

Disappointments can come thick and fast in a country where the barest necessities to a city dweller are luxuries to the homesteader.

In 1960 Sik planted a half acre in potatoes. They grew fast and plump in the rich loam of the valley.

"I could have sold every spud I grew," he recalled.

"I started harvesting one evening after work. I got eight sacks out of the ground before it got dark.

"The temperature took a sudden drop and by morning there was so much snow on the ground that I lost the rest of the crop."

Last summer the Siks had a healthy looking garden in a fenced-off patch.

The other 59ers planted small gardens, too. Mrs. Donaldson had a flower garden boasting snapdragons of hot house quality.

New Brazilian Governor Said Admirer Of Castro

By FRANCO MATTIOLI

RECIFE, Brazil (AP) — Miguel Arraes de Alencar, newly-elected governor of Brazil's misery-bitten northeast state of Pernambuco, does not look like the revolutionary his political opponents say he is.

He looks more like a kindly father, which he is. He has eight children—3 to 16 years old—whose mother died two years ago.

But one of his sharpest opponents, Joao Cleofas, moderate, who lost the election to him by a handful of votes—264,616 to 251,707—has accused Arraes of wanting to "Cubanize" Brazil.

"The entire country," said Cleofas, "is in danger, because Miguel Arraes is a revolutionary."

Arraes, a stocky 46-year-old graying man whose eyes and lips smile easily but who is seldom moved to outright laughter, denied that. He also denied that he is an extreme leftist.

"I am a democratic nationalist," he said, and as for "Cubanizing" Brazil, he told a questioning Argentine newsman, "it would be just as easy to imagine Brazilianizing Argentina."

LIKES CASTRO

Arraes, mayor since 1959 of this city of one million on the banks of the slow-moving Capibaribe River, has also been accused of packing city hall with known Communists. He acknowledges that he thinks Fidel Castro is a good leader for Cuba and adds as counterpoint that he also thinks President Kennedy is a good leader for the United States.

Recently, when President Kennedy and Mrs. Kennedy were expected to come here on their now postponed Brazilian visit, some of Recife's hotheads broke out with anti-United States signs of "Cuba sim, Yankees nao."

Recife, a glittering city in need of modern sanitation, is facade to a state that is full of misery, hunger, ignorance and cruel poverty—one of the prime targets of the Alliance for Progress in Brazil's vast northeast.

One of Arraes' first actions after the announcement of his victory at the polls was to assail the alliance. He said its accords with the state of Pernambuco were illegal and that he would—after taking office as governor—refer them back to Brazil's federal government. That, he said, is the only authority that can make agreements with foreign powers.

Through the alliance, the United States has already poured more than $134 million into the eight-state northeast, a good portion of it to Pernambuco and Recife itself. In Pernambuco, where illiteracy is a major problem, the alliance has begun remodeling 125 schools, built 2 new schools and has plans for 11 additional new ones.

Illiteracy is a problem Arraes recognizes. He has announced he will call upon all ranks—from professors to soldiers—in city and country to participate in a massive assault on illiteracy. He has promised a big program for adult education in a state whose more than four million population has less than 650,000 qualified voters. Illiteracy excludes one from the polls in Brazil.

In his walled villa on Recife's outskirts, where a uniformed policeman stood guard, Arraes appeared very much the father of a family. Six of his eight children hovered about him as he spoke. Pernambuco's governor-elect is visibly devoted to them.

"Are you a leftist?" he was asked.

Arraes smiled.

"That," he said, "depends a good deal upon the position of the questioner. The position of Brazilian leftists can be compared to that of Europe's center nations. Certainly, Brazil's advance will be measured by its constantly taking more independent positions on economic and political affairs."

Arraes said he would form a government that will "fight against everything that causes misery and hunger in the northeast." That's a big order.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Suspense Novel Among The Best

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

An absorbing and terrifying suspense story which builds up to a sensational and horrifying climax is "Fail-safe" by Eugene Burdick. This is a story of what happened when a mechanical failure pushed the button and started a world war. This is not a book for the timid, but it is certainly one which makes you think. Another book which has a lesson for mankind today is Nicholas Monsarrat's latest title "The Time Before This." It is a strange story of the discovery of an ice mountain in the arctic regions containing a strange skin-armored people, dead in their tracks from some unknown ray, immobilized in the course of their duties as were the inhabitants of Pompeii, within a giant refrigerator. Here science had progressed far beyond today's known reaches: here food on vast quantities for a non-existent human race was maintained in the greatest of deep freezes; here solar ray power activated the operation of elevators, mechanical equipment etc. It is horrifyingly convincing as one reads. A spoof on the space race is Leonard Wibberley's "The Mouse on The Moon", a sequel to the popular "The Mouse That Roared," published in 1955. Those who read the first book will want to read the next one and see how the Grand Duchy of Fenwick wins the space race.

THIS WEEK

This week saw the addition of a large number of non-fiction books, all of them useful and vital additions to the book collection. "Your Teenager's Mind and Body" by Helen F. Dunbar is a very fine book for parents and young people themselves. "The Oxford Annotated Bible" and the Oxford Bible Atlas" are most worthwhile books in the field of religion. Business men will be interested in "Using Charts To Improve Profits" by Ely Francis.

An interesting appraisal of the career of the late James Forrestal is "Forrestal and The Navy" by Robert Albion. A book which is certain to cause a great deal of comment is Ralph E. Lapp's "Kill and Overkill", a straight-from-the-shoulder study of the arms race. It is a frightening book and a must for the informed citizen. James S. Hanrahan is the author of an interesting book called "Space Biology, The Human Factors In Space Flight." Members of the La Violette Club will be happy to know that we have a new book on African violets, "Growing African Violets In the Home" by Muriel F. Milstead. This is one of the loveliest hobbies that a person can have and we are happy to have a new book on the subject.

Cat lovers will want to read "Career Cat" by Eleanor Harris. This is the success story of a real-life cat named Nicodemus. Two new cookbooks are available this week. They are "The Dinner Party Cook Book" published by Sunset Magazine and "The Art of Syrian Cookery" by Helen Corey. In the field of business a new book is "Practice In Management" by Peter S. Drucker. A very fine study is a new book, written by one of the members of the faculty at Northeast State College, Mr. Nollie Hickman. The title is "Mississippi Harvest; Lumbering In the Long - Leaf Pine Belt, 1840-1915." This book was published by the University of Mississippi Press and the library is proud to add it to it's collection.

"A Layman's Guide To Modern Art" by Mary Chalmers Rathbun is a very fine book for the person who wants to be informed. Betty White's dancebook for the ballroom teacher is a most useful book for one interested in that art. "The Best American Short Stories" is an annual selection made by Martha Foley and is always eagerly awaited. The 1962 issue has just arrived and will be used extensively. A useful book in the field of literary criticism is "Who Is Ayn Rand" by Nathanial Brandon. The library can never have enough books about Shakespeare and a new book is always welcome, especially if it is as well done as Dorothy Ogburn's "Shakespeare - The Man Behind The Name." A delightful and informed book about the city of Paris is Cornelia Otis Skinner's "Elegant Wits & Grand Horizontals." It is exceedingly well done and all who have visted Paris will want to read it.

A very fine study of the United States Marine Corps is "Strong Men Armed" by Robert Leckie. A very useful little book which is certain to be in demand is "Names For Every Child" by Christine Campbell Thomson. A new reference book which has been eagerly awaited is the 1961 - 62 issue of the "Louisiana Almanac." This book is used widely by students and we are happy to have new editions. 39,241 people in Ouachita Parish are registered borrowers of the Ouachita Parish Public Library. Are you one of this number? If not, we give you a cordial invitation to take advantage of the many opportunities which the library has for you.

Two New Books By Nobel Winner

DEVIL'S YARD. By Ivo Andric. Grove Press. $3.95.

THE VIZIER'S ELEPHANT. By Ivo Andric. Harcourt, Brace and World. $4.75.

Ivo Andric's winning of the 1961 Nobel Prize for Literature has stimulated two publishers to bring out books by this Yugoslav author and they are appearing almost at the same time.

"Devil's Yard" is a novel, shorter than most which seems to pose the question, "How do people learn anything about other people?"

Before he died in a Bosnian monastery, Brother Petar told many stories about the obsessed people he had met many years before when he was held for two months in an Istanbul house of detention known as Devil's Yard.

Karadjos, fascinated by crime as a youth, had, by the merest chance, become a chief warden instead of a criminal. He is sure nobody in the world can be innocent.

Haim, a Jew from Smyrna, has a persecution complex and a passion for narration. "Scenes which had taken place, unwitnessed, between two people, he could recount with an improbable wealth of detail and particulars."

Djamil, a young Turk, imagines he is possessed by the spirit of an ill-fated Sultan who had lived in the 15th Century.

Andric writes about Karadjos, Haim, Djamil and Brother Petar in a style which is extremely easy to read, seemingly simple. Every anecdote and characterization seems finished and profoundly revealing.

Yet "Devil's Yard" is told in the manner of the relating of a dream or an old man's remembering of long ago. Incidents begun recede like a tide; fact and fantasy swirl together, indistinguishable.

Andric's clear but unclear style and his plotless, mysterious story become the subtlest kind of audience participation game. The reader reads and understands, not just what the author has written, but a collaboration.

"The Vizer's Elephant" contains three novellas. Two, "The Vizier's Elephant" and "Anika's Times," are ancient Bosnian tales, described in a foreword as "Oriental lies" which are "more true than the truth."

However, both tell more about ancient Bosnia than about universal human qualities.

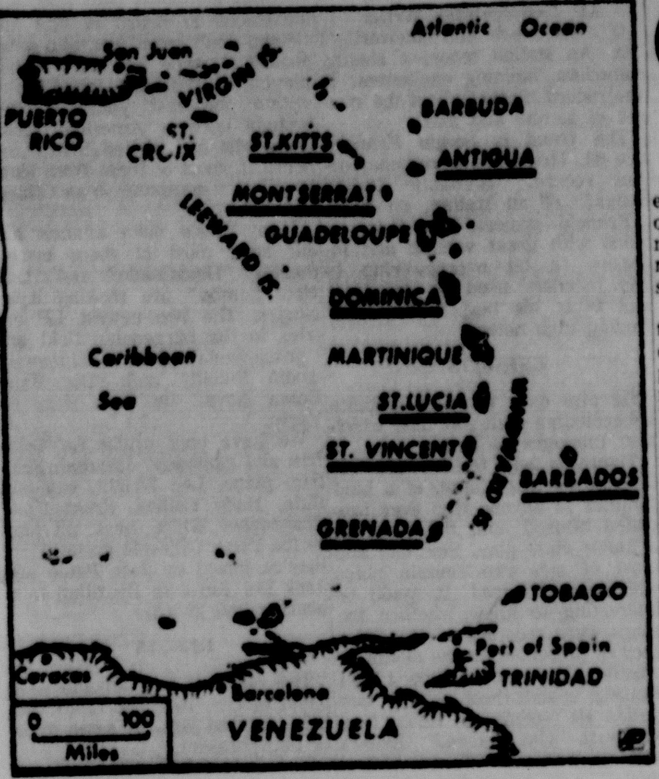
"Anika's Times" concerns the thoughts about guilt of a man who long ago committed murder and Anika, the prostitute of Vishegrad, who has all the world she knows at her feet yet murmurs, "Whoever would kill me would do me a great favor." None of her thoughts are told.

The third short novel, "Zeko," traces the 20th Century life of a man in Belgrade. Zeko is a henpecked husband, plodding along at a thankless job. He finds an escape from reality for a time but what he really seeks is to do something worthwhile.

Andric, who writes in Serbo-Croat, has been known in America for the previously translated "The Bridge on the Drina," the events of which take place over two and a half centuries.

"Devil's Yard" can be said to match that epic in interest, but the three novellas do not.

A Look Behind the Headlines



UNDERLINED are eight British West Indies islands whose leaders are worrying about the ways they can achieve independence as their big sister-islands, Jamaica and Trinidad-Tobago, did this year. The islands are Barbados, Grenada, St. Vincent, St. Lucia, Dominica, Montserrat, Antiguar and St. Kitts. (AP Wirephoto Map)

The West Indies Have No Worries On Communism

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP)—Eight lovely little British West Indies islands, lying in a row within rocket range of Cuba, are blissfully unbothered by communism's bristling fortress in the Caribbean sea.

Their easygoing, darkskinned people go about the harvesting of bananas, cocoa beans and sugar cane with scarcely a thought of Fidel Castro.

The leaders of the Windward and Leeward Islands are worrying instead about the ways they can achieve independence, as their big sister-islands, Jamaica and Trinidad and Tobago, did this year.

REAL LUSH

One of the lush islands, Grenada of the nutmeg groves, has upset plans for an eastern Caribbean federation whereby they all would stay in the British Commonwealth but cease to be colonies.

Grenada's new government wants to join Trinidad and Tobago in a unitary state. This leaves seven other island governments talking about federation, with the capital in Barbados.

The eight islands, all hopeful attractions for tourists with their hot sun, tropical scenery and sandy beaches, are Barbados, Grenada, St. Vincent, St. Lucia, Dominica, Monserrat, Antigua and St. Kitts.

Both in total area—1,326 square miles—and total population, about 700,000, they are smaller than Trinidad alone. Trinidad, with 800,000 people on its 1,864 square miles, lies 16 miles north of South America. Grenada, famed as the spice island of the Western Hemisphere, is the nearest of the Windwards, 90 miles north of Trinidad.

Trinidad was talked of as the head of a new grouping of Britain's Caribbean islands before the original West Indies Federation collapsed with Jamaica's withdrawal. Then Trinidad, with its tiny ward, Tobago, went independent soon afterward.

That left Barbados hopeful of heading a "little eight." Now Grenada's chief minister, Herbert Blaize, elected on a "join Trinidad" platform, claims a mandate from his people to ask union with that island. He has asked the British colonial office to call a conference to start negotiations.

TWO YEARS

"It may take two years for Grenada to join Trinidad and Tobago," Blaize said in St. Geroge's, Grenada's capital.

"It would be of benefit for all. About 40,000 Grenadians, nearly one-third of the people born on this island, already live and work in Trinidad. There is not a single family in Grenada without some connection in Trinidad."

Blazie thought Grenada, with 88,000 inhabitants on 133 square miles of volcanic hills and valleys, would be no drain on Trinidad's economy.

"When we go in with Trinidad and Tobago, we will be able to cut expenses, lower our administration costs, intensify our agricultural production, develop our tourist industry and show a surplus that will more than pay our way in the unitary state," he said.

Trinidadians in Port-of-Spain are not so sure of Grenada's welcome. Prime Minister Eric Williams some months ago offered to take in other West Indians, but objection is reported among his political opposition.

Trinidad's population is about one-half of African descent, about one-third of East Indian ancestry. Some East Indians there have expressed concern over the possibility of becoming an even smaller minority with the addition of Grenada's almost totally African-descended inhabitants.

Eric Gairy, former chief minister whose party lost control of Grenada in September's election, says: "Trinidadians don't want more Grenadians because the Grenadians have a habit of working themselves up in good jobs."

Barbados' premier, Errol Barrow, says his government is willing to enter into a federation with one or more islands of the eastern Caribbean. Ernest Mottley, opposition political leader, agrees "in principle" with the federation idea."

Sweden's King Is Most Popular

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—A king who waited 68 years to take his throne, Sweden's Gustaf VI Adolf turns 80 Sunday. Swedes and foreigners alike honor him as one of the most popular and dedicated kings in a monarchy whose roots stretch back through ancient times.

Only two other Swedish kings before him have reached the age of 80: his father, Gustaf V, who died at 92, and his great-great-grandfather, Carl XIV Johan, one-time marshal of France who founded the Bernadotte dynasty.

When Gustaf Adolf took the throne Oct. 30, 1950, he had behind him 43 years of apprenticeship as crown prince. In that time, he acquainted himself with the problems of this northern Europe kingdom. Perhaps no Swedish king ever has known his people and country as well.

He took his crown as king with the motto "duty above all" and even antimonarchists in Sweden concede he has lived up to it.

Gustaf Adolf has often been called the ideal 20th century monarch.

The duties of a king in Sweden's constitutional monarchy are largely representative and his share in government affairs is in effect limited to "advise, encourage and warn" his cabinet ministers on questions that arise.

But he has also learned the finest points of good relations with the public.

A few months ago, he introduced a string of 70 government functionaries to a foreign dignitary without once slipping on a name or title.

He has made press coverage of court easier and recently broke royal precedent by inviting Swedish and foreign newsmen to an informal reception at his palace.

A staunch supporter of the Swedish democratic system, Gustaf Adolf has personally done a great deal to open channels between the court and the people.

He is often seen in public, opening exhibitions or new industrial plants, watching an ice hockey game at the Stockholm Stadium or a ballet performance at the Royal Theater.

Cameras, Cuban Crisis

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cameras that can detect a golf ball on a fairway from an altitude of nine miles may have been the means of spotting the Soviet missile bases in Cuba.

The Pentagon, however, has thrown a quarantine around all discussion of its current aerial photography equipment and techniques that rivals the one the Navy imposed in the Caribbean. Experts in this field are suddenly unwilling to talk about any kind of camera more sophisticated than those used for family snapshots.

ENOUGH STRAWS

But there are enough straws in the wind—from material published prior to the Cuban crisis and from the pace of aerial photographic development since World war II—to indicate that perhaps not even Castro's beard is immune to being recorded on film from appreciable heights above the earth.

Records also indicate that aside from hot-shot cameras with telescopic lenses and supersensitive film of the conventional variety, the United States' aerial reconnaissance—and that of the Russians as well—gets help from:

1. Special black and white film that is sensitive to invisible infrared, or heat radiation, thus allowing cameras to penetrate haze and detect and distinguish objects by means of the varying degrees of heat they emit.

2. Special camouflage detection file, which can distinguish between living vegetation and the cut branches or green paint which an enemy might use to try to simulate nature.

3. Special infrared and thermal sensor devices, capable of penetrating darkness and haze, which can pick up heat emissions from such things as lines of motor trucks moving over a road and present them on a special screen—something like a radar scope—where they can be photographed pictures obviously taken from altitudes as low as around 1,500 feet, where getaway speed might be a prime factor.

The Navy has F8U1P Photo for a permanent record, or transmitted to a ground station.

4. Electronic sensor devices, which can tune in on such things as gun-aiming and early warning radars used by the enemy, navigation systems for missiles, communications systems and electronic counter-measures systems.

PICKED UP

Information picked up by all these sensor devices, as well as that gleaned by airborne radar, must be checked against visial or photographic information to make possible precise identification.

Infrared film and infrared sensors are at least theoretically capable of detecting not only heat-emitting activities going on at a given moment, but also activities which took place earlier. This is because heat emissions from a source like a tank or truck would linger at the spot the vehicle was parked for perhaps 24 hours after it was moved.

Such information, posed against an actual photograph which might appear very innocent in content, could inspire a more definitive visual or photoraphic search for something the enemy might since have hidden.

There are unofficial reports that the Air Force does use equipment for such peering into the recent past.

When the Cuban crisis first came to light, and the United States produced the sensational aerial photographs of the missile sites, most speculation centered on U2 aircraft as the planes that brought home the evidence.

There seems little doubt that the U2, capable of flying at altitudes of about 70,000 feet, figured prominently in the venture. At least two U2s have been stationed at Patrick Air Force Base in Florida.

But, while the U2s fly high, their speed—under 500 miles an hour — is slow compared with some other aircraft used by the United States for photo reconnaissance. It can be presumed that some of the latter were used for Crusader planes — jet-powered craft that can fly at speeds exceeding 1,000 miles an hour. Planes like this, from the Navy's VFP62 (Light Photographic) Squadron, Cecil Field, Fla., have teamed up with Tiros meteorological satellite in weather reconnaissance, taking pictures covering 12.5 by 50 miles of the earth's surface from heights of 50,000 feet.

FOR NAVY

Another Navy favorite in the aerial snooping line is the P2V Neptune patrol bomber which has racked up such notable photographic feats as mapping some 100,000 square miles of the Antarctic Continent from heights up to 20,000 feet—including drops to 1,000 feet to count penguins.

While the aircraft and the powerful and sensitive camera equipment provide the important raw material of aerial reconnaissance, a relatively small corps of experts for all three military services, called photo interpreters, provide the pay-off analysis.

One of their chief techniques involves stereoscopy—the science of viewing two slightly overlapped pictures of the same scene with special lenses, so that a three-dimensional view results.

Photo interpreters look for such things as: (1) shadows, which can give a clue to the height of an object; (2) the tone of the picture—that is, the brilliance with which light is reflected—a characteristic which can allow identification of particular types of vegetation which might preclude military traffic; and (3) the texture of the scene—as, for example, the characteristics of a given stretch of beach.

Size and shape and pattern of discerned objects are, of course, extremely important also.

In 1955, President Eisenhower provided a tip-off on progress made in aerial snooping since World War II, when he made his "open skies" proposal that would have entailed exchanges of defense maps by the U.S. and the Soviet Union and mutual aerial inspection.

SPELLED OUT

Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., then chairman of the U.S. delegation to the United Nations, spelled things out even more clearly. He declared it was possible at that time "to make a complete, accurate, meaningful photographic survey of a country the size even of the Soviet Union or the United States in a matter of less than six months—and to keep making it week after week to see the changes."

Even before the aerial espionage activities of American U2 planes came to light in 1960, there were reports in this country of at least experimental techniques whereby, from an altitude of nine miles, pictures could be taken with such definition that golfers—and even golfballs—could be distinguished on a fairway.

Also, early in 1960—six months before the U2 incident—the Fairchild Camera & Instrument Corp. announced development of an experimental high-acuity camera system, described as being able to detect objects down to two feet in diameter (smaller than the top of a trash can) from altitudes of nearly 19 miles at speeds exceeding 1,200 miles an hour.

At the time Francis Gary Powers' U2 was downed in the Soviet Union, Premier Khrushchev said the camera equipment found on the plane was old-hat compared with what the Russians had developed.

Events in Cuba have clearly demonstrated that American aerial photography and interpretation was good enough for an assignment which may have averted World War III.

He looks more like a kindly father, which he is. He has eight children—3 to 16 years old—whose mother died two years ago.

But one of his sharpest opponents, Joao Cleofas, moderate, who lost the election to him by a handful of votes—264,616 to 251,707—has accused Arraes of wanting to "Cubanize" Brazil.

"The entire country," said Cleofas, "is in danger, because Miguel Arraes is a revolutionary."

Arraes, a stocky 46-year-old graying man whose eyes and lips smile easily but who is seldom moved to outright laughter, denied that. He also denied that he is an extreme leftist.

"I am a democratic nationalist," he said, and as for "Cubanizing" Brazil, he told a questioning Argentine newsman, "it would be just as easy to imagine Brazilianizing Argentina."

LIKES CASTRO

Arraes, mayor since 1959 of this city of one million on the banks of the slow-moving Capibaribe River, has also been accused of packing city hall with known Communists. He acknowledges that he thinks Fidel Castro is a good leader for Cuba and adds as counterpoint that he also thinks President Kennedy is a good leader for the United States.

Recently, when President Kennedy and Mrs. Kennedy were expected to come here on their now-postponed Brazilian visit, some of Recife's hotheads broke out with anti-United States signs of "Cuba sim, Yankees nao."

Recife, a glittering city in need of modern sanitation, is facade to a state that is full of misery, hunger, ignorance and cruel poverty—one of the prime targets of the Alliance for Progress in Brazil's vast northeast.

One of Arraes' first actions after the announcement of his victory at the polls was to assail the alliance. He said its accords with the state of Pernambuco were illegal and that he would—after taking office as governor—refer them back to Brazil's federal government. That, he said, is the only authority that can make agreements with foreign powers.

Through the alliance, the United States has already poured more than $134 million into the eight-state northeast, a good portion of it to Pernambuco and Recife itself. In Pernambuco, where illiteracy is a major problem, the alliance has begun remodelling 125 schools, built 2 new schools and has plans for 11 additional new ones.

Illiteracy is a problem Arraes recognizes. He has announced he will call upon all ranks—from professors to soldiers—in city and country to participate in a massive assault on illiteracy. He has promised a big program for adult education in a state whose more than four million population has less than 650,000 qualified voters. Illiteracy excludes one from the polls in Brazil.

In his walled villa on Recife's outskirts, where a uniformed policeman stood guard, Arraes appeared very much the father of a family. Six of his eight children hovered about him as he spoke. Pernambuco's governor-elect is visibly devoted to them.

"Are you a leftist?" he was asked.

Arraes smiled.

"That," he said, "depends a good deal upon the position of the questioner. The position of Brazilian leftists can be compared to that of Europe's center nations. Certainly, Brazil's advance will be measured by its constantly taking more independent positions on economic and political affairs."

Arraes said he would form a government that will "fight against everything that causes misery and hunger in the northeast." That's a big order.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Suspense Novel Among The Best

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

An absorbing and terrifying suspense story which builds up to a sensational and horrifying climax is "Fail-safe" by Eugene Burdick. This is a story of what happened when a mechanical failure pushed the button and started a world war. This is not a book for the timid, but it is certainly one which makes you think. Another book which has a lesson for mankind today is Nicholas Monsarrat's latest title "The Time Before This." It is a strange story of the discovery of an ice mountain in the arctic regions containing a strange skin-armored people, dead in their tracks from some unknown ray, immobilized in the course of their duties as were the inhabitants of Pompeii, within a giant refrigerator. Here science had progressed far beyond today's known reaches: here food on vast quantities for a non-existent human race was maintained in the greatest of deep freezes: here solar ray power activated the operation of elevators, mechanical equipment etc. It is horrifyingly convincing as one reads. A spoof on the space race is Leonard Wibberley's "The Mouse on The Moon", a sequel to the popular "The Mouse That Roared," published in 1955. Those who read the first book will want to read the next one and see how the Grand Duchy of Fenwick wins the space race.

THIS WEEK

This week saw the addition of a large number of non - fiction books, all of them useful and vital additions to the book collection. "Your Teenager's Mind and Body" by Helen F. Dunbar is a very fine book for parents and young people themselves. "The Oxford Annotated Bible" and the Oxford Bible Atlas" are most worthwhile books in the field of religion. Business men will be interested in "Using Charts To Improve Profits" by Ely Francis.

An interesting appraisal of the career of the late James Forrestal is "Forrestal and The Navy" by Robert Albion. A book which is certain to cause a great deal of comment is Ralph E. Lapp's "Kill and Overkill", a straight - from the shoulder study of the arms race. It is a frightening book and a must for the informed citizen. James S. Hanrahan is the author of an interesting book called "Space Biology; The Human Factors In Space Flight." Members of the La Violette Club will be happy to know that we have a new book on African violets, "Growing African Violets In the Home" by Muriel F. Milstead. This is one of the loveliest hobbies that a person can have and we are happy to have a new book on the subject.

Cat lovers will want to read "Career Cat" by Eleanor Harris. This is the success story of a real-life cat named Nicodemus. Two new cookbooks are available this week. They are "The Dinner Party Cook Book" published by Sunset Magazine and "The Art of Syrian Cookery" by Helen Corey. In the field of business a new book is "Practice In Management" by Peter S. Drucker. A very fine study is a new book, written by one of the members of the faculty at Northeast State College, Mr. Nollie Hickman. The title is "Mississippi Harvest; Lumbering In the Long - Leaf Pine Belt, 1840-1915." This book was published by the University of Mississippi Press and the library is proud to add it to it's collection.

"A Layman's Guide To Modern Art" by Mary Chalmers Rathbun is a very fine book for the person who wants to be informed. Betty White's dancebook for the ballroom teacher is a most useful book for one interested in that art. "The Best American Short Stories" is an annual selection made by Martha Foley and is always eagerly awaited. The 1962 issue has just arrived and will be used extensively. A useful book in the field of literary criticism is "Who Is Ayn Rand" by Nathanial Brandon. The library can never have enough books about Shakespeare and a new book is always welcome, especially if it is as well done as Dorothy Ogburn's "Shakespeare - The Man Behind The Name." A delightful and informed book about the city of Paris is Cornelia Otis Skinner's "Elegant Wits & Grand Horizontals." It is exceedingly well done and all who have visted Paris will want to read it.

A very fine study of the United States Marine Corps is "Strong Men Armed" by Robert Leckie. A very useful little book which is certain to be in demand is "Names For Every Child" by Christine Campbell Thomson. A new reference book which has been eagerly awaited is the 1961 - 62 issue of the "Louisiana Almanac." This book is used widely by students and we are happy to have new editions. 39,241 people in Ouachita Parish are registered borrowers of the Ouachita Parish Public Library. Are you one of this number? If not, we give you a cordial invitation to take advantage of the many opportunities which the library has for you.

Two New Books By Nobel Winner

DEVIL'S YARD. By Ivo Andric. Grove Press. $3.95.

THE VIZIER'S ELEPHANT. By Ivo Andric. Harcourt, Brace and World. $4.75.

Ivo Andric's winning of the 1961 Nobel Prize for Literature has stimulated two publishers to bring out books by this Yugoslav author and they are appearing almost at the same time.

"Devil's Yard" is a novel, shorter than most which seems to pose the question, "How do people learn anything about other people?"

Before he died in a Bosnian monastery, Brother Petar told many stories about the obsessed people he had met many years before when he was held for two months in an Istanbul house of detention known as Devil's Yard.

Karadjos, fascinated by crime as a youth, had, by the merest chance, become a chief warden instead of a criminal. He is sure nobody in the world can be innocent.

Haim, a Jew from Smyrna, has a persecution complex and a passion for narration. "Scenes which had taken place, unwitnessed, between two people, he could recount with an improbable wealth of detail and particulars."

Djamil, a young Turk, imagines he is possessed by the spirit of an ill-fated Sultan who had lived in the 15th Century.

Andric writes about Karadjos, Haim, Djamil and Brother Petar in a style which is extremely easy to read, seemingly simple. Every anecdote and characterization seems finished and profoundly revealing.

Yet "Devil's Yard" is told in the manner of the relating of a dream or an old man's remembering of long ago. Incidents begun recede like a tide; fact and fantasy swirl together, indistinguishable.

Andric's clear but unclear style and his plotless, mysterious story become the subtlest kind of audience participation game. The reader reads and understands, not just what the author has written, but a collaboration.

"The Vizer's Elephant" contains three novellas. Two, "The Vizier's Elephant" and "Anika's Times," are ancient Bosnian tales, described in a foreword as "Oriental lies" which are "more true than the truth."

However, both tell more about ancient Bosnia than about universal human qualities.

"Anika's Times" concerns the thoughts about guilt of a man who long ago committed murder and Anika, the prostitute of Vishegrad, who has all the world she knows at her feet yet murmurs, "Whoever would kill me would do me a great favor." None of her thoughts are told.

The third short novel, "Zeko," traces the 20th Century life of a man in Belgrade. Zeko is a henpecked husband, plodding along at a thankless job. He finds an escape from reality for a time but what he really seeks is to do something worthwhile.

Andric, who writes in Serbo-Croat, has been known in America for the previously translated "The Bridge on the Drina," the events of which take place over two and a half centuries.

"Devil's Yard" can be said to match that epic in interest, but the three novellas do not.

LOCATIONS DROP

Oil Activity Up Again In Area; 11 Completions

Up one week, down the next for a period of more than a month, activity last week in the Monroe Oil & Gas District was moving to the upside again.

District Manager Duncan S. Cook's listing of 11 completions in four parishes amounted to two more finals than the nine on the books a week ago. Three came in Ouachita Parish, all in the Monroe Field, while six were in Union and one each in Catahoula and LaSalle Parishes.

New locations in the 13 parish area represented about the only decline from last week's totals, with Cook recording 18 as compared with 27. They were found in six parishes, with Ouachita accounting for two, both in the Monroe Field, as did Union and Rapides Parishes.

Catahoula Parish had five, Avoyelles, four, and Concordia, three.

The total on active rigs pushed up from 18 to 29 and were widely scattered in 10 parishes. Tensas Parish had most at 9, followed by LaSalle with five, Rapides with three, Ouachita, Caldwell, Concordia, Grant and Union with two each, and Avoyelles, Franklin, one each. The Ouachita rigs, in the Monroe and Cheniere Fields, both were drilling.

There was one recompletion during the week; it was in LaSalle Parish, the Olla Field, and was Placid Oil Co.'s La. Central No. 72 in section 30-10-3E.

Eight wells were plugged and abandoned during the week, but totals on inactive sites fell to 138. Locations numbered 52, of which were drilling.

New Amite County Oil Pool Opened

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—A new oil pool has been opened in Amite County.

The new pool was tapped by a wildcat well of Larco Drilling Co. and Best and Lammus, the Whittington No. 1 in sec. 4-2n-5e, about 2 miles southwest of East Fork.

In Adams County about one mile southwest of the Glen Aubin field, Hughest and New Oil Co. is testing its discovery, the Board of Supervisors No. 1, sec. 29-5n-3w at 120 barrels daily from a wildcat sand at 4,868-69 feet.

Cities Service appears assured of a discovery in Greene County at its Robinson Land Co. No. 1 wildcat in sec. 15-4n-8w, near sand hill. The well is below 11,900 feet and apparently has established production in two sands.

Drill stem test run in open hole at 7876-97 feet recovered 704 feet of oil. A second test at 11,387 feet recovered 1,772 feet of oil.

The contract depth is 13,000 feet and there are reports additional shows have been logged.

In Amite County about 3 miles northwest of the McComb Field, Sun Oil Co. is below 2,300 feet in its Stewart No. 1 wildcat in sec. 27-4n-6e. Also in Amite, Stover and Bellew are below 9,600 feet in their Wilson No. 1 wildcat in sec. 17-4n-5e, five miles northwest of Smithdale.

Two important wildcat tests are drilling in Covington County. Continental Oil Co. is below 7,600 feet in its Crosby No. 1, sec. 33-7n-14w, three miles northeast of Sandford. It is a 14,300 foot try. Triad Oil & Gas is below 12,150 feet in its Rawls No. 1, Sec. 20-9n-16w, near Mount Olive, with the venture to go to 13,800 feet.

In the pool Creek field of Jones County, Texaco completed its Musgrove No. 1, sec. 22-9n-10w, flowing 326 barrels of oil daily from a Rodessa sand at 10,784-98 feet. A second sand in the Sligo is closed in until authority for dual completion is granted by the Oil and Gas Board.

Good Report Cards Scored By Businesses

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Many corporations are bringing home to their stockholders some good report cards for the third quarter of this year.

The better than passing marks are in the form of increased dividends which show that the profit record was generally good despite complaints in some quarters that the economy is sluggish.

Corporate profits are expected to hit or come close to record levels with fourth-quarter prospects generally bright.

Standard & Poor's Corp., a statistical and investment advisory agency, reported that 98 companies declared extra dividends in October, compared with 58 in September and 93 in October 1961. The swelling tide should peak out in December, it said.

The extra dividends to be paid in December will swell the Christmas stockings of millions of investors. This will inject new blood into the economic stream and likely ease any business slowdown that might develop after the first of the year.

More than one million stockholder — a good chunk of the nation's estimated 17 million shareowners — received glad tidings from General Motors Corp., the biggest U.S. manufacturer, the other day.

GM voted a $1.50-a-share year-end dividend, $1 above the usual quarterly rate and 50 cents above the 1961 year-end payout. The stockholders will split a total of about $425 million.

Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) will sweeten its checks 10 cents a share. Other firms getting ready to pay more include International Nickel Co., Bristol-Myers, Bigelow-Sanford and Singer Manufacturing Co.

Some of the extras are in stock rather than cash. Such a dividend was voted by Chris Craft Industries, Inc., the first for it since 1960.

But there are dark spots in the picture. Fourteen companies cut dividends last month, and there's sure to be a continuing trickle.

Two of the reductions were by industrial giants, U.S. Steel Corp. and Bethlehem Steel Corp., top-ranking in an industry hard hit by a profit squeeze.

As the year nears an end, even more attention is being directed to the economic outlook for 1963.

Walter Heller, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said the first half of the year will be a testing period for the economy with either a mild recession or a mild expansion likely to occur.

The possibility of a recession this winter or next spring has been lessened by the Cuban crisis, in the opinion of the U.S. Savings & Loan League. Although a shooting war apparently has been avoided, the league said, the situation indicates greater defense spending.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York sees consumer spending as the key to future economic activity.

The retail picture for the Christmas season looks good, reported the National Retail Merchants Association. It said a survey of scores showed seven out of 10 responding merchants expecting sales to rise about four per cent over last year.

New car sales in October totaled 722,886, exceeding the old one-month record of 702,726 set in April 1955, the best sales year in the industry's history. Sales in October 1961 totaled 535,011.

To meet the demand, carmakers stepped up production during the week to an estimated 164,000 passenger cars, a record for the year for the fourth consecutive week. Output the previous week was 163,029 and for a year ago 152,376.

New orders for steel still lagged. Major users continued to depend on their inventories and the fact that they could get needed supplies through rush orders.

Steel output during the week amounted to 1,778,000 tons, up only six-tenths of one per cent from the previous week.

Briefly around the business scene: The nation's railroads are expected to earn $450 million in profits this year against $382 million in 1961 . . . Major tire manufacturers raised prices three to five per cent . . . U.S. cigarette exports this year are estimated at 1.98 billion packs worth $174 million.

Monroe Branch Opendy By Firm

Lewis Transfer and Storage Co., Inc. marked its 16th year in business this month in Shreveport by announcing the opening of a branch office and warehouse in Monroe.

The new plant is located at 504 Olive St., with Gerald Sylvester as local manager. Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester and their two sons have recently moved here from Shreveport.

THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks moved higher for the second straight week closing Friday at 227.2, up from 222.5 a week ago. The commodity index advanced to 161.4, up from 161.1 the preceding week. Food showed the biggest gain. (AP Wirephoto)

About 6,500 producers, refiners, pipeliners and marketers will attend the 42nd meeting of the American Petroleum Institute.

In checking on the general health of the domestic industry, the oilman will find 1962 has exceeded expectations in some phases of operations.

API officials a year ago said demand for petroleum products this year probably would increase no more than 3 per cent. A survey released last week estimated the year's actual gain at 4½ per cent.

Drilling operations have continued to lag, however, and gasoline price wars have plagued refiners and marketers from time to time across the country.

In addition to reviewing domestic problems, the oilmen will be briefed on the possible impact of new world trade policies.

Most of the industry's 1962 problems on the Washington scene will be carried over into 1963—federal regulation of natural gas wellhead prices, imports, and defense of the industry's controversial 27½ per cent depletion tax allowance.

A year ago the API bolstered its Washington staff by electing Frank N. Ikard, a Texas congressman, as its executive vice president. Ikard was a member of the House Ways and Means Committee when he resigned to accept the API appointment.

Ikard is to make his first formal report at Monday's opening general session.

L. M. McCollum, API board chairman and president of the Continental Oil Co., Houston, submits his report Wednesday.

Also on the Wednesday program will be John M. Kelly, assistant interior secretary for mineral resources.

Kelly, a former New Mexico independent oil operator, returns to Chicago amid speculation he may announce oil imports quotas for the first half of 1963.

There was similar speculation a year ago when Kelly spoke here but he made only indirect reference to the mandatory imports control program.

The API has not taken an active role in the oil imports controversy in that its membership includes major importers as well as the independents who have sought stricter controls.

Ikard said last month another attack on the depletion allowance can be expected next year.

A formal statement made by the API last year said any reduction in oil and gas percentage depletion would threaten the development of adequate fuel resources for national security.

The 27½ per cent allowance survived three Senate attacks this year. All three attacks were considered relatively minor but oilmen fear a major tax reform proposal could promote a major attack next year.

Results of Tuesday's election indicate oil lost some friends who have given aid in the depletion allowance fight.

Mart Stands On Crest Of 2-Week Drive

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market today stands on the crest of a two-week advance linked with improving international and economic news.

As last week ended, the Dow Jones industrial average was above the Aug. 23 recovery peak of 616.00 — the highest previous point reached in the recovery from the June bottom.

During the past week the Dow industrials advanced 11.55 to 616.13. Based on closing averages, the Dow industrials rose 47.11 from Oct. 26, when the Cuban crisis was still in doubt, to this weeks close.

In addition to the reassuring fact that the Cuban crisis has passed with an apparent victory for the United States came some good news about dividends this week.

Chief among these tidings was the declaration by General Motors of a $1 extra dividend compared with 50 cents a year ago. Wall Streeters construed this as a sign of confidence in the economy by the nation's greatest manufacturing unit.

Wall Street's morale also was fed by booming auto sales and production, a rise in steel output and a brighter outlook for that metal, and record totals for September in manufacturing, wholesale, and retail lines.

The picture was still not one of an untroubled economy. There still remained evidences of a profit squeeze, but some Wall Streeters were beginning to ponder whether the well-advertised recession expected for 1963 had not been over-discounted by the market.

The four-day trading week was cut short by Tuesday's election, which was received in dead-pan fashion by Wall Street, some analysts maintaining that the mixed picture—cheered both by Democrats and Republicans—left little to go on.

The fact is, however, that the market advanced on election eve. It advanced the day after election. It paused for profit taking Thursday, to nobody's surprise. It resumed its rally Friday.

In the past nine sessions, the market has rallied vigorously on all but two. The decline this past Thursday and a mixed session Oct. 31.

Volume for the four-day trading week totaled 17,413,545 shares, compared with 20,072,955 for the full five-day trading week before.

On the bond market, government prices pushed to 1962 peaks in routine trading. Corporates registered a sixth advance in the past seven weeks, though the advance was moderate. Volume fell to $21,098,000 par value from $23,899,000 in the previous five day week.

Q. What's new and noteworthy?

A. An Italian tenor, a singing comedian, building excitement in the record market about the merger of samba and jazz.

EXHIBITS

He also once or twice exhibits a concluding high soft tone which also manages to ring.

Tightness and tension are noticeable on this album, of a kind familiar to anyone who ever propelled himself onto the stage of a junior class play. Side one and most of side two contain notes which sound forced. It would be interesting to know whether the songs were recorded in the order they're presented on the album or whether it is coincidence that Franchi sounds best on the last three. He seems to relax for "Fenesta che lucive," follows with a dramatic "Torna a Surriento" and concludes with "O surdato 'nnamorato," in which his voice is warm for the first time.

Franchi has appeared twice on the Ed Sullivan TV show and given a concert at Carnegie Hall. At the concert he sang Italian songs, two arias which his style didn't suit and several American pop songs which it suited exceedingly well.

Comparisons with Mario Lanza are inevitable. Franchi doesn't "sound like" Lanza, doesn't imitate his phrasing, wells and diminuendos. However, if he follows Lanza to Hollywood, surely nobody who has seen him will mind Franchi — tall, dark, handsome, and as slender as if he'd never heard of spaghetti — looks as good as he sounds.

"My Son, the Folk Singer" on Warner Brothers contains 10 very, very funny (clean) songs, written and sung by TV comedy writer and producer Allen Sherman.

This is Jewish humor, as the title indicates, but you don't need to be Jewish to understand — or laugh. Sherman avoids Yiddish and the too-far-inside joke.

He relys on puns, parody and unexpected lyrics to familiar melodies.

SMALL SAMPLE

Small sample:

Instead of My Lady "Greensleeves, a madrigal with that venerable tune tells of Sir Greenbaum, a knight who longs to live in Shaker Heights where he could engage in business and "give up smoting for good."

Sherman takes off on Harry Belafonte's style in "Seltzer Boy" ("Water Boy") and "My Zelda" ("she take the money and run with the tailor"). The latter "folk song" is interspersed with certain well-known commands, "Once again now," "Everybody!," "Sing out the chorus" and a whispered "Sing a little soft-ah."

Bossa nova, South American rhythms combined with jazz, was introduced in Brazil in 1959 and (if you don't count jazz alto saxaphonist Charlie Parker's early playing of it) in the United States within the last year. It was brought here by American musicians who had visited Brazil and heard it, most of them from singer-guitarist-composer Joao Gilberto.

Many bossa nova albums are out now, most of them instrumental. "Desafinado" and "One Note Samba" are making it as singles. The two newest LP entries in the burgeoning field are "Bossa Nova" by Lalo Schifrin on Audio Fidelity and "Big Band Bossa Nova" by Stan Getz on Verve.

We have only praise for Schifrin and company. Jazzman Schifrin, piano, Leo Wright, sax and flute, Rudy Collins, drums, and Christopher White, bass, all play in the Dizzy Gillespie group. Here they're joined by Jose Paulo and Jack Del Rio with Brazilian tambourine and gourd.

RESULT

Stan Getz followed his successful album of tenor sax improvisation, "Focus," with a collaboration with guitarist Charlie Byrd called "Jazz Samba." Now he plays more bossa nova with the Gary McFarland Orchestra. The eight selections, of which the talented McFarland wrote four, show a wide range of mood.

Getz, as always, is the virtuoso and superbly lyrical.

One way to choose — if you must choose — between these two albums: Getz if you like to hear a musician perform the music, the Schifrin combo if you like to concentrate on the music itself.

Cotton Futures Down For Week In Hedge Sellin

Oil Activity Up Again In Area; 11 Completions

Up one week, down the next for a period of more than a month, activity last week in the Monroe Oil & Gas District was nosing to the upside again.

District Manager Duncan S. Cook's listing of 11 completions in four parishes amounted to two more finals than the nine on the books a week ago. Three came in Ouachita Parish, all in the Monroe Field, while six were in Union and one each in Catahoula and LaSalle Parishes.

New locations in the 14 parish area represented about the only decline from last weeks totals, with Cook recording 18 as compared with 27. They were found in six parishes, with Ouachita accounting for two, both in the Monroe Field, as did Union and Rapides Parishes.

Catahoula Parish had five, Avoyelles, four, and Concordia, three.

The total on active rigs pushed up from 18 to 29 and were widely scattered in 10 parishes. Tensas Parish had most at 9, followed by LaSalle with five, Rapides with three, Ouachita, Caldwell, Concordia, Grant and Union with two each, and Avoyelles, Franklin, one each. The Ouachita rigs, in the Monroe and Cheniere Fields, both were drilling.

There was one recompletion during the week; it was in LaSalle Parish, the Olla Field, and was Placid Oil Co.'s La. Central No. 72 in section 30-10-3E.

Eight wells were plugged and abandoned during the week, but totals on inactive sites fell to 138. Locations numbered 52, of which were drilling.

New Amite County Oil Pool Opened

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—A new oil pool has been opened in Amite County.

The new pool was tapped by a wildcat well of Larco Drilling Co. and Best and Laumius, the Whittington No. 1 in sec. 4-2n-5e, about 2 miles southwest of East Fork.

In Adams County about one mile southwest of the Glen Aubin field, Hughest and New Oil Co. is testing its discovery, the Board of Supervisors No. 1, sec. 29-5n-3w at 120 barrels daily from a wildcat sand at 4,868-69 feet.

Cities Service appears assured of a discovery in Greene County at its Robinson Land Co. No. 1 wildcat in sec. 15-4n-8w, near sand hill. The well is below 11,900 feet and apparently has established production in two sands.

Drill stem test run in open hole at 7876-97 feet recovered 704 feet of oil. A second test at 11,387 feet recovered 1,772 feet of oil.

The contract depth is 13,000 feet and there are reports additional shows have been logged.

In Amite County about 3 miles northwest of the McComb Field, Sun Oil Co. is below 2,300 feet in its Stewart No. 1 wildcat in sec. 27-4n-6e. Also in Amite, Stover and Bellew are below 9,600 feet in their Wilson No. 1 wildcat in sec. 17-4n-5e, five miles northwest of Smithdale.

Two important wildcat tests are drilling in Covington County. Continental Oil Co. is below 7,600 feet in its Crosby No. 1, sec. 33-7n-14w, three miles northeast of Sandford It is a 14,300 foot try. Triad Oil & Gas is below 12,150 feet in its Rawls No. 1, Sec. 20-9n-16w, near Mount Olive, with the venture to go to 13,800 feet.

In the pool Creek field of Jones County, Texaco completed its Musgrove No. 1, sec. 22-9n-10w, flowing 326 barrels of oil daily from a Rodessa sand at 10,784-98 feet. A second sand in the Sligo is closed in until authority for dual completion is granted by the Oil and Gas Board.

Good Report Cards Scored By Businesses

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YOK (AP)— Many corporations are bringing home to their stockholders some good report cards for the third quarter of this year.

The better than passing marks are in the form of increased dividends which show that the profit record was generally good despite complaints in some quarters that the economy is sluggish.

Corporate profits are expected to hit or come close to record levels with fourth-quarter prospects generally bright.

Standard & Poor's Corp., a statistical and investment advisory agency, reported that 98 companies declared extra dividends in October, compared with 58 in September and 93 in October 1961. The swelling tide should peak out in December, it said.

The extra dividends to be paid in December will swell the Christmas stockings of millions of investors. This will inject new blood into the economic stream and likely ease any business slowdown that might develop after the first of the year.

More than one million stockholders— a good chunk of the nation's estimated 17 million shareowners — received glad tidings from General Motors Corp., the biggest U.S. manufacturer, the other day.

GM voted a $1.50-a-share year-end dividend, $1 above the usual quarterly rate and 50 cents above the 1961 year-end payout. The stockholders will split a total of about $425 million.

Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) will sweeten its checks 10 cents a share. Other firms getting ready to pay more include International Nickel Co., Bristol-Myers, Bigelow-Sanford and Singer Manufacturing Co.

Some of the extras are in stock rather than cash. Such a dividend was voted by Chris Craft Industries, Inc., the first for it since 1960.

But there are dark spots in the picture. Fourteen companies cut dividends last month, and there's sure to be a continuing trickle.

Two of the reductions were by industrial giants, U.S. Steel Corp. and Bethlehem Steel Corp., topranking in an industry hard hit by a profit squeeze.

As the year near an end, even more attention is being directed to the economic outlook for 1963.

Walter Heller, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said the first half of the year will be a testing period for the economy with either a mild recession or a mild expansion likely to occur.

The possibility of a recession this winter or next spring has been lessened by the Cuban crisis, in the opinion of the U.S. Savings & Loan League. Although a shooting war apparently has been avoided, the league said, the situation indicates greater defense spending.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York sees consumer spending as the key to future economic activity.

The retail picture for the Christmas season looks good, reported the National Retail Merchants Assocation. It said a survey of scores showed seven out of 10 responding merchants expecting sales to rise about four per cent over last year.

New car sales in October totaled 722,886, exceeding the old one-month record of 702,726 set in April 1955, the best sales year in the industry's history. Sales in October 1961 totaled 535,011.

To meet the demand, carmakers stepped up production during the week to an estimated 164,000 passenger cars, a record for the year for the fourth consecutive week. Output the previous week was 163,029 and for a year ago 152,376.

New orders for steel still lagged. Major users continued to depend on their inventories and the fact that they could get needed supplies through rush orders.

Steel output during the week amounted to 1,778,000 tons, up only six-tenths of one per cent from the previous week.

Briefly around the business scene: The nation's railroads are expected to earn $450 million in profits this year against $382 million in 1961 . . . Major tire manufacturers raised prices three to five per cent . . . U.S. cigarette exports this year are estimated at 1.98 billion packs worth $174 million.

THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks moved higher for the second straight week closing Friday at 227.2, up from 222.5 a week ago. The commodity index advanced to 161.4, up from 161.1 the preceding week. Food showed the biggest gain. (AP Wirephoto)

REVIEW PAST YEAR

Oil Operators Schedule Meet

By MAX B. SKELTON

CHICAGO (AP) — Major and independent oil operators meet week to review the surprises and disappointments of 1962 and prepare for the problems of 1963.

About 6,500 producers, refiners, pipeliners and marketers will attend the 42nd meeting of the American Petroleum Institute.

In checking on the general health of the domestic industry, the oilman will find 1962 has exceeded expectations in some phases of operations.

API officials a year ago said demand for petroleum products this year probably would increase no more than 3 per cent. A survey released last week estimated the year's actual gain at 4½ per cent.

Drilling operations have continued to lag, however, and gasoline price wars have plagued refiners and marketers from time to time across the country.

In addition to reviewing domestic problems, the oilmen will be briefed on the possible impact of new world trade policies.

Most of the industry's 1962 problems on the Washington scene will be carried over into 1963—federal regulation of natural gas wellhead prices, imports, and defense of the industry's controversial 27½ per cent depletion tax allowance.

A year ago the API bolstered its Washington staff by electing Frank N. Ikard, a Texas congressman, as its executive vice president. Ikard was a member of the House Ways and Means Committee when he resigned to accept the API appointment.

Ikard is to make his first formal report at Monday's opening general session.

L. M. McCollum, API board chairman and president of the Continental Oil Co., Houston, submits his report Wednesday.

Also on the Wednesday program will be John M. Kelly, assistant interior secretary for mineral resources.

Kelly, a former New Mexico independent oil operator, returns to Chicago amid speculation he may announce oil imports quotas for the first half of 1963.

There was similar speculation a year ago when Kelly spoke here but he made only indirect reference to the mandatory imports control program.

The API has not taken an active role in the oil imports controversy in that its membership includes major importers as well as the independents who have sought stricter controls.

Ikard said last month another attack on the depletion allowance can be expected next year.

A formal statement made by the API last year said any reduction in oil and gas percentage depletion would threaten the development of adequate fuel resources for national security.

The 27½ per cent allowance survived three Senate attacks this year. All three attacks were considered relatively minor but oilmen fear a major tax reform proposal could promote a major attack next year.

Results of Tuesday's election indicate oil lost some friends who have given aid in the depletion allowance fight.

Mart Stands On Crest Of 2-Week Drive

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market today stands on the crest of a two-week advance linked with improving international and economic news.

As last week ended, the Dow Jones industrial average was above the Aug. 23 recovery peak of 616.00 — the highest previous point reached in the recovery from the June bottom.

During the past week the Dow industrials advanced 11.55 to 616.13. Based on closing averages, the Dow industrials rose 47.11 from Oct. 26, when the Cuban crisis was still in doubt, to this weeks close.

In addition to the reassuring fact that the Cuban crisis has passed with an apparent victory for the United States came some good news about dividends this week.

Chief among these tidings was the declaration by General Motors of a $1 extra dividend compared with 50 cents a year ago. Wall Streeters construed this as a sign of confidence in the economy by the nation's greatest manufacturing unit.

Wall Street's morale also was fed by booming auto sales and production, a rise in steel output and a brighter outlook for that metal, and record totals for September in manufacturing, wholesale, and retail lines.

The picture was still not one of an untroubled economy. There still remained evidences of a profit squeeze; but some Wall Streeters were beginning to ponder whether the well-advertised recession expected for 1963 had not been over-discounted by the market.

The four-day trading week was cut short by Tuesday's election, which was received in dead-pan fashion by Wall Street, some analysts maintaining that the mixed picture—cheered both by Democrats and Republicans—left little to go on.

The fact is, however, that the market advanced on election eve. It advanced the day after election. It paused for profit taking Thursday, to nobody's surprise. It resumed its rally Friday.

In the past nine sessions, the market has rallied vigorously on all but two: The decline this past Thursday and a mixed session Oct. 31.

Volume for the four-day trading week totaled 17,413,545 shares, compared with 20,072,955 for the full five-day trading week before.

On the bond market, government prices pushed to 1962 peaks in routine trading. Corporates registered a sixth advance in the past seven weeks, though the advance was moderate. Volume fell to $21,098,000 par value from $23,899,000 in the previous five-day week.

Q. What's new and noteworthy?

A. An Italian tenor, a singing comedian, building excitement in the record market about the merger of samba and jazz.

EXHIBITS

He also once or twice exhibits a concluding high soft tone which also manages to ring.

Tightness and tension are noticeable on this album, of a kind familiar to anyone who ever propelled himself onto the stage of a junior class play. Side one and most of side two contain notes which sound forced. It would be interesting to know whether the songs were recorded in the order they're presented on the album or whether it is concidence that Franchi sounds best on the last three. He seems to relax for "Fenesta che lucive," follows with a dramatic "Torna a Surriento" and concludes with "O surdato 'namorato," in which his voice is warm for the first time.

Franchi has appeared twice on the Ed Sullivan TV show and given a concert at Carnegie Hall. At the concert he sang Italian songs, two arias which his style didn't suit and several American pop songs which it suited exceedingly well.

Comparisons with Mario Lanza are inevitable. Franchi doesn't "sound like" Lanza, doesn't imitate his phrasing, swells and diminuendos. However, if he follows Lanza to Hollywood, surely nobody who has seen him will mind. Franchi — tall, dark, handsome, and as slender as if he'd never heard of spaghetti — looks as good as he sound.

"My Son, the Folk Singer" on Warner Brothers contains 10 very, very funny (clean) songs, written and sung by TV comedy writer and producer Allen Sherman.

This is Jewish humor, as the title indicates, but you don't need to be Jewish to understand — or laugh. Sherman avoids Yiddish and the too-far-inside joke.

He relys on puns, parody and unexpected lyrics to familiar melodies.

SMALL SAMPLE

Small sample:

Instead of My Lady Greensleeves, a madrigal with that venerable tune tells of Sir Greenbaum, a knight who longs to live in Shaker Heights where he could engage in business and "give up smoting for good."

Sherman takes off on Harry Belafonte's style in "Seltzer Boy" (Water Boy) and "My Zelda" ("she take the money and run with the tailor.") The latter "folk song" is interspersed with certain well - known commands, "Once again now," "Everybody!," "Sing out the chorus" and a whispered "Sing a little soft-ah."

Bossa nova, South American rhythms combined with jazz, was introduced in Brazil in 1959 and (if you don't count jazz alto saxaphonist Charlie Parker's early playing of it) in the United States within the last year. It was brought here by American musicians who had visited Brazil and heard it, most of them from singer-guitarist-composer Joao Gilberto.

Many bossa nova albums are out now, most of them instrumental, "Desafinado" and "One Note Samba" are making it as singles. The two newest LP entries in the burgeoning field are "Bossa Nova" by Lalo Schifrin on Audio Fidelity and "Big Band Bossa Nova" by Stan Getz on Verve.

We have only praise for Schifrin and company. Jazzman Schifrin, piano, Leo Wright, sax and flute, Rudy Collins, drums, and Christopher White, bass, all play in the Dizzy Gillespie group. Here they're joined by Jose Paulo and Jack Del Rio with Brazilian tambourine and gourd.

RESULT

Stan Getz followed his successful album of tenor sax improvisation, "Focus," with a collaboration with guitarist Charlie Byrd called "Jazz Samba." Now he plays more bossa nova with the Gary McFarland Orchestra. The eight selections, of which the talented McFarland wrote four, show a wide range of mood.

Getz, as always, is the virtuoso and superbly lyrical.

One way to choose — if you must choose — between these two albums: Getz if you like to hear a musician perform the music, the Schifrin combo if you like to concentrate on the music itself.

Cotton Futures Down For Week In Hedge Selling

NEW YORK (AP) — Futures prices continued to soften at the New York Cotton Exchange this week, closing 50 cents to $2.35 lower.

That drop compares with last week when the range was off $1.40 to $2.40.

The further softening reflected hedge selling and commission house liquidation influenced by slow exports.

Brakes were applied on the downtrend, however, by price fixing, short covering and buying attributed to technical considerations.

Also, the latest official crop forecast was smaller. The Department of Agriculture estimated the crop as of Nov. 1 at 14.5 million bales, down 122,000 from the estimate a month earlier.

He described himself as "a sizzling ham all my life."

SHUCKS WORTH SOMETHING

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The phrase "ain't worth shucks" does not hold true these days at Chenoa, a remote community in eastern Kentucky.

Carr's Cabin Crafts of Chenoa and Klarer Co. of Louisville have drawn up a contract for volume production of 12 different types of corn shucks dolls.

The brightly colored eight-inch dolls have brought employment to almost 40 families in the depressed mountain area.

AMUSEMENTS

Curtain Call

The Cinema 63 series opens Saturday, November 17, at 8:15 p.m. at Strauss Playhouse, with the award winning "Henry V," starring Laurence Olivier. In all, eight exceptional films will be shown between now and May at a subscription of $5 for adults and $2.50 for students. Information memberships can be obtained from Mrs. R. C. White Jr., at FAirfax 2-2137. You can also join at the box-office on November 17, if not sold out.

The coming week gives Little Theatre members and the entire community two other chances to support worthwhile cultural events. On Thursday at 8:15 p.m. in Brown Auditorium, the Northeast Jazz Ensemble offers a preview of the show it will take overseas for our men in uniform in western Europe.

We all recall the Jazz Ensemble's part in the success of "Damn Yankees" and "Bye Bye Birdie." By turning out for their concert, we can treat ourselves to an evening of the expert musical showmanship which has won them this honor and help them defray certain costs of the tour above the basic expenses underwritten by the USO and the Defense Department.

COMEDY

Then on Monday and Tuesday nights at 8 p.m. in Biedenharn Hall, the Northeast drama students will present a three act comedy, "Papa Is All," in which several Little Theatre players are featured. Under the direction of assistant speech professor Claude Fuller, who scored such a hit in "Come Blow Your Horn," the cast includes Murray Burfford, Mike Parkerson and Bill Wells with experience at Strauss Playhouse behind them.

The Little Theatre board met last Monday night at the home of Junius Cahn and reviewed a full agenda. Secretary Frances McHenry had just returned from New York where she squeezed eight shows into a short visit: "Mr. President," "Beyond The Fringe," "The Affair," "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf," "Tchin Tchin," "A Calculated Risk," "I Can Get It For You Wholesale," and "How To Succeed In Business." Only the last appears to be suitable material for us, she reported.

The Richard Clarks and Raymond Lucero spent last weekend in New Orleans, mainly to see Le Petit Theatre's showing of "The Best Man," which we have scheduled for later this season. They predict that our membership will go for this political drama. They visited briefly with Ivan Ittal who has "All The Way Home" in rehearsal for the Gallery Circle Theatre, his last before returning to New York.

Mrs. D. J. Hirsch is the latest to give costumes and accessories of earlier days to our wardrobe department. Costume chairman June Sherman at FA 2-9655 will be glad to hear about items of this kind.

Mr. A. M. Guerriero finally located a program of "The Cann . . ." which marked the first Little Theatre appearance of her son Louis who later directed eight of our plays and acted in others. Sylvester Breard came up with "Town About Man," leaving only eight programs on the wanted list: "Ice Bound," "Hay Fever" (1935), "Arms And The Man," "Ninth Guest," "No Time For Comedy," "Margin For Error," "Mr. Average American," and "Kind Lady."

"Hay Fever," is one of several shows we did twice, in 1935 and 1947. Others have been "Her Husband's Wife," in 1934 and 1950, "Our Town," in 1940 and 1957, and "Out Of The Frying Pan," in 1942 and 1953. "The Drunkard," was given in 1936 and again in 1947 but the second time was not part of the official Little Theatre season.

The program search has brought us in contact with many who took part in the missing ones including Mrs. Emma Alexander, Mrs. Thomas Davenport, Mrs. K. S. Elliott, Mrs. Nell Grigsby, Mrs. C. F. Jacob, Mrs. O. N. McNeil, Mrs. Charles Mulhearn, Mr. John Lewis, Mrs. Irene Read, Dan Armand Breard, Fred Fudickar and Bill Parker.

We need a current address for Mrs. Mildred Merrill and the former Kathleen Miller, anyone who knows where they are, please call Bob Evans at FA 5-3200.

'Manchurian Candidate' At Paramount

"The Manchurian Candidate," starring Frank Sinatra, Laurence Harvey and Janet Leigh, is now showing at the Paramount Theatre, through United Artists release. Written for the screen by George Axelrod (who co-produced with director John Frankenheimer) the suspense drama is based upon the highly controversial novel by Richard Condon. Angela Lansbury, Henry Silva and James Gregory co-star in the exciting tale of Washington espionage and political intrigue.

WEAKNESS

As in the book, the film chronicles the experiences of a hero (Harvey) whose Achilles heel is a personality weakness resulting from utter domination by his mother, Angela Lansbury. Returning from the Korean conflict a medal-of-honor winner, Harvey has no way of knowing that he is really a remote-controlled tool of the Communists who had captured him. It is Frank Sinatra who finally uncovers the terror and the national menace implicit in this one man, and who leads the chase to prevent disaster.

Beautiful Leslie Parrish is featured in the large cast, which includes James Edwards, John McGiver and Madam Spivy. David Amram composed the musical score. Executive producer for M. C. Productions was Howard W. Koch.

'If A Man Answers' Is Held At Jim

Combining romance and comedy in just about equal portions, Universal's Ross Hunter production, "If A Man Answers," which opens Wednesday at the Jim Theatre, is the perfect answer to anyone seeking momentary escape from today's stark realities.

Sandra Dee and Bobby Darin, happily brought together for the first time in "Come September," are again paired off, this time in frothy situations that heighten the conflict of, and the natural attraction between the sexes.

ADAPTED

Adapted from Winifred Wolfe's best selling novel, "If A Man Answers" is the story of the daughter of a French mother and staid Bostonian father whose life is filled with problems of love—first on how to trap the man she's decided to marry and then how to keep his attention focused on her. All of her problems in a hilarious and unorthodox manner from advice given to her by her mother. But the way they are solved could start a revolution among young married couples.

Micheline Presle was brought to Hollywood from Paris to give all the necessary authenticity to Sandra's mother. John Lund, as Sandra's staid Bostonian father plays his role to the hilt.

Additional strong assists in the acting department are delivered by Cesar Romero in the role of a mature continental playboy and by curvaceous Stefanie Powers as Sandra's former school chum who would like nothing better than to steal her husband.

Monroe Downtown Celebration Set

The paramount Theatre will host two main events of the Greater Monroe Downtown 157th Anniversary Celebration to be held Thursday through Saturday.

The costume contest finals, with a male and female entry from every downtown store, will compete in the costume finals on the theatre stage Thursday evening at 6. The theatre will be open free to the public at 6 p.m. to allow fellow store employees and friends of contestants to cheer their choice.

Cash prizes of $50, $25, and $15 will be awarded for the three best costumes for ladies and the same amounts in prize money will be given to the best dressed men.

Music for the event will be provided by the fiddlers of the northeast Louisiana area who will compete in the ole time fiddlers contest following the costume awards.

The children, of the Northeast Louisiana area, haven't been forgotten by the Greater Monroe Downtown Association as they are hosting a free "Baby Sitting" Party at 9:30 Saturday morning for all the children from one to 101.

The program will include stage contests and prizes plus two hours of cartoons and comedies. Mothers may "park" the little moppets at the theatre and visit the downtown stores during this annual anniversary celebration.

He described himself as "a sizzling ham all my life."

SHUCKS WORTH SOMETHING

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) —The phrase "ain't worth shucks" does not hold true these days at Chenoa, a remote community in eastern Kentucky.

Carr's Cabin Crafts of Chenoa and Klarer Co. of Louisville have drawn up a contract for volume production of 12 different types of corn shucks dolls.

The brightly colored eight-inch dolls have brought employment to almost 40 families in the depressed mountain area.

AMUSEMENTS

Curtain Call

The Cinema 63 series opens Saturday, November 17, at 8:15 p.m. at Strauss Playhouse, with the award winning "Henry V," starring Laurence Olivier. In all, eight exceptional films will be shown between now and May at a subscription of $5 for adults and $2.50 for students. Information memberships can be obtained from Mrs. R. C. White Jr., at FAirfax 2-2137. You can also join at the box - office on November 17, if not sold out.

The coming week gives Little Theatre members and the entire community two other chances to support worthwhile cultural events. On Thursday at 8:15 p.m. in Brown Auditorium, the Northeast Jazz Ensemble offers a preview of the show it will take overseas for our men in uniform in western Europe.

We all recall the Jazz Ensemble's part in the success of "Damn Yankees" and "Bye Bye Birdie." By turning out for their concert, we can treat ourselves to an evening of the expert musical showmanship which has won them this honor and help them defray certain costs of the tour above the basic expenses underwritten by the USO and the Defense Department.

COMEDY

Then on Monday and Tuesday nights at 8 p.m. in Biedenharr Hall, the Northeast drama students will present a three - act comedy, "Papa Is All," in which several Little Theatre players are featured. Under the direction of assistant speech professor Claude Fuller, who scored such a hit in "Come Blow Your Horn," the cast includes Murray Burfford, Mike Parkerson and Bill Wells with experience at Strauss Playhouse behind them.

The Little Theatre board met last Monday night at the home of Julius Cahn and reviewed a full agenda. Secretary Frances McHenry had just returned from New York where she squeezed eight shows into a short visit: "Mr. President," "Beyond The Fringe," "The Affair," "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf," "Tchin Tchin," "A Calculated Risk," "I Can Get It For You Wholesale," and "How To Succeed In Business." Only the last appears to be suitable material for us, she reported.

The Richard Clarks and Raymond Lucero spent last weekend in New Orleans, mainly to see Le Petit Theatre's showing of "The Best Man," which we have scheduled for later this season. They predict that our membership will go for this political drama. They visited briefly with Ivan Uttal who has "All The Way Home" in rehearsal for the Gallery Circle Theatre, his last before returning to New York.

Mrs. D. I. Hirsch is the latest to give costumes and accessories of earlier days to our wardrobe department. Costume chairman June Sherman at FA 2-9555 will be glad to hear about items of this kind.

Mrs. A. M. Guerriero finally located a program of "The Cajun," which marked the first Little Theatre appearance of her son Louis who later directed eight of our plays and acted in others. Sylvester Breard came up with "Town About Man," leaving only eight programs on the wanted list: "Ice Bound," "Hay Fever" (1935), "Arms And The Man," "Ninth Guest," "No Time For Comedy," "Margin For Error," "Mr. Average American," and "Kind Lady."

"Hay Fever," is one of several shows we did twice, in 1935 and 1947. Others have been "Her Husband's Wife," in 1934 and 1950, "Our Town," in 1940 and 1957, and "Out Of The Frying Pan," in 1942 and 1953. "The Drunkard," was given in 1936 and again in 1947, but the second time was not part of the official Little Theatre season.

The program search has brought us in contact with many who took part in the missing ones including Mrs. Emma Alexander, Mrs. Thomas Davenport, Mrs. K. S. Elliott, Mrs. Nell Grigsby, Mrs. C. F. Jacob, Mrs. O. N. McNeil, Mrs. Charles Mulhearn, Mrs. John Lewis, Mrs. Irene Reid, Dan Armand Breard, Fred Fudickar and Hillyer Parker.

We need a current address for Mrs. Mildred Merrill and the former Kathleen Miller; anyone who knows where they are, please call Bob Evans at FA 5-3200.

'Manchurian Candidate' At Paramount

WEAKNESS

As in the book, the film chronicles the experiences of a heel (Harvey) whose Achilles heel is a personality weakness resulting from utter domination by his mother, Angela Lansbury. Returning from the Korean conflict a medal - of - honor winner, Harvey has no way of knowing that he is really a remote - controlled tool of the Communists who had captured him. It is Frank Sinatra who finally uncovers the terror and the national menace implicit in this one man, and who leads the chase to prevent disaster.

Beautiful Leslie Parish is featured in the large cast, which includes James Edwards, John McGiver and Madam Spivy. David Amram composed the musical score. Executive producer for M. C. Productions was Howard W. Koch.

'If A Man Answers' Is Held At Jim

Combining romance and comedy in just about equal portions, Universal's Ross Hunter production, "If A Man Answers," which opens Wednesday at the Jim Theatre, is the perfect answer to anyone seeking momentary escape from today's stark realities.

Sandra Dee and Bobby Darin, happily brought together for the first time in "Come September," are again paired off, this time in frothy situations that heighten the conflict of, and the natural attraction between the sexes.

ADAPTED

Adapted from Winifred Wolfe's best - selling novel, "If A Man Answers" is the story of the daughter of a French mother and staid Bostonian father whose life is filled with problems of love—first on how to trap the man she's decided to marry and then how to keep his attention focused on her. All of her problems in a hilarious and unorthodox manner from advice given to her by her mother. But the way they are solved could start a revolution among young married couples.

Micheline Presle was brought to Hollywood from Paris to give all the necessary authenticity to Sandra's mother. John Lund, as Sandra's staid Bostonian father plays his role to the hilt.

Additional strong assists in the acting department are delivered by Cesar Romero in the role of a mature continental playboy and by curvaceous Stefanie Powers as Sandra's former school chum who would like nothing better than to steal her husband.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Show Theme Is Holiday

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The East Carroll Garden Club of Lake Providence brought the flower show to the Garden Center and T.V. last Wednesday. The theme was "Thanksgiving" in all it's wonderful splendor.

Chrysanthemums played the major role — all colors and sizes in all of the colorful arrangements. There were eight in all — so lovely that our student judge, Mrs. Leslie Clark, begged to comment only — not point score these designs. Her remark was, "They are all beautiful and so seasonal — you be the judge."

Five of the members of the club, their president, Mrs. C. R. Brown, included, made the arrangements. Also, unusual horticulture specimens were brought from the garden of Mrs. H. P. DuBose. Included in this display was a most unusual straw flower — pink into orange tones; two types of cockscomb celosia; Bells of Ireland, and a hugh dahlia — lavender color, at least eight inches across.

THREE DESIGNS

Mrs. K. E. Mangum made three of the arrangements using chrysanthemums in each. One of the loveliest of the three contained three shades of wine into pink decorative mums. The line for this design - a massed triangle, was made of purple salvia. A filler of salvia and Johnny jump-ups added interest. These colors were lovely in the purple glass compote container.

Mrs. C. A. Marlette made a large oval design — suitable for the Thanksgiving tea table. She used the light pink daisy-type (Country Girl) mum for her over all line coming down into a deeper color of pink in the same type and, for the focal area, she used a massed group of yellow into bronze decorative mums. The container was a porcelain white compote edged in turquoise blue.

SALAD BOWL

Mrs. Margie DuBose used a footed wooden salad bowl for her scalene triangle design — suitable for the table in the kitchen. The line was made of aspidestra leaves — two of which were rolled at the center of the design. For a filler in this line she used the bright golden marigolds — a perfect blend with the large Japanese persimmons that were used in the focal area. The leaves of the marigolds were used as a filler throughout the design. A real Thanksgiving motif for the kitchen — where friends gather during the holiday season.

Mrs. Brown, the club's president, made two arrangements — one featuring fruits and flowers — "The Thanksgiving Della Robia table arrangement." This was a real work of art. The container was an antique brass footed bowl with handles. The fruits were placed to form a horizontal design.

Two colors of mums were used as a filler with the fruits, dried artichokes and yellow squash. These red into gold tones softened the lines of the fruit and blended in with all the colors to form one harmonizing unit. To finish this design completely, accenting the Thanksgiving motif, she placed a pair of colorful pheasant figurines near the base of the arrangement.

Mrs. Brown's other design was oriental in feeling. She used eucalyptus branches to form a Hogarth line in a tall black Japanese vase which had been placed on a footed teakwood base. Within the line she used yellow into deep bronze mums. It is perfect for that long-lasting arrangement for the entrance hall.

DECORATIVE

The last design was a decorative candle made by Mrs. William Y. Bell. The large candle is a soft purple color placed in a large alabaster holder. She used dried materials for the floral design on the front of the candle which makes it a long-lasting decoration or conversational design. Cedar with white berries formed the slight Hogarth design. Eucalyptus pods, yellow and white statice, Hawaiian buds, pods from the jackaranda tree were used as a filler. The focal interest was a cluster of roses from the deodora tree tipped with gold paint. This is a wonderful idea for the decorations for the coming holidays.

Thanks again, for this wonderful and inspiring show from the East Carroll Garden Club. It was indeed a treat. We appreciate you coming such a long way to give us this flower show — one that we will long remember.

Watch next Wednesday — a real treat is in store — Mrs. Kaylor from Ruston will bring a driftwood program to us — don't miss it.

Dates to remember — The Arcadia Community Garden club presents Ronnie Merrill — Friday, November 16, at the American Legion Building — Arcadia, at 2:30 p.m. — admission is $1 per person. The subject is "Christmas Decorations." There are a few tickets available at the Garden Center. Make plans to hear this talented lecturer.

News — We have a brand new garden club in Monroe. It is located in the Lakeshore area. It's name — Primrose Path Garden Club. The president is Mrs. Wesley Jinks; vice-president, Mrs. Betty Frost; secretary, Mrs. Leroy Barnidge; treasurer, Mrs. M. E. Kidd; historian, Mrs. Tom Dillon; parliamentarian, Mrs. M. F. Deen, and reportor, Mrs. E. S. Miller. May we all offer our congratulations and tell you that we are glad to have you as one of our new Monroe Garden Clubs now listed with the Garden Center.

Preparation Of Soil Vital For Flowers

Poor soil preparation does not produce good results when planting camellias, reports F. O. LeVasseur, Lincoln Parish country agent.

The agent displayed photos of camellias planted in late January, following the hard freeze. The plants were healthy, having been kept indoors during the severe cold period.

"In October, the plants were smaller than they were when planted," said LeVasseur, "due to a compact condition around the soil."

LEAVES SMALL

Leaves were few and relatively small, indicating poor growing conditions.

The plants were set out in a sandy loam with a red clay subsoil that had good drainage. As the growing season advanced, the sandy soil became compacted like cement around the plants, making it impossible for them to obtain adequate moisture, even though they were watered often.

This prevented plants from developing adequate roots to supply them with necessary nutrition and moisture to sustain them properly.

The agent said that to insure good growth, well-rotted organic matter should be worked into the soil for an area of about three feet across. Rotted sawdust or wood material is appropriate for this purpose. Wood soils, well-rotted compost and peat moss are also good.

NEAR WALLS

If plants are to be grown near brick buildings it may be advisable to remove the top four inches of the soil. Often waste mortar from the brick may have raised the Ph above the seven level.

Certain plants such as the camellia and azalea will die under these conditions.

Additional information may be obtained in the following publications available through county agents and home demonstration agents: Caellias for the Yard; Grow Azaleas, Here's How; and Soil Management for Growing Shrubbery, by W. J. Peevy, a mimeographed publication.

THESE CAMELLIAS planted last January, failed to make much growth during the past summer because of a compact soil condition.

RUNNING THE SCALES

Alert Bell Sounds For Concert Drive

By JOHN CALE

The top tone sounds on the scales this week for the Northeast Concerts Association membership campaign which gets underway Monday.

The concerts group for the past several years has shown that a joint civic-educational undertaking is able to offer music lovers of the northeast Louisiana area the best in live professional entertainment.

The first attraction, slated for December 10, is the New York Critic's award musical comedy, "Carnival," starring Elaine Malbin, David Daniels as well as a full broadway cast.

Other attractions include the Vienna Choir Boys booked for January 27; the San Francisco Ballet, February 19, and the Dallas Symphony, March 6.

The general chairman of the association, Dr. Harry Lemert of the Northeast faculty, working with the association's board, secured the services of Mrs. Ben Oliphint and Farnk Parker to serve as co-chairmen of the membership campaign. Headquarters will be located at the Volkswagen Auto Agency on Louisville Avenue.

HISTORY

Membership concerts began for Monroe and West Monroe, back in the 1920's when the Civic Concerts services organized the first season. With the exception of the depression years in the early 1930's, there has been a season each year.

It might be mentioned here that L. V. E. Irvine of Louisiana Tech faculty helped get the musical ball rolling again in the post-depression years by soliciting memberships in his area and providing transportation this way for interested parties. As the enrollment increased at Tech during the years after World War II, also with the building of Howard Auditorium on the Tech campus, Irvine began work on the series for north central Louisiana. Both associations cooperate in the selections of professional talent to avoid duplications. Where possible, and it usually works out that way, La. Tech and Northeast concerts do not fall on conflicting dates.

Members of the Northeast group will be glad to hear that new sound equipment has been installed on the stage of Neville High School, a move which has been mentioned in these columns as "urgently needed" over the past several years.

Generally speaking, concerts in this area this season, along with the presentations of the Little Theatre, offer those in pursuit of culture more than they could select and attent in a much larger population center.

MAJOR PRODUCTION

The first major production of the Northeast speech department for the current school year, "Papa Is All," will go on the boards at Biedenharn Hall Monday and Tuesday of this week. Richard Clark is serving as director of productions in the absence of George Brian who is working for his Doctor's Degree in dramatics at LSU.

Best wishes are being extended to Del Sawyer and the Northeast Jazz Ensemble as the student musicians prepare for a European tour of U.S. military bases. A fund - raising concert by the group is set for Thursday of this week. During a performance here, nationally known trumpet player Billy Butterfield said of the ensemble, "No wonder no big name bands are booked in this area. These fellows do an adequate job themselves."

Stamp News

By SYD KRONISH
AP Newsfeatures

To focus world attention on international cooperation for the peaceful uses of outer space, the United Nations Postal Administration will issue a commemorative stamp on Dec. 3. This new stamp will honor the 28-member United Nations committee whose task it is to work on this particular project.

The main design is allegorical in nature featuring a glove and palms of peace emanating from the center into outer space. The stamp was designed by Kurt Plowitz of the U. N. Presentation Unit. The 4c is blue and the 11c is maroon.

First-day cover collectors desiring covers should send their addressed envelopes together with remittance covering cost of stamps to be affixed to United Nations Postal Administration, United Nations, New York.

Dahomey has honored the Red Cross with a set of four new stamps showing Red Cross workers in that country engaged in nursing and first aid. The centenary of the Red Cross movement will no doubt see many nations throughout the world issuing commemoratives for the occasion.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Old Shrubs Are Popular

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Amongst the older flowering shrubs, there are four of medium size that have always been popular. The little flowering almond, spiraea thunbergi, deutzia gracilis and the cut - leaf Persian lilac have many virtues to recommend them for garden use.

Even so - called "dwarf" shrubs grow out of small proportions here in the South where our season is long and winters are relatively milder than farther north. Consequently, the dainty little shrub which northerners know as flowering almond becomes a fair - sized bush down here.

It does not grow very fast, however, and it is very easy, with light pruning, to keep this exquisite little jewel down to almost any small proprotion you wish. The flower - studded branches are so delightful to bring into the house in late winter or earliest spring that many of them find their way to flower shows, and the shrubs never are allowed to get out of hand.

DOUBLE FORMS

The double forms of flowering almond (prunus glandulosa) so popular with us were developed by the Japanese years ago. In 1774 the famous Lee's Nursery in London produced the bright red variety. Both the white and the red forms are delightful in the early spring with daffodils and tulips. These little almonds are small enough to be planted right in the bulb beds. Since the twigs bear flowers almost to the ground, there is never any ragged appearance to well pruned specimens.

Spiraea thunbergi is also a handy little spring - flowering shrub that blooms with the bulbs. Most gardeners do not realize that they can cut this spirea well back each year and maintain it as a truly dwarf flowering shrub. It never fails to produce a display of light feathery white, and, in autumn, this spirea is the very last shrub to produce color. Its feathery foliage becomes yellow and then bronze right with the chrysanthemums.

SEARCH

We are always in search of late spring - and early summer-flowering shrubs that will not grow too big. Deutzia gracilis is the best answer to this problem that we have so far. It comes in both single and double flowers. It is very compact in growth, rarely over three feet tall and a dense mass of white flowers when in bloom. Although this little deutzia has been in southern nurseries for years and years, gardeners do not seem to grow it very much.

Cut - leaf Persian lilac is a sort of southern specialty. It is not known very much in northern gardens because it is apparently not very hardy to cold.

WILL AMERICA REMEMBER

ITS MISSION?

America has always set the world an example in science, business and trade, and intellectual progress. But its great mission could fail if we forget the pressing needs of higher education.

Our higher institutions are sharing a crisis. Colleges are in a squeeze. Some face shortages, and all have the besetting prospect of twice the number of applicants in less than 10 years!

We must remember to support our colleges, see to it they have good laboratories, modern classrooms and a staff of competent teachers.

Some of our most pleasurable moments are at the theatre when we see plays, concerts or other live entertainment and at our clubs, churches, schools or other organizations which present shows, skits or other talent. As spectators we are left with happy memories and perhaps a playbill or program.

Unfortunately our memories are short-lived and the program is soon discarded or vanishes into a drawer or box along with other forgotten mementos.

UTILIZE HOBBY

Why not utilize our hobby of photography to take pictures of these events? With color slides we'll have a permanent record of colorful costumes and artistic settings along with the show's personalities and dramatic highlights. Black-and-white pictures can be put into a photo album along with the printed program where they make a ready reference record, easy to find and talk about at any later date.

There are rarely any taboos on picture taking except in some legitimate theaters in some big cities. Even then the regulations which prohibit taking pictures are theatrical union rules intended to regulate the commercial use of the pictures.

Today, with high speed films in both color and black and white, it is fairly easy to capture the natural illumination of stage settings. In fact, it would be a mistake to use accessory flash or strobe light because it would tend to destroy the authenticity of the stage lighting or dramatic effect of a spotlight.

HIGH SPEED

High Speed Ektachrome Type B (for artificial light) is the fastest (ASA 125) color film available for both 35mm and 120 roll film cameras. Super Anscochrome Type B is also available in both sizes and is just a bit slower (ASA 100). An exposure of 1/50 at f/4 with High Speed Ektachrome has proved satisfactory on many previous occasions. This can be used as a starting guide because it is almost impossible to take accurate light meter readings from a spectator's seat. A possible exception is the Heiland Pentax Spot Meter which pinpoints an area of only three degrees for a reading, even from a distance.

In black-and-white, Tri-X film, with a speed of ASA 400, has proved very effective in capturing available light stage action with exposures of 1/100 at f/5.6. Super-Hypan film, though rated at ASA 500, is a bit slower than Tri-X in actual use, I've found. Royal-X pan film is the fastest roll film available (ASA 1600) but it fogs easily and is limited to the developer recommended by the manufacturer for best results.

SHOWS PHOTOGRAPHED

Many private organizations are glad to have their shows photographed and may possibly arrange front row seats for the purpose. In other cases, a seat in the center of the first row balcony or mezzanine of a theater offers many advantages. It will not attract the attention of the actors, eliminates any possibility of heads bobbing up in front of the lens and commands a good view of the entire stage.

If your seat is not near the stage, it's an advantage to use a 35mm camera with interchangeable lenses. Telephoto lenses will fill the frame fully or get close-ups. The normal 50mm or a wide-angle lens will show the complete stage setting.

A tiny penlight flashlight is a useful accessory when it comes to making camera adjustments inconspicuously in the dark. Needless to add, all of your picture taking actions should be as inconspicuous as possible.

Carry Over Best Plants

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

If you, Mrs. Gardener, have the storage area, try carrying over highly selected plants such as hibiscus, bougainvillea, and croton. These plants require little care and cool storage areas are best.

Keep the soil rather dry to harden off the plants. They will withstand the cold better than if they have tender vegetative growth. Large plants, hard to manage, should be severely pruned. This will, also, provide the proper ratio of leaf surface to the roots, some of which have been removed at digging time.

If you want to get in the yard these cool days, then clean the flower beds, cut back annuals and perennials that have finished blooming. Plant annuals that will survive the winter as pansy, sweet pea and calendula.

November and December are two excellent months for planting or transplanting trees. Most trees require several years to grow large enough to provide desirable shade, wind breaks, screens or baffles. So give some thought in the selection and placement of trees.

In planning an orderly landscape, group trees of the same variety rather than selecting different types for a given area. The order that is provided by having the same color, form and texture in one area is more pleasing than having a variety of textures, forms and colors which give a spotty appearance.

The direction in which your house is located is an important factor in the type of tree needed. The south, east and west exposures are important for shade needs, while to the north, wind breaks may be desirable. For the shade needs select from this group of trees.

Red maple, tulip tree, sycamore, golden rain, Chinese tallow and mimosa. For the bold massive effect that may be desired on the north, this group is excellent. Magnolia, live oak and pine.

HOLIDAY FASHIONS

It's holiday time again, the time when the feminine population gets the splurge of elegance and holiday fabrics and this year is ready for party going fashions. The most brilliant in the holiday color picture will be antique gold and jewel tones for luxury fabrics such as brocade. Very up - and - coming in the holiday scene is white cotton crepe. Women will find it a dazzling performer for both day and night fashions, and remember if you line that cotton crepe be sure to use cotton for the skirt lining to retain better shape.

Stiff brocades and printed velveteens are excellent materials for that evening coat for formal occasions or for late day social activities.

Pattern companies are featuring highlights of both American and European collections. So you, Mrs. Home Seamstress, can add that touch of foreign high fashion to your clothes closet this fall. Scarves, stoles, enveloping collars appear with dresses, separates, coats and suits. Choose a a heavy cotton tweed for a dress, then dramatize the outfit with a matching or contrasting scarf or stole.

COUNCIL MEETING

Remember the important council meeting Friday, November 16 at 10 a.m. at the Agriculture building. The outstanding club for the year will receive the Tyner Petrus silver coffee service. The club having the highest percentage of attendance at council meetings for the year will receive a $10 award from the Ouachita Valley Fair Association, and the best scrapbook from the 24 clubs of the parish will be the basis for $5 cash award. So your president, Mrs. L. J. Bowe, ask me to remind you to be on hand to witness the awards day program. Another highlight of the day's program will be the installation of officers, and Mrs. T. G. Stockwell, president of Logtown Club, will be in charge of the service.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Show Theme Is Holiday

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The East Carroll Garden Club of Lake Providence brought the flower show to the Garden Center and T.V. last Wednesday. The theme was "Thanksgiving" in all it's wonderful splendor.

Chrysanthemums played the major role — all colors and sizes in all of the colorful arrangements. There were eight in all — so lovely that our student judge, Mrs. Leslie Clark, begged to comment only — not point score these designs. Her remark was, "They are all beautiful and so seasonal — you be the judge."

Five of the members of the club, their president, Mrs. C. R. Brown, included, made the arrangements. Also, unusual horticulture specimens were brought from the garden of Mrs. H. P. DuBose. Included in this display was a most unusual straw flower — pink into orange tones; two types of cockscomb celosia; Bells of Ireland, and a hugh dahlia — lavender color, at least eight inches across.

THREE DESIGNS

Mrs. K. E. Mangum made three of the arrangements using chrysanthemums in each. One of the loveliest of the three contained three shades of wine into pink decorative mums. The line for this design - a massed triangle, was made of purple salvia. A filler of salvia and Johnny jump-ups added interest. These colors were lovely in the purple glass compote container.

Mrs. C. A. Marlette made a large oval design — suitable for the Thanksgiving tea table. She used the light pink daisy-type (Country Girl) mum for her over all line coming down into a deeper color of pink in the same type and, for the focal area, she used a massed group of yellow into bronze decorative mums. The container was a porcelain white compote edged in turquoise blue.

SALAD BOWL

Mrs. Margie DuBose used a footed wooden salad bowl for her scalene triangle design — suitable for the table in the kitchen. The line was made of aspidestra leaves — two of which were rolled near the center of the design. For a filler in this line she used the bright golden marigolds — a perfect blend with the large Japanese persimmons that were used in the focal area. The leaves of the marigolds were used as a filler throughout the design. A real Thanksgiving motif for the kitchen — where friends gather during the holiday season.

Mrs. Brown, the club's president, made two arrangements — one featuring fruits and flowers — "The Thanksgiving Della Robia table arrangement." This was a real work of art. The container was an antique brass footed bowl with handles. The fruits were placed to form a horizontal design.

Two colors of mums were used as a filler with the fruits, dried artichokes and yellow squash. These red into gold tones softened the lines of the fruit and blended in with all the colors to form one harmonizing unit. To finish this design completely, accenting the Thanksgiving motif, she placed a pair of colorful pheasant figurines near the base of the arrangement.

Mrs. Brown's other design was oriental in feeling. She used eucalyptus branches to form a Hogarth line in a tall black Japanese vase which had been placed on a footed teakwood base. Within the line she used yellow into deep bronze mums. It is perfect for that long-lasting arrangement for the entrance hall.

DECORATIVE

The last design was a decorative candle made by Mrs. William Y. Bell. The large candle is a soft purple color placed in a large alabaster holder. She used dried materials for the floral design on the front of the candle which makes it a long-lasting decoration or conversational design. Cedar with white berries formed the slight Hogarth design. Eucalyptus pods, yellow and white statice, Hawaiian buds, pods from the jackaranda tree were used as a filler. The focal interest was a cluster of roses from the deodora tree tipped with gold paint. This is a wonderful idea for the decorations for the coming holidays.

Thanks again, for this wonderful and inspiring show from the East Carroll Garden Club. It was indeed a treat. We appreciate your coming such a long way to give us this flower show — one that we will long remember.

Watch next Wednesday — a real treat is in store — Mrs. Kaylor from Ruston will bring a driftwood program to us — don't miss it.

Dates to remember — The Arcadia Community Garden club presents Ronnie Merrill — Friday, November 16, at the American Legion Building — Arcadia, at 2:30 p.m. — admission is $1 per person. The subject is "Christmas Decorations." There are a few tickets available at the Garden Center. Make plans to hear this talented lecturer.

News — We have a brand new garden club in Monroe. It is located in the Lakeshore area. It's name —Primrose Path Garden Club. The president is Mrs. Wesley Jinks; vice-president, Mrs. Betty Frost; secretary, Mrs Leroy Barnidge; treasurer, Mrs. M. E. Kidd; historian, Mrs. Tom Dillon; parliamentarian, Mrs. M. F. Deen, and reporter. Mrs. E. S. Miller. May we all offer our congratulations and tell you that we are glad to have you as one of our new Monroe Garden Clubs— now listed with the Garden Center.

Preparation Of Soil Vital For Flowers

Poor soil preparation does not produce good results when planting camellias, reports F. O. LeVasseur, Lincoln Parish country gent.

The agent displayed photos of camellias planted in late January, following the hard freeze. The plants were healthy, having been kept indoors during the severe cold period.

"In October, the plants were smaller than they were when planted," said LeVasseur, "due to a compact condition around the soil."

LEAVES SMALL

Leaves were few and relatively small, indicating poor growing conditions.

The plants were set out in a sandy loam with a red clay subsoil that had good drainage. As the growing season advanced, the sandy soil became compacted like cement around the plants, making it impossible for them to obtain adequate moisture, even though they were watered often.

This prevented plants from developing adequate roots to supply them with necessary nutrition and moisture to sustain them properly.

The agent said that to insure good growth, well-rotted organic matter should be worked into the soil for an area of about three feet across. Rotted sawdust or wood material is appropriate for this purpose. Wood soils, well-rotted compost and peat moss are also good.

NEAR WALLS

If plants are to be grown near brick buildings it may be advisable to remove the top four inches of the soil. Often waste mortar from the brick may have raised the Ph above the seven level.

Certain plants such as the camellia and azalea will die under these conditions.

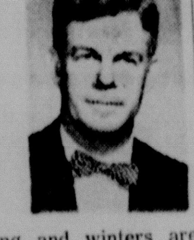
Additional information may be obtained in the following publications available through county agents and home demonstration agents: Caellias for the Yard; Grow Azaleas, Here's How; and Soil Management for Growing Shrubbery, by W. J. Peevy, a mimeographed publication.

THESE CAMELLIAS planted last January, failed to make much growth during the past summer because of a compact soil condition.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Old Shrubs Are Popular



By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Amongst the older flowering shrubs, there are four of medium size that have always been popular. The little flowering almond, spiraea thunbergi, deutzia gracilis and the cut - leaf Persian lilac have many virtues to recommend them for garden use.

Even so - called "dwarf" shrubs grow out of small proportions here in the South where our season is long and winters are relatively milder than farther north. Consequently, the dainty little shrub which northerners know as flowering almond becomes a fair - sized bush down here.

It does not grow very fast, however, and it is very easy, with light pruning, to keep this exquisite little jewel down to almost any small proprotion you wish. The flower - studded branches are so delightful to bring into the house in late winter or earliest spring that many of them find their way to flower shows, and the shrubs never are allowed to get out of hand.

DOUBLE FORMS

The double forms of flowering almond (prunus glandulosa) so popular with us were developed by the Japanese years ago. In 1774 the famous Lee's Nursery in London produced the bright red variety. Both the white and the red forms are delightful in the early spring with daffodils and tulips. These little almonds are small enough to be planted right in the bulb beds. Since the twigs bear flowers almost to the ground, there is never any ragged appearance to well pruned specimens.

Spiraea thunbergi is also a handy little spring - flowering shrub that blooms with the bulbs. Most gardeners do not realize that they can cut this spirea well back each year and maintain it as a truly dwarf flowering shrub. It never fails to produce a display of light feathery white, and, in autumn, this spirea is the very last shrub to produce color. Its feathery foliage becomes yellow and then bronze right with the chrysanthemums.

SEARCH

We are always in search of late spring - and early summer-flowering shrubs that will not grow too big. Deutzia gracilis is the best answer to this problem that we have so far. It comes in both single and double flowers. It is very compact in growth, rarely over three feet tall and a dense mass of white flowers when in bloom. Although this little deutzia has been in southern nurseries for years and years, gardeners do not seem to grow it very much.

Cut - leaf Persian lilac is a sort of southern specialty. It is not known very much in northern gardens because it is apparently not very hardy to cold.

ITS MISSION?

America has always set the world an example in science, business and trade, and intellectual progress. But its great mission could fail if we forget the pressing needs of higher education.

Our higher institutions are sharing a crisis. Colleges are in a squeeze. Some face shortages, and all have the besetting prospect of twice the number of applicants in less than 10 years!

We must remember to support our colleges, see to it they have good laboratories, modern classrooms and a staff of competent teachers.

RUNNING THE SCALES

By JOHN CALE

The top tone sounds on the scales this week for the Northeast Concerts Association membership campaign which gets underway Monday.

The concerts group for the past several years has shown that a joint civic-educational undertaking is able to offer music lovers of the northeast Louisiana area the best in live professional entertainment.

The first attraction, slated for December 10, is the New York Critic's award musical comedy, "Carnival," starring Elaine Malbin, David Daniels as well as a full broadway cast.

Other attractions include the Vienna Choir Boys booked for January 27; the San Francisco Ballet, February 19; and the Dallas Symphony, March 6.

The general chairman of the association, Dr. Harry Lemert of the Northeast faculty, working with the association's board, secured the services of Mrs. Ben Oliphint and Farnk Parker to serve as co-chairmen of the membership campaign. Headquarters will be located at the Volkswagen Auto Agency on Louisville Avenue.

HISTORY

Membership concerts began for Monroe and West Monroe, back in the 1920's when the Civic Concerts services organized the first season. With the exception of the depression years in the early 1930's, there has been a season each year.

It might be mentioned here that L. V. E. Irvine of Louisiana Tech faculty helped get the musical ball rolling again in the post-depression years by soliciting memberships in his area and providing transportation this way for interested parties. As the enrollment increased at Tech during the years after World War II, also with the building of Howard Auditorium on the Tech campus, Irvine began work on the series for north central Louisiana. Both associations cooperate in the selections of professional talent to avoid duplications. Where possible, and it usually works out that way, La. Tech and Northeast concerts do not fall on conflicting dates.

Members of the Northeast group will be glad to hear that new sound equipment has been installed on the stage of Neville High School, a move which has been mentioned in these columns as "urgently needed" over the past several years.

Generally speaking, concerts in this area this season, along with the presentations of the Little Theatre, offer those in pursuit of culture more than they could select and attent in a much larger population center.

MAJOR PRODUCTION

The first major production of the Northeast speech department for the current school year, "Papa Is All," will go on the boards at Biedenharn Hall Monday and Tuesday of this week. Richard Clark is serving as director of productions in the absence of George Brian who is working for his Doctor's Degree in dramatics at LSU.

Best wishes are being extended to Del Sawyer and the Northeast Jazz Ensemble as the student musicians prepare for a European tour of U.S. military bases. A fund - raising concert by the group is set for Thursday of this week. During a performance here, nationally known trumpet player Billy Butterfield said of the ensemble, "No wonder no big name bands are booked in this area. These fellows do an adequate job themselves."

To focus world attention on international cooperation for the peaceful uses of outer space, the United Nations Postal Administration will issue a commemorative stamp on Dec. 3. This new stamp will honor the 28-member United Nations committee whose task it is to work on this particular project.

The main design is allegorical in nature featuring a glove and palms of peace emanating from the center into outer space. The stamp was designed by Kurt Plowitz of the U. N. Presentation Unit. The 4c is blue and the 11c is maroon.

First-day cover collectors desiring covers should send their addressed envelopes together with remittance covering cost of stamps to be affixed to United Nations Postal Administration, United Nations, New York.

Dahomey has honored the Red Cross with a set of four new stamps showing Red Cross workers in that country engaged in nursing and first aid. The centenary of the Red Cross movement will no doubt see many nations throughout the world issuing commemoratives for the occasion.

ON STAGE — Exotic costumes and peak action make this a prized memory in our columnist's front-row scrapbook. It recalls the first time Roy Benson & Connye did an act in the Burmese manner for the Society of American Magicians in New York City. Using manual control on a Rolleimagic camera, the exposure was 1/50 at f/6.3 with Tri-X film.

Tribe Uses Defense For GSC Victory

By RICK BRYAN

Northeast State used a magnificent defensive line effort and a bevy of hard running backs to take one of its sweetest victories in the schools history, a 13-6 Gulf States Conference win over Louisiana Tech before an overflow crowd of more than 6,000 here Saturday night.

The Indians spotted Tech a touchdown the first time the Bulldogs got their hands on the ball, then marched back 44 - yards to score on halfback Joe Thrailkill's three - yard run.

STATISTICS

	Tech	NE
First Downs	13	9
Yards Rushing	-30	201

Quarterback Pete Vincent kicked the go ahead point for a 7-6 lead and the Indians never trailed from that point on.

The icer was freshman Robert Charles Payne's twisting 41-yard run through most of the Tech team. Vincent's extra point after the third quarter touchdown was off to the left.

Tech scored on a 77 - yard march in the first quarter, with the tally coming on fullback Wayne Noland's one-yard plunge. From that point on, however, an inspired Indian line put a great rush on Tech's passers and combined it with a rock - hard ground defense that repeatedly stopped Tech's efforts to offset the blitz.

The overall effort was so effective that Tech's net rushing total was minus 30 - yards, while the air game got only 158-yards, most of it in the opening half.

Ends Carlyle Williams and Drost, guards Billy Foster and Jerry Rambin, Billy Ross Graves, Sherrill Smith, Jim Love, Ross Nolan and center Tommy Beaube headed the Indian line attack, best of the season for Northeast. Beaube in fact, led the red dog charge that dropped Tech quarterback Mickey Slaughter seven times for a loss of 71 - yards. Green team quarterback Billy Laird was trapped on three occasions and lost 26 - yards.

The rush held Slaughter to 75-yards on eight completions in 15 attempts. Laird hit on six of 12 throws for 83 - yards.

Complementing the Indian defense was a hard - rushing ground attack, led by freshman Robert Charles Payne, who got one hard, twisting run after another. Payne rambled for 102 - yards on 12 carries. Fullback Willie Ragan was next with 28 - yards on seven efforts and Quarterback Ronnie Myrick followed with 19 on six.

The win was the second for Northeast in the ten - year old series with Tech, the Indians won 7 - 0 here in 1956.

Northeast is now 2 - 5 for the season and 1 - 4 in GSC play. Tech dropped to 4 - 3 overall and is 2 - 3 in the league.

Tech scored the first time it got its hands on the ball in the opening period, moving 77 - yards in 12 plays and going ahead 6 - 0 on Noland's one - yard plunge with 8:10 to go in the period. Indian end Drost broke through to block Hopkins kick attempt and from that point it was all Northeast, behind some superb line play that kept the Canine offense off balance.

In the drive Slaughter fired a 14 - yarder to end Jerry Griffin at the Indian 39. He then hit halfback Paul Labenne at the Tribe 28 and halfback Corky Corkern took a double reverse down to the Indian 14. Griffin then grabbed a nine-yard pass on the five, Noland plunged to the one, then went over on the next play.

Northeast stopped Tech quickly and little Robert Payne returned the ensuing punt from his 44 to the Bulldogs 44. But Corkern recovered Payne's fumble at the Tech 33 and the Green team rambled down to the Northeast four. Before an inspired Indian defense rose up to halt the bid. Main thrust for the march came on a 21 and 22 - yard passes from Laird to end David Lee.

Vols Overcome Greenies' Attack

By ALLEN GREEN

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Two sophomore wingbacks brought Tennessee from behind in the third period Saturday for a 28-16 victory over winless Tulane and the Vols' first Southeastern Conference success this season.

Tulane's Green Wave, which now has lost eight straight games, almost upset the Vols with a fantastic passing attack that saw the Green Wave complete 24 passes for 291 yards. End Clem DeHenger caught seven of them to run his total for the year to 35, a new Tulane record.

But the Green Wave's publicized "shotgun" offense turned out to be less precise than the old reliable Tennessee squirrel rifle. The Vols stuck to the ground for long runs that wrecked the Tulane line in the last half.

Tulane led 16-15 at halftime by bunching all its scoring, including one safety, in the second period. A lack of reserve strength showed in the final half.

Sophomore Tennessee wingbacks John Paty and Wayne Waff came up with the key touchdowns in the third period. Tailbacks Mallon Faircloth and Bobby Morton both ripped off long gains on the ground, and Paty scored on a 25-yard run to cap a 29-yard drive. Waff's clincher came on a 12-yard run that ended a comic opera sequence in which the two teams swapped four consecutive fumbles.

Tennessee had scored in the first period on a 44-yard drive in five plays set up by fullback George Canale's 21 - yard run. Canale carried it over from one yard out.

Gophers Stop Iowa Eleven With Defense

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Hard-nosed Minnesota blunted Iowa's running attack and took the edge off an expected Hawkeye aerial blitz with two key pass interceptions to chalk up a 10-0 Big Ten victory Saturday and remain in the thick of the conference title race.

The Gophers struck for a touchdown early in the fourth quarter to put it away after nurturing only a 3-0 edge from late in the first half on Collin Versich's 27 yard field goal.

Quarterback Duan Blaska guided the Gophers to their ony touchdown on a 44-yard march. He scored it himself on a dive into the end zone from the 4 just 1:19 into the final period. It was Blaska's flat passes to Gopher halfbacks in motion that got the bulk of the drive's yardage.

Southern Takes Win From Wiley

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Jaguar quarterback Carroll Holman, with three touchdown passes, led Southern University to a 24-0 Southwestern Athletic Conference victory over Wiley College in University Stadium Saturday afternoon.

Halfback David Huddleston was on the receiving end of Holman's first pass which came in the second quarter, a 27 - yard play, which gave the Jaguars a 10 - 0 lead which held through the halftime intermission. Wiley held the Jaguars scoreless during the third period. But Holman picked end Frank Pitts as his target and hit the lanky Terminal twice in the final stanza on aerials which accounted for 15 and 32 yards touchdowns respectively.

In the final touchdown, Pitts was the big hero, as he recovered a fumble by Wiley's Linnell Moore on the Wildcats 32.

Michigan Tops Illinois Behind Bob Chandler

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Michigan, aroused by Bob Chandler, wiped out a 10-point deficit within 3 minutes Saturday with two second-half touchdowns for a 14-10 victory over Illinois.

Chandler passed for one touchdown and scored the other on a quarterback sneak the Wolverines gave Coach Bump Elliott his third straight victory over his brother, Pete.

Pete, whose Illini ended a 15-game losing streak a week ago with an upset of Purdue, never has been a winner in the Big Ten's battle of brotherly coaching.

Kansas State In Slim 14-13 Win

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Kansas State missed a two-point conversion attempt Saturday and lost 14-13 to Arizona for its 16th straight football defeat.

The game was a marked improvement for K-State, which had tallied just one touchdown in seven previous games.

Crusaders Win

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Two fourth-quarter scores within a minute and 21 seconds threw a scare into Holy Cross Saturday but the favored Crusaders hung on for a 20-14 victory over Virginia Military Institute.

Cornell Takes Win

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—Cornell's Big Red scored in every period Saturday and, thanks to the accurate place kicking of Pete Gogolak, fashioned a 28-26 Ivy

Safety, Field Goal Account For Scoring

By BEN THOMAS

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Brilliant defensive play by Chinese bandit quarterback Dwight Robinson stopped the passing attack of 6-foot-7 Sonny Gibbs as Louisiana State squeaked past Texas Christian 5-0 in its final home game Saturday night.

The Tigers, still looking flat after their 15-7 upset by Mississippi last week, couldn't move the ball and stayed in hot water throughout the night as the 230-pound Gibbs — the Southwest Conference's top aerial artist — set a passing record.

	TCU	LSU
First downs	8	18
Rushing yardage	112	189
Passing yardage	131	31
Passes	12-27	2-12
Passes intercepted by	1	1
Punts	2-35.0	5-40.1
Yards penalized	10	49

He struck 27 times, completing 12 passes for 132 yards. He had one interception — a key one by Robinson which broke up a TCU threat as the third quarter ended.

Gibbs broke his own passing record of 26 tosses, set in last week's TCU Baylor clash.

His passing kept the ninth-ranked Bengals off balance the entire second half. The Tiger's 5 points came on a 34-yard field goal by quarterback Lynn Amadee and a safety, both in the second period.

The safety came when TCU's Gary Thomas, back to punt, got a bad snap from center Ken Henson on his own 26 and then got nailed in the end zone by Chinese Bandit end Mike Morgan.

TCU outgained the Tigers by 23 yards in total offense. The Horned Frogs got 112 on the ground and 131 on Gibbs aerial strikes.

The Bengals, now with a 7-1-1 record, had 189 yards rushing and 31 yards in the air. Each team got 18 first downs.

Robinson, a 175 - pound junior from Pontchatoula, played his finest defensive game as strategist for the Bandits. In addition to his interception, he broke up four long passes by Gibbs including two in the LSU end zone.

LSU came closest to a touchdown early in the fourth quarter when a 39-yard pass from Jimmy Field to senior end Gene Sykes was intercepted by the Frog's Jerry Terrell.

This was the first game this season that LSU's Jerry Stovall failed to score. However, the 195-pound senior gained 33 yards on the ground and snared one pass for 13 yards.

He punted five times for a 40.1 average.

Tigers Manage Win Over State

By DON MARTIN

AUBURN, Ala. (UPI) — Slick sophomores Jimmy Sidle and Tucker Frederickson pulled Auburn's faltering seniors together in the second half Saturday to give the Tigers a come-from-behind 9-3 win over Mississippi State.

Handicapped by penalties and sloppy line blocking throughout the first half, Auburn's hopes for a bowl bid were rapidly dwindling. But then Sidle's aerial wizardry and Frederickson's broken field running took over late in the third quarter.

With a first on the Bulldog 33 after a bullish six-yard run by sophomore David Rawson, Frederickson sprinted off right tackle toward the sidelines, cut back through a nest of tacklers for 22 yards.

Sidle bulleted one to Rawson for 14 yards and Frederickson carried four men on his back down to the five.

Frederickson picked up three more on the same play and then junior George Rose cracked over for the only touchdown of the game. Woodall's kick was wide to the left.

Mississippi State's field goal came with less than two minutes to go in the first half after senior quarterback Charlie Furlow set it up by punting out of bounds on the Tiger two-yard line. The Tigers could get no where and kicked out to their 40 where they were penalized half the distance to the goal for a personal foul — the fifth of the game.

Auburn got its field goal practically the same way with 8:24 gone in the third quarter. Jon Kilgore booted out of bounds on the State two-yard line. When the Bulldogs couldn't move, they kicked out.

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (UPI)—Halfback John Sklopan grabbed a deflected pass and raced 48 yards, to score here Saturday night to start the University of Southern Mississippi on its way to a 33-6 win over Trinity College.

The Southerners were slow getting started and were leading only 12-0 at halftime, but came back in the final half using three players on scoring plays to rack up its victory over the San Antonio, Tex., visitors.

Talented quarterback Billy Coleman passed 44 yards to Sklopan in the second period to set up the second tally. Sklopan ran to the 1 on the next play and Coleman then sneaked over for the TD.

Boilermakers In Upset Win Over Spartans, 17-9

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Purdue, which for the past decade has exercised a football hex over Michigan State, defeated the favored Spartans 17-9 Saturday in a bruising Big Ten defensive battle.

Omer Ohl converted the Boilermakers' first touchdown in the third period and then added a 27-yard field goal in the fourth to keep the Boilermakers in the race for a possible Big Ten title and a trip to the Rose Bowl. Purdue got an insurance touchdown with only 38 seconds left to play.

The Hoosiers, in losing their 18th straight Western conference game, played the Bucks to a standstill until the final seconds and had all the edge in the statistics.

Paul Warfield, speedy buckeye junior from Warren, Ohio, put the Bucks in front with a scintillating 75 yard touchdown run in the second period, and Indiana matched it with a 72-yard, 19-play drive at the start of the third session. Hoosier quarterback Woody Moore sneaked 6 inches for the counter.

Moore Leads Hogs By Owls In SWC Tilt

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Billy Moore ran for one touchdown, passed to sophomore end Jerry Lamb for two more, and rolled up 71 yards rushing in quarterbacking sixth-ranked Arkansas to a 28-14 Southwest Conference football victory over Rice Saturday.

Moore boosted his conference scoring lead to 66 points and his rushing lead to 485 yards in the important homecoming victory.

Arkansas has a 7-1 record and with victories in its last two games against Southern Methodist and Texas Tech could virtually assure itself of a bowl bid.

Rice quarterback Randy Kerbow mounted an impressive passing attack in the second half and threw to ends Gene Raesz and Jerry Kelley for the Owl touchdowns.

Arkansas' over-all strength and aggressiveness made the game far more lopsided than the score indicated.

Air Force Foils Bruins Win Idea

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —Brilliant junior quarterback Terry Isaacson displayed the field generalship of a future officer Saturday by guiding the Air Force Academy to a 17-11 upset football victory over the UCLA Bruins.

While a UCLA homecoming crowd of 25,588 looked on in astonishment, the 20-year-old Isaacson took the Falcons on an 83-yard march from the opening kickoff for a touchdown. The Bruins never could catch up.

Halfback Darryl Bloodworth skirted right end for the first touchdown. The Falcons picked up three more points in the third period on John Gavin's 25 - yard field goal and Isaacson set up their second touchdown in the final quarter with his second pass interception.

Richmond Wins

DAVIDSON, N. C. (UPI)—Richmond defeated Davidson 28-20 Saturday with three second-half touchdowns in a Southern Conference passing duel that gave the Spiders their fourth victory in a row.

Tribe Uses Defense For GSC Victory

Northeast State used a magnificent defensive line effort and a bevy of hard running backs to take one of its sweetest victories in the schools history, a 13-6 Gulf States Conference win over Louisiana Tech before an overflow crowd of more than 6,000 here Saturday night.

The Indians spotted Tech a touchdown the first time the Bulldogs got their hands on the ball,

then marched back 44 - yards to score on halfback Joe Thrailkill's three - yard run.

Quarterback Pete Vincent kicked the go ahead point for a 7-6 lead and the Indians never trailed from that point on.

The icer was freshman Robert Charles Payne's twisting 41-yard run through most of the Tech team. Vincent's extra point after the third quarter touchdown was off to the left.

Tech scored on a 77 - yard march in the first quarter, with the tally coming on fullback Wayne Noland's one-yard plunge. From that point on, however, an inspired Indian line put a great rush on Tech's passers and combined it with a rock - hard ground defense that repeatedly stopped Tech's efforts to offset the blitz.

The overall effort was so effective that Tech's net rushing total was minus 30 - yards, while the air game got only 158-yards, most of it in the opening half.

Ends Carlyle Williams and Drost, guards Billy Foster and Larry Rambin, Billy Ross Graves, Sherrill Smith, Jim Love, Ross Nolan and center Tommy Beaube headed the Indian line attack, best of the season for Northeast. Beaube in fact, led the red dog charge that dropped Tech quarterback Mickey Slaughter seven times for a loss of 71 - yards. Green team quarterback Billy Laird was trapped on three occasions and lost 26 - yards.

The rush held Slaughter to 75-yards on eight completions in 15 attempts. Laird hit on six of 12 throws for 83 - yards.

Complementing the Indian defense was a hard - rushing ground attack, led by freshman Robert Charles Payne, who got one hard, twisting run after another. Payne rambled for 102 - yards on 12 carries. Fullback Willie Ragan was next with 28 - yards on seven efforts and Quarterback Ronnie Myrick followed with 19 on six.

The win was the second for Northeast in the ten - year old series with Tech, the Indians won 7 - 0 here in 1956.

Northeast is now 2 - 5 for the season and 1 - 4 in GSC play. Tech dropped to 4 - 3 overall and is 2 - 3 in the league.

Tech scored the first time it got its hands on the ball in the opening period, moving 77 - yards in 12 plays and going ahead 6 - 0 on Noland's one - yard plunge with 8:10 to go in the period. Indian end Drost broke through to block Hopkins kick attempt and from that point it was all Northeast, behind some superb line play that kept the Canine offense off balance.

In the drive Slaughter fired a 14 - yarder to end Jerry Griffin at the Indian 39. He then hit halfback Paul Labenne at the Tribe 28 and halfback Corky Corkern took a double reverse down to the Indian 14. Griffin then grabbed a nine-yard pass on the five, Noland plunged to the one, then went over on the next play.

Northeast stopped Tech quickly and little Robert Payne returned the ensuing punt from his 44 to the Bulldogs 44. But Corkern recovered Payne's fumble at the Tech 33 and the Green team rambled down to the Northeast four, before an inspired Indian defense rose up to halt the bid. Main thrust for the march came on a 21 and 22 - yard passes from Laird to end David Lee.

Vols Overcome Greenies' Attack

By ALLEN GREEN

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Two sophomore wingbacks brought Tennessee from behind in the third period Saturday for a 28-16 victory over winless Tulane and the Vols' first Southeastern Conference success this season.

Tulane's Green Wave, which now has lost eight straight games, almost upset the Vols with a fantastic passing attack that saw the Green Wave complete 24 passes for 291 yards. End Clem Dellenger caught seven of them to run his total for the year to 35, a new Tulane record.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Statistics of the Tulane-Tennessee football game:

But the Green Wave's publicized "shotgun" offense turned out to be less precise than the old reliable Tennessee squirrel rifle. The Vols stuck to the ground for long runs that wrecked the Tulane line in the last half.

Tulane led 16-15 at halftime by bunching all its scoring, including one safety, in the second period. A lack of reserve strength showed in the final half.

Sophomore Tennessee wingbacks John Paty and Wayne Waff came up with the key touchdowns in the third period. Tailbacks Mallon Faircloth and Bobby Morton both ripped off long gains on the ground, and Paty scored on a 25-yard run to cap a 29-yard drive. Waff's clincher came on a 12-yard run that ended a comic opera sequence in which the two teams swapped four consecutive fumbles.

Tennessee had scored in the first period on a 44-yard drive in five plays set up by fullback George Canale's 21 - yard run. Canale carried it over from one yard out.

Gophers Stop Iowa Eleven With Defense

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Hard-nosed Minnesota blunted Iowa's running attack and took the edge off an expected Hawkeye aerial blitz with two key pass interceptions to chalk up a 10-0 Big Ten victory Saturday and remain in the thick of the conference title race.

The Gophers struck for a touchdown early in the fourth quarter to put it away after nurturing only a 3-0 edge from late in the first half on Collin Versich's 27-yard field goal.

Quarterback Duan Blaska guided the Gophers to their ony touchdown on a 44-yard march. He scored it himself on a dive into the end zone from the 4 just 1:19 into the final period. It was Blaska's flat passes to Gopher halfbacks in motion that got the bulk of the drive's yardage.

Southern Takes Win From Wiley

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Jaguar quarterback Carroll Holman, with three touchdown passes, led Southern University to a 24-0 Southwestern Athletic Conference victory over Wiley College in University Stadium Saturday afternoon.

Halfback David Huddleston was on the receiving end of Holman's first pass which came in the second quarter, a 27 - yard play, which gave the Jaguars a 10 - 0 lead which held through the halftime internission. Wiley held the Jaguars scoreless during the third period. But Holman picked end Frank Pitts as his target and hit the lanky Terminal twice in the final stanza on aerials which accounted for 15 and 32 yards touchdowns respectively.

In the final touchdown, Pitts was the big hero, as he recovered a fumble by Wiley's Linnell Moore on the Wildcats 32.

Michigan Tops Illinois Behind Bob Chandler

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Michigan, aroused by Bob Chandler, wiped out a 10-point deficit within 3 minutes Saturday with two second-half touchdowns for a 14-10 victory over Illinois.

Chandler passed for one touchdown and scored the other on a quarterback sneak the Wolverines gave Coach Bump Elliott his third straight victory over his brother, Pete.

Pete, whose Illini ended a 15-game losing streak a week ago with an upset of Purdue, never has been a winner in the Big Ten's battle of brotherly coaching.

Kansas State In Slim 14-13 Win

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Kansas State missed a two-point conversion attempt Saturday and lost 14-13 to Arizona for its 16th straight football defeat.

The game was a marked improvement for K-State, which had tallied just one touchdown in seven previous games.

Crusaders Win

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Two fourth-quarter scores within a minute and 21 seconds threw a scare into Holy Cross Saturday but the favored Crusaders hung on for a 20-14 victory over Virginia Military Institute.

Safety, Field Goal Account For Scoring

By BEN THOMAS

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Brilliant defensive play by Chinese bandit quarterback Dwight Robinson stopped the passing attack of 6-foot-7 Sonny Gibbs as Louisiana State squeaked past Texas Christian 5-0 in its final home game Saturday night.

The Tigers, still looking flat after their 15-7 upset by Mississippi last week, couldn't move the ball and stayed in hot water throughout the night as the 230-pound Gibbs — the Southwest Conference's top aerial artist — set a passing record.

He struck 27 times, completing 12 passes for 132 yards. He had one interception — a key one by Robinson which broke up a TCU threat as the third quarter ended.

Gibbs broke his own passing record of 26 tosses, set in last week's TCU-Baylor clash.

His passing kept the ninth-ranked Bengals off balance the entire second half. The Tiger's 5 points came on a 34-yard field goal by quarterback Lynn Amadee and a safety, both in the second period.

The safety came when TCU's Gary Thomas, back to punt, got a bad snap from center Ken Henson on his own 26 and then got nailed in the end zone by Chinese Bandit end Mike Morgan.

TCU outgained the Tigers by 23 yards in total offense. The Horned Frogs got 112 on the ground and 131 on Gibbs aerial strikes.

The Bengals, now with a 7-1-1 record, had 189 yards rushing and 31 yards in the air. Each team got 18 first downs.

Robinson, a 175 - pound junior from Pontchatoula, played his finest defensive game as strategist for the Bandits. In addition to his interception, he broke up four long passes by Gibbs includng two in the LSU end zone.

LSU came closest to a touchdown early in the fourth quarter when a 39-yard pass from Jimmy Field to senior end Gene Sykes was intercepted by the Frog's Jerry Terrell.

This was the first game this season that LSU's Jerry Stovall failed to score. However, the 195-pound senior gained 33 yards on the ground and snared one pass for 13 yards.

He punted five times for a 40.1 average.

CHARLESTON, S. C. (UPI)—The Memphis State Tigers scored almost every time they got their hands on the ball to overwhelm the Citadel 60-13 Saturday.

The powerful Tigers, with only one loss this season and that to a tough University of Mississippi team, moved with ease for 419 yards rushing and 104 yards passing through an injury - riddled cadet team.

Memphis scored two touchdowns in every quarter except the second when they scored three.

Tigers Manage Win Over State

By DON MARTIN

AUBURN, Ala. (UPI) — Slick sophomores Jimmy Sidle and Tucker Frederickson pulled Auburn's faltering seniors together in the second half Saturday to give the Tigers a come-from-behind 9-3 win over Mississippi State.

Handicapped by penalties and sloppy line blocking throughout the first half, Auburn's hopes for a bowl bid were rapidly dwindling. But then Sidle's aerial wizardry and Frederickson's broken field running took over late in the third quarter.

With a first on the Bulldog 33 after a bullish six-yard run by sophomore David Rawson, Frederickson sprinted off right tackle toward the sidelines, cut back through a nest of tacklers for 22 yards.

Sidle bulleted one to Rawson for 14 yards and Frederickson carried four men on his back down to the five.

Frederickson picked up three more on the same play and then junior George Rose cracked over for the only touchdown of the game. Woodall's kick was wide to the left.

Mississippi State's field goal came with less than two minutes to go in the first half after senior quarterback Charlie Furlow set it up by punting out of bounds on the Tiger two-yard line. The Tigers could get no where and kicked out to their 40 where they were penalized half the distance to the goal for a personal foul—the fifth of the game.

Auburn got its field goal practically the same way with 8:24 gone in the third quarter. Jon Kilgore booted out of bounds on the State two-yard line. When the Bulldogs couldn't move, they kicked out.

Southern Takes Team Of Texans

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (UPI)—Halfback John Sklopan grabbed a deflected pass and raced 48 yards to score here Saturday night to start the University of Southern Mississippi on its way to a 33-6 win over Trinity College.

The Southerners were slow getting started and were leading only 12-0 at halftime, but came back in the final half using three players on scoring plays to rack up its victory over the San Antonio, Tex., visitors.

Talented quarterback Billy Coleman passed 44 yards to Sklopan in the second period to set up the second tally. Sklopan ran to the 1 on the next play and Coleman then sneaked over for the TD.

Boilermakers In Upset Win Over Spartans, 17-9

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Purdue, which for the past decade has exercised a football hex over Michigan State, defeated the favored Spartans 17-9 Saturday in a bruising Big Ten defensive battle.

Omer Ohl converted the Boilermakers' first touchdown in the third period and then added a 27-yard field goal in the fourth to keep the Boilermakers in the race for a possible Big Ten title and a trip to the Rose Bowl. Purdue got an insurance touchdown with only 38 seconds left to play.

Moore Leads Hogs By Owls In SWC Tilt

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Billy Moore ran for one touchdown, passed to sophomore end Jerry Lamb for two more, and rolled up 71 yards rushing in quarterbacking sixth-ranked Arkansas to a 28-14 Southwest Conference football victory over Rice Saturday.

Moore boosted his conference scoring lead to 66 points and his rushing lead to 485 yards in the important homecoming victory.

Arkansas has a 7-1 record and with victories in its last two games against Southern Methodist and Texas Tech could virtually assure itself of a bowl bid.

Rice quarterback Randy Kerbow mounted an impressive passing attack in the second half and threw to ends Gene Raesz and Jerry Kelley for the Owl touchdowns.

Arkansas' over-all strength and aggressiveness made the game far more lopsided than the score indicated.

Penn State Wins As Pete Liske Sparks Victory

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI)—Penn State mounted an irresistible half air and ground attack as Pete Liske threw three touchdown passes to gun down outmanned West Virginia, 34-6, Saturday.

The Lions, held to a single touchdown in the first half by a stout Mountaineer defense, rolled at will in the last two periods and made a rout of what had been a close contest.

Liske threw two touchdown passes to Harold Powell and another to Bill Bowes as the Lions piled up more than 400 yards in the heaviest attack of the season.

Indiana Saturday with a 27-yard field goal in the last 8 seconds.

The Hoosiers, in losing their 18th straight Western conference game, played the Bucks to a standstill until the final seconds and had all the edge in the statistics.

Paul Warfield, speedy buckeye junior from Warren, Ohio, put the Bucks in front with a scintillating 75-yard touchdown run in the second period, and Indiana matched it with a 72-yard, 19-play drive at the start of the third session. Hoosier quarterback Woody Moore sneaked 6 inches for the counter.

Neither team was able to threaten many times because of the wet field and drizzling rain which kept the bands off the field at halftime.

Air Force Foils Bruins Win Idea

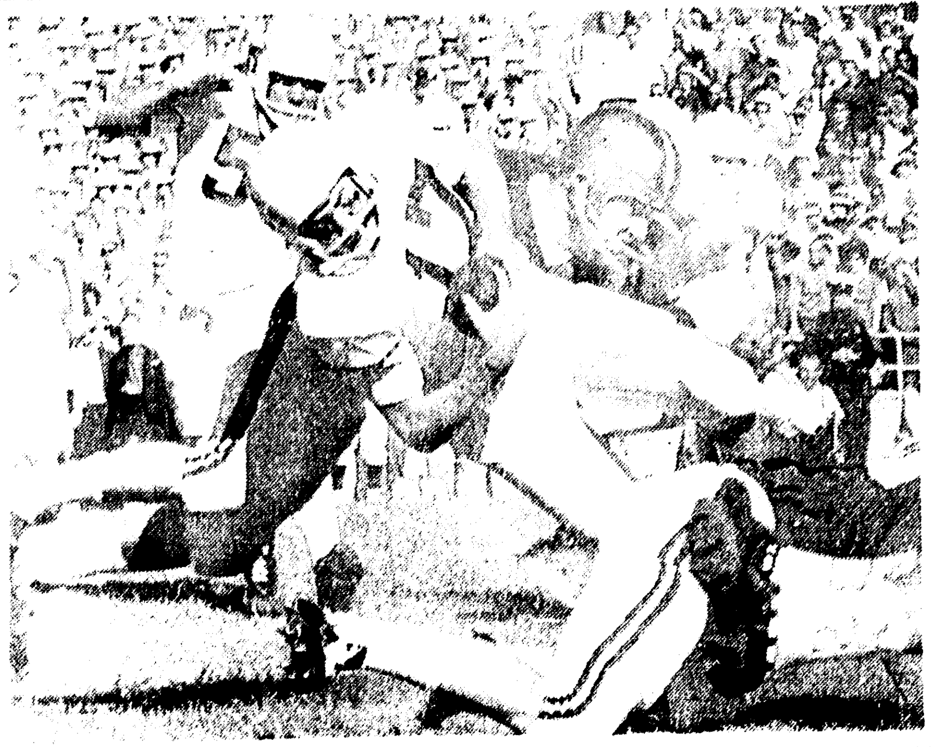
LOS ANGELES (UPI) —Brilliant junior quarterback Terry Isaacson displayed the field generalship of a future officer Saturday by guiding the Air Force Academy to a 17-11 upset football victory over the UCLA Bruins.

While a UCLA homecoming crowd of 25,588 looked on, the 20-year-old Isaacson took the Falcons on an 83-yard march from the opening kickoff for a touchdown. The Bruins never could catch up.

Halfback Darryl Bloodworth skirted right end for the first touchdown. The Falcons picked up three more points on John Gavin's 25-yard field goal and Isaacson set up the second touchdown in the final quarter with his second pass interception.

Richmond Wins

DAVIDSON, N. C. (UPI)—Richmond defeated Davidson 28-20 Saturday with three second-half touchdowns in a Southern Conference game to give the Spiders their fourth victory in a row.



TOMMY WADE (17), Texas' quarterback, fails to gain on this play after he couldn't find a pass receiver open. Wade sparked the Longhorns to a 27-12 victory over Baylor. Baylor halfback Ronnie Goodwin (40) and tackle Johnny Jessup (75) made the tackle. (AP Wirephoto)

Rebs Roll Over Opponents 52-7

By JAMES SAGUS

UNIVERSITY, Miss. (AP) — Fourth-ranked Mississippi toyed with little Chattanooga Saturday and rolled to a 52-7 victory.

The Rebels, who outclassed Chattanooga in every department, marched almost at will and scored in every quarter before 9,200 fans. Mississippi amassed 545 total yards from scrimmage to 129 for Chattanooga.

Ole Miss starters played seldom after the opening minutes and substitutes had a field day against the porous Moc's defenses. Seven Rebel backs scored touchdowns and Ole Miss added two safeties and six conversions for good measure.

Chattanooga showed its only threat in the second period as quarterback Ron Eisaman completed four of seven passes to carry the team 61 yards for its touchdown. The final 6 yards came on a toss to halfback Jim Bradshaw.

The touchdown closed the gap to 30-7.

The undefeated and untied Rebels scored three times on drives that required only four plays. Their longest scoring drive needed only 11 plays.

In the first quarter, quarterback Glynn Griffing launched a 15-yard touchdown pass to halfback Louis Guy after less than 4 minutes of play and reserves played most of the remaining time.

Before the period ended, halfback Larry Johnson scored on an 11-yard run and before intermission, Griffing threw a 32-yard pass to halfback Dave Jennings, fullback Frank Kinnard scored on a 1-yard thrust and Buck Randall sprinted 14 yards after hurdling a pile at the line.

In the third quarter, halfback Chuck Morris scored on a 1-yard thrust and in the fourth, quarterback Bobby Boyd on a 2-yard sweep.

Northeast smashed out 94 - yards in the first half with Ragan's 26, the big instrument. A hard charging Indian line limited the Canines to minus 15 - yards rushing, mainly on its tremendous passing rush, but Tech managed 123 - yards by the air route.

Neither team could get going in the opening minutes of the third period, but late in the third quarter Northeast took over on its own 41 and moved down to the Canine 41 on the running of quarterback Ronnie Myrick and Devone Payne.

At this point, Robert Payne found a hole in the left side of the Tech line, broke into the clear, cut back once, was hit several times, but managed to stay on his feet for a beautiful 41 - yard touchdown run. Vincent's kick with 3:13 to play in the period was off to left and the score was 13 - 6 Northeast.

The Canines couldn't move and Lee got off a booming punt from his 22 to the Indian two.

In the fourth quarter Tech moved from its 38 to the Indian 40 and booted back to the Northeast eight. The Canines then marched to the Tribe 30, mostly on a 12 - yard run by Gerald McDowell. Both times, however, a tremendous Indian defense stopped Tech.

Late in the stanza Northeast moved out to the 50 and punted to the Tech 25.

A screen pass to Labenne got the ball back to the Northeast 35 after Laird was thrown down at the 45, but Lairds' desperation pass into the end zone was broken up as the game ended.

Branum Has Classic Lead At Mid Point

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — John Barnum, a 62-year-old transplanted Texan, taught the youngsters how to play golf Saturday as he fired a 5-under par 31 to take the lead at the midway point in the third round of the $17,500 Cajun Classic.

Barnum put his tee shot within 18 inches of the cup on the ninth hole and then sunk it for a birdie 2 to forge one stroke ahead of Gay Brewer — 19 years his junior — after 45 holes.

Barnum had a 169 to Brewer's 170.

Virginia Tech Gets 37-8 Win

BLACKSBURG, Va. (UPI) — Sophomore quarterback Bob Schweickert dazzled winless Wake Forest with a 96-yard touchdown run and passed and ran for three more touchdowns to lead Virginia Tech to a 37-8 win Saturday.

Schweickert, unable to play in Tech's first four games this year shattered Wake Forest's defense and capped his surefooted running and passing attack with the school record run from scrimmage. The previous Tech record was a 77-yard run.

Wildcats Down Alabama Squad

PINEVILLE, La. (AP) — Fullback David Corley rammed across from the 2-yard line and then scored a 2-point conversion to give Louisiana College and 8-7 victory over Jacksonville (Ala.) State Saturday night.

Jacksonville scored in the third quarter on Arland Carter's 4-yard dash and Lamar Caldwell's extra point.

LC moved 66 yards in 13 plays to score with 6 minutes and 20 seconds to go in the last period with Corley spearheading the drive.

Clemson Roars For 44-3 Win

GREENVILLE, S. C. (UPI) — Clemson spotted Furman, its long-time cousin, a first quarter field goal and roared back with two touchdowns in each of the three remaining periods here Saturday for a 44-3 victory.

Furman, which hasn't beaten the Atlantic Coast Conference Tigers since 1936, put up a stern fight the first half. The outmanned Baptist team moved the ball on the opening kick-off far enough for Brownie Cordell, its paunchy kicking specialist, to register a 30-yard field goal.

Texas Topples Baylor As Wade Stars, 27-12

By MIKE OCHRAN

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Lightning streaked through cloudless skies Saturday in the form of quarterback Tommy Wade and the jolt carried nationally-ranked Texas to a stirring 27-12 victory over Baylor.

Wade, locked in a passing duel with Baylor's Don Trull, fired two touchdown bolts, dove one yard for another and directed the undefeated Longhorns to their seventh victory of the year.

With only a 14-14 tie marring their record, the Steers moved a giant step nearer their second straight SOUTHWEST Conference championship.

Wade hurled passes of 54 and 14 yards for the first two Texas touchdowns, spotting Tommy Lucas on the first and Sandy Sands on the second.

Passes	11-24	20-37
Passes intercepted by	1	0
Punts	4-27.2	7-33.1

Baylor, losing its sixth game in seven outings, scored first early in the initial quarter as Trull moved the Bears through the air to the 1, from where he sneaked in.

Halfback Ronnie Goodwin sailed an 18-yard payoff pitch to end James Ingram for the final Bear marker, which came in the third period.

Wade ignited the sputtering Texas attack with 11 completions in 23 passing attempts for 196 yardk while bull-like Ray Poage spurred the rushing attack with 77 yards on 22 trips.

Trull connected on 19 of 37 tosses for 217 yards but the Baylor ground game was ineffective for the most part and could muster only 53 yards against a massive Texas forward wall.

Comeback Balloon Bursts For Army

By WILL GRIMSLEY

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP)—A trio of slashing Oklahoma State backs — Wardell Hollis, Tommy Jackson and Don Karns—and a fierce gritty defense, burst Army's comeback balloon Saturday with a 12-7 upset victory at Michie Stadium.

WEST POINT, N. Y. (AP) Statistics of the Army-Oklahoma State football game:

A three-touchdown underdog, the fired up Cowboys of Stillwater, Okla., gave a thorough thrashing to the Paul Dietzel-revived team which had won six of its first seven games.

Knocked back on their heels when Ray Waldrop, Army's halfback, scored on a 40-yard run in the first 5 minutes, State rebounded for two touchdowns in the second period and then fought off two serious Army challenges in the scoreless final half.

The Cowboys drove 70 yards for their first score, climaxed by a 24-yard pass from Mike Miller to Mutual Bryant on the first play of the second period. The winning touchdown followed a pass interception by Jackson, who speared the ball on Army's 40 and carried to the 9, with Hollis scoring form the 3 on fourth down.

State slammed back with another 65-yard drive just before the end of the half which carried to Army's 9-yard line, but failed to score after a penalty for too many time outs and failure to get off a 30-yard field goal attempt before the halftime gun.

Army twice tried to pluck the game out of the fire in the last half when Oklahoma State's fighting line and alert secondary were too tough. The Cadets in the third period drove 60 yards form their own 11-yard line on the power running mainly of John Seymour, but the drive stalled when quarterback At Lewis was smeared by end Rodney Replogle on fourth down on the State 27.

Southern Cal Still Unbeaten After Indians

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Quarterback Pete Beathard scored two touchdowns which he set up with passes Saturday, leading undefeated Southern California to a 39-14 triumph over Stanford that kept the Trojans in front of the Rose Bowl race.

Fumbles lost	0	1

Ranked No. 2 nationally going into the game, the Trojans learned early that No. 1 Northwestern had fallen to Wisconsin.

Tom Lupo started the Trojans toward their third Big Six conference triumph, and seventh of the season, with a 32-yard field goal. Beathard followed with touchdown runs of 4 and 1 yards, culminating drives in which his passes of 27 and 37 yards to end Hal Bedsole provided the key gains.

Bill Nelsen, who alternates with Beathard at quarterback, threw 29 yards to John Brownwood and 4 to Phil Hoover for second half touchdowns.

Sophomore quarterback Criag Fertig tallied the final Trojan touchdown on a 5-yard run. Guard Damon Bame threw Ken Babajian in his end zone for two Trojan points, Lupo booted two conversions and Nelsen ran in a two-point try.

Snead, Palmer Cling To Lead

SAN ISIDRO, Argentina (AP) — Sam Snead and Arnold Palmer of the United States clung to their lead in the Canada Cup Golf Championship Saturday after Argentina's Fidel De Luca threatened it with five straight birdies.

At the end of 54 holes, the favored Snead-Palmer combination was still out in front with an aggregate score of 414, four strokes ahead of Argentina, with the final 18 holes scheduled for Sunday.

The day's play over the Jockey Club's 6,746-yard course near Buenos Aires was marked by numerous bogeys as tricky greens tripped up top professionals from 34 nations.

Boston In Win

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — Boston University outrushed the University of Connecticut Saturday for a 13-7 football victory before 6,000.

Joe DiPietro scored for Boston from the 1-foot line in the second period after a Boston drive of 34 yards on 10 plays. Phil Caito missed the conversion kick.

Middies Fall Overwhelmed By Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Unpredictable Syracuse reached deep into its bag of tricks Saturday to bewitch and overwhelm favored Navy 34-6.

Orange Coach Ben Schwartzwalder's tricks included changing his All-America end prospect, John Mackey, into a right halfback. The 215-pound senior put on a dazzling display, scoring two touchdowns—one on a 51-yard pass play and another on a 36-yard run.

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP) The statistics of the Navy-Syracuse football game:

Another surprise was the amazing revival of the Syracuse ground assault that had been held to minus 11 yards against victorious Pitt last weekend.

Don King, Syracuse's left half started the Orange off to its largest scoring campaign of the season by racing 70 yards to tally after hurtling two tacklers at 6 minutes, 52 seconds of the second quarter.

Syracuse rolled up a total of 341 yards on the ground and picked up another 130 yards through the air, completing eight of 11 passes.

Missouri Rips Colorado, 57-10

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Johnny Roland scored three touchdowns as Missouri swept the bench and scored in every quarter to defeat Colorado 57-10 in a Big Eight Conference football rout Saturday.

The victory gave the undefeated Tigers a 5-0 conference mark and set the stage for a showdown with Oklahoma, also undefeated in league play, at Norman next Saturday. The only blot in eight games for seventh - ranked Missouri is a scoreless tie with Minnesota.

RICE QUARTERBACK Randall Kerbow picks up good yardage on this first half play against Arkansas Saturday in Fayetteville. Two Razorbacks missed the chance to stop him and he broke into the secondary before being hauled down. Arkansas won 28-14. (AP Wirephoto)

Badgers Rip Cats From Undefeated

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Rose Bowl-minded Wisconsin shocked Northwestern, the nation's No. 1 football power, with an explosive attack and a bruising defense in knocking the Wildcats from the unbeaten ranks 37-6 Saturday behind the brilliant masterminding of Ron Vander Kelen.

The Badgers, rated eighth in the country, scored a touchdown and a field goal the first two times they had the ball and then buried the stunned Wildcats with a 21-point outburst in the third period.

Gary Kroner, a senior halfback who had not scored a touchdown this season, tallied the first 17 points and then added a pair of conversions. Lou Holland, a junior speedster, scored the last three Wisconsin touchdowns on a pair of sparkling runs and a pass from Vander Kelen.

Northwestern, which had rolled to six straight victories, managed to avert a shutout on a 39-yard pass maneuver, Tom Myers pitching to Steve Murphy midway through the final period.

Wisconsin, the nation's highest scoring machine, boosted its output to 236 points in six victories and one defeat. The lone setback was a 14-7 decision to Ohio State.

The Badgers, who have surrendered a mere 73 points, threw up a rugged defense, in halting the aerial acrobatics of Myers, a sensational sophomore. Wisconsin gave up short yardage on passes in warding off the threat of long-gaining bombs virtually the entire game.

Vander Kelen, a senior quarterback who had played only 90 seconds of varsity ball prior to this fall, directed the Badgers on an 80-yard scoring march after the defense had thrown back a scoring bid by Northwestern in the early minutes.

Vandy, who was aided in the drive by Holland's three runs for 30 yards, capped a surge by hitting Kroner on an 11-yard payoff maneuver. Kroner added the extra point and then booted his mates into a 10-0 halftime lead with a 38-yard field goal in the second period.

Kroner ignited the Badgers with a 44-yard return of the second half kickoff, dashing down the sidelines to the Northwestern 43. Three plays later, Vander Kelen rolled to his right and hit Kroner on a scoring shot covering 23 yards.

Notre Dame Crushes Pitt With Passing

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame's Fighting Irish, playing the brand of football with which they once terrorized the nation, crushed Pittsburgh 42-22 Saturday behind the superb passing of quarterback Daryle Lamonica.

Packing 22 points in the first quarter, Notre Dame scored its third victory in seven games and rolled up its highest point total in the four-year reign of Coach Joe Kuharich.

Lamonica, the 21-year-old senior from Fresno, Calif., who apparently found himself in last weekend's 20-12 victory over Navy, tossed four touchdown passes, three of which went to his favorite target, end Jim Kelly.

Texas Topples Baylor As Wade Stars, 27-12

By MIKE OCHRAN

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Lightning streaked through cloudless skies Saturday in the form of quarterback Tommy Wade and the jolt carried nationally-ranked Texas to a stirring 27-12 victory over Baylor.

Wade, locked in a passing duel with Baylor's Don Trull, fired two touchdown bolts, dove one yard for another and directed the undefeated Longhorns to their seventh victory of the year.

With only a 14-14 tie marring their record, the Steers moved a giant step nearer their second straight SOUTHWEST Conference championship.

Wade hurled passes of 54 and 14 yards for the first two Texas touchdowns, spotting Tommy Lucas on the first and Sandy Sands on the second.

Tailback Jerry Cook scampered eight yards for the third and

Baylor, losing its sixth game in seven outings, scored first early in the initial quarter as Trull moved the Bears through the air to the 1, from where he sneaked in.

Halfback Ronnie Goodwin sailed an 18-yard payoff pitch to end James Ingram for the final Bear marker, which came in the third period.

Wade ignited the sputtering Texas attack with 11 completions in 23 passing attempts for 196 yardk while bull-like Ray Poage spurred the rushing attack with 77 yards on 22 trips.

Trull connected on 19 of 37 tosses for 217 yards but the Baylor ground game was ineffective for the most part and could muster only 53 yards against a massive Texas forward wall.

Ole Miss starters played seldom after the opening minutes and substitutes had a field day against the porous Moc's defenses. Seven Rebel backs scored touchdowns and Ole Miss added two safeties and six conversions for good measure.

Chattanooga showed its only threat in the second period as quarterback Ron Eisaman completed four of seven passes to carry the team 61 yards for its touchdown. The final 6 yards came on a toss to halfback Jim Bradshaw.

The touchdown closed the gap to 30-7.

The undefeated and untied Rebels scored three times on drives that required only four plays. Their longest scoring drive needed only 11 plays.

In the first quarter, quarterback Glynn Griffing launched a 15-yard touchdown pass to halfback Louis Guy after less than 4 minutes of play and reserves played most of the remaining time.

Before the period ended, halfback Larry Johnson scored on an 11-yard run and before intermission, Griffing thew a 32-yard pass to halfback Dave Jennings, fullback Frank Kinnard scored on a 1-yard thrust and Buck Randall sprinted 14 yards after hurdling a pile at the line.

In the third quarter, halfback Chuck Morris scored on a 1-yard thrust and in the fourth, quarterback Bobby Boyd on a 2-yard sweep.

Northeast smashed out 94 - yards in the first half with Ragan's 26, the big instrument. A hard charging Indian line limited the Canines to minus 15 - yards rushing, mainly on its tremendous passing rush, but Tech managed 123 - yards by the air route.

Neither team could get going in the opening minutes of the third period, but late in the third quarter Northeast took over on its own 41 and moved down to the Canine 41 on the running of quarterback Ronnie Myrick and Devone Payne.

At this point, Robert Payne found a hole in the left side of the Tech line, broke into the clear, cut back once, was hit several times, but managed to stay on his feet for a beautiful 41 - yard touchdown run. Vincent's kick with 3:13 to play in the period was off to left and the score was 13 - 6 Northeast.

The Canines couldn't move and Lee got off a booming punt from his 22 to the Indian two.

In the fourth quarter Tech moved from its 38 to the Indian 40 and booted back to the Northeast eight. The Canines then marched to the Tribe 30, mostly on a 12 - yard run by Gerald McDowell. Both times, however, a tremendous Indian defense stopped Tech.

Late in the stanza Northeast moved out to the 50 and punted to the Tech 25.

A pass interference call on a pass from Laird, intended for Corkern, gave the Canines the ball on the Indian 35.

A screen pass to Labenne got the ball back to the Northeast 35 after Laird was thrown down at the 45, but Lairds' desperation pass into the end zone was broken up as the game ended.

PINEVILLE, La. (AP) — Fullback David Corley rammed across from the 2-yard line and then scored a 2-point conversion to give Louisiana College and 8-7 victory over Jacksonville (Ala.) State Saturday night.

Jacksonville scored in the third quarter on Arland Carter's 4-yard dash and Lamar Caldwell's extra point.

Clemson Roars For 44-3 Win

GREENVILLE, S. C. (UPI)— Clemson spotted Furman, its longtime cousin, a first quarter field goal and roared back with two touchdowns in each of the three remaining periods here Saturday for a 44-3 victory.

Furman, which hasn't beaten the Atlantic Coast Conference Tigers since 1936, put up a stern fight the first half. The outmanned Baptist team moved the ball on the opening kick-off far enough for Brownie Cordell, its paunchy kicking specialist, to register a 30-yard field goal.

A three-touchdown underdog, the fired up Cowboys of Stillwater, Okla., gave a thorough thrashing to the Paul Dietzel-revived team which had won six of its first seven games.

Knocked back on their heels when Ray Waldrop, Army's halfback, scored on a 40-yard run in the first 5 minutes, State rebounded for two touchdowns in the second period and then fought off two serious Army challenges in the scoreless final half.

The Cowboys drove 70 yards for their first score, climaxed by a 24-yard pass from Mike Miller to Mutual Bryant on the first play of the second period. The winning touchdown followed a pass interception by Jackson, who speared the ball on Army's 40 and carried to the 9, with Hollis scoring form the 3 on fourth down.

State slammed back with another 65-yard drive just before the end of the half which carried to Army's 9-yard line, but failed to score after a penalty for too many time outs and failure to get off a 30-yard field goal attempt before the halftime gun.

Army twice tried to pluck the game out of the fire in the last half when Oklahoma State's fighting line and alert secondary were too tough. The Cadets in the third period drove 60 yards form their own 14-yard line on the power running mainly of John Seymour, but the drive stalled when quarterback At Lewis was smeared by end Rodney Replogle on fourth down on the State 27.

Ranked No. 2 nationally going into the game, the Trojans learned early that No. 1 Northwestern had fallen to Wisconsin.

Tom Lupo started the Trojans toward their third Big Six conference triumph, and seventh of the season, with a 32-yard field goal. Beathard followed with touchdown runs of 4 and 1 yards, culminating drives in which his passes of 27 and 37 yards to end Hal Bedsole provided the key gains.

Bill Nelsen, who alternates with Beathard at quarterback, threw 29 yards to John Brownwood and 4 to Phil Hoover for second half touchdowns.

Sophomore quarterback Criag Fertig tallied the final Trojan touchdown on a 5-yard run. Guard Damon Bame threw Ken Babajian in his end zone for two Trojan points, Lupo booted two conversions and Nelsen ran in a two-point try.

John Mackey, into a right halfback. The 215-pound senior put on a dazzling display, scoring two touchdowns—one on a 51-yard pass play and another on a 36-yard run.

Another surprise was the amazing revival of the Syracuse ground assault that had been held to minus 11 yards against victorious Pitt last weekend.

Don King, Syracuse's left half, started the Orange off to its largest scoring rampage of the season by racing 70 yards to tally after hurtling two tacklers at 6 minutes, 52 seconds of the second quarter.

The Badgers, rated eighth in the country, scored a touchdown and a field goal the first two times they had the ball and then buried the stunned Wildcats with a 21-point outburst in the third period.

Gary Kroner, a senior halfback who had not scored a touchdown this season, tallied the first 17 points and then added a pair of conversions. Lou Holland, a junior speedster, scored the last three Wisconsin touchdowns on a pair of sparkling runs and a pass from Vander Kelen.

Northwestern, which had rolled to six straight victories, managed to avert a shutout on a 39-yard pass maneuver, Tom Myers pitching to Steve Murphy midway through the final period.

Wisconsin, the nation's highest scoring machine, boosted its output to 236 points in six victories and one defeat. The lone setback was a 14-7 decision to Ohio State.

The Badgers, who have surrendered a mere 73 points, threw up a rugged defense, in halting the aerial acrobatics of Myers, a sensational sophomore. Wisconsin gave up short yardage on passes in warding off the threat of long-gaining bombs virtually the entire game.

Vander Kelen, a senior quarterback who had played only 90 seconds of varsity ball prior to this fall, directed the Badgers on an 80-yard scoring march after the defense had thrown back a scoring bid by Northwestern in the early minutes.

Vandy, who was aided in the drive by Holland's three runs for 30 yards, capped a surge by hitting Kroner on an 11-yard payoff maneuver. Kroner added the extra point and then booted his mates into a 10-0 halftime lead with a 38-yard field goal in the second period.

Kroner ignited the Badgers with a 44-yard return of the second half kickoff, dashing down the sidelines to the Northwestern 43. Three plays later, Vander Kelen rolled to his right and hit Kroner on a scoring shot covering 23 yards.

Night Hunters Beware

Night hunting has a way of breaking out just before and just after the Louisiana deer season opens each year. This year has been no exception.

This is especially true in the Delta parishes along the Mississippi River when game agents were moved into the Vidalia area to give a hand on "operation Chlorine."

When the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission made it known publicly that its agents were on the scene at Vidalia, the shooting began back home.

Evidence of this was brought out a few days ago in an announcement by Director L. D. Young, who said that 22 arrest cases for night hunting were made in recent days in Madison, Tensas and Concordia parishes.

Most of the persons arrested were local.

But "Operation Chlorine" is over now and the agents are back at home patrolling at night. Any hunter looking for deer meat at this early date is apt to bump into trouble.

Deer can be killed easily at night since they'll stand and stare into a light. This is the avenue to meat on the table but not sport.

Besides the arrests for night hunting, Young said commission agents have made "numerous arrests for illegal hunting of migratory waterfowl."

He stressed that people are being misled by rumors that enforcement activities will be lax.

Despite its opposition to the poor bag limit that Louisiana got for the coming hunting season, Young said particular emphasis will be made on enforcing regulations covering the hunting of ducks, geese and coots.

In passing, it should be mentioned that game laws were written for the preservation of our wildlife. Except for waterfowl, the bag limits are adequate and should serve as a standard for all.

Licenses On Sale

Deer hunters are getting prepared for the season, which opens the day after Thanksgiving. As usual there'll be some empty plates at the annual Turkey Dinner.

But hunters should not wait until the last minute to purchase their big game licenses required of all deer hunters to carry. They cost $2 each.

This is in addition to the regular $2 hunting license. You must have both to hunt deer, turkey and bear.

The big game licenses are on sale now at your sporting goods dealer and also at the sheriff's departments throughout Louisiana. Don't wait until the day before Thanksgiving.

Remember two years ago? Hunters who waited until the last minute sat up all night while the commission flew additional license from New Orleans.

Waterfowl Count

There has been a noticeable increase in ducks and geese going south these past few days, but the big flights are yet to come although that shouldn't be far off.

At any rate biologist Mort Smith is back on the job, surveying the waterfowl population from Central Louisiana to the Gulf Coast. It's not time to count heads in this neck of the woods, mainly because there aren't anough ducks around to make it worthwhile.

But Mort flew the duck country from October 29 through November 1 and came back with the following nose - count:

Of course most of the waterfowl showed up in Southwest Louisiana, which is the normal trend. And there were around 120,000 mallards in the state.

The big influx of ducks and geese, however, should come between now and Thanksgiving. But it'll probably be on up into December before we'll see waterfowl in large numbers around here.

Washington Report

From Washington, D. C., the 87th Congress enacted several bills pertaining to the outdoors and wildlife including a major item on wetlands acquisition.

This bill authorized an advance loan of $105 - million over seven years for the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife to initiate a "crash" program of wetlands acquisition.

But the bureau suffered a setback when permission was refused to buy or lease land in the critical "pothole" country of North Dakota and South Dakota.

Only the amount of $7 million of the emergency fund was appropriated for fiscal 1963.

On another important subject, the Congress improved the so - called Blatnik Bill to strengthen federal law on the enforcement of pollution regulations.

Grants for waste treatment plants available to municipalities such as Monroe were upped from $50 million to $80 million in 1962, $90 million for 1963 and $100 million thereafter for each of the following four years.

Congress also established three national seashores—Point Reyes National Seashore in California, Padre Island National Seashore in Texas and the Cape Cod National Seashore in Massachusetts.

Little Man's Corner

The little men made little news afield since interest has dropped off in the outdoors for the time being.

Joe Namath Gets Spotlight From Mira In Win, 36-3

By BILL TOME

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — Brilliant sophomore quarterback Joe Namath, running and passing with a verve that far overshadowed Miami ace George Mira, rallied unbeaten Alabama to 23 points within seven minutes Saturday for a 36-3 victory over the Hurricanes.

Penned up deep in their own territory for virtually the entire first half, second-ranked Alabama came back from a three-point deficit to overwhelm Miami, with Namath putting on almost a one-man offensive show.

Namath scored once on a one-yard dive and passed 12 yards to Bill Battle for six points. Then he passed to Battle for two more. Cotton Clark scored on one and six-yard runs to set an Alabama scoring record of 74 points. Jack Hurlbut scored on a one-yard plunge. Ingram Culwell passed to Battle for two and Tim Davis kicked two conversions.

Namath, whose first-season errors had on occasion hurt the Alabama attack in the past, picked up the battered Crimson Tide midway through the third period.

The cool sophomore, who picked up 65 yards rushing and completed 10 of 19 passes for 205 yards, started Alabama rolling with a 38-yard run on a keeper play to the Miami 41. He then passed 36 yards to Clark to put the ball on the Hurricanes' four. Clark took it in two plays later.

Three plays after the kickoff Hurlbut covered a Miami fumble 22 yards from scoring territory. Namath faded to pass, found no one open, and ran for 15 yards to set up Clark's sweep untouched from the six.

Before the period ended, a 33-yard Namath-to-Benny Nelson pass carried to the Miami 17 and Namath's 12-yard toss to Battle racked up another touchdown.

Sophomores Lead Florida's Victory

United Press International

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Sophomore standouts Larry Dupree and Tom Shannon combined power running and precision passing to lead Florida to a 23-15 victory over the Georgia Bulldogs before 45,000 fans at the Gator Bowl Saturday.

The dangerous duo were the teeth of an attack that gave the Gators their third consecutive win in the 40-game series. Fullback Jim O'Donnell shared the honors with a fine display of running and blocking.

Shannon's ever-changing strategy had Bulldog defenders moving consistently in the wrong direction, opening holes for slashing runs by Dupree and O'Donnell. Several times the lefthanded quarterback found his receivers covered and took off downfield on sparkling runs.

Dupree, ranked number two in Southeastern Conference rushing, brought fans to their feet with two tremendous touchdown runs—a 42-yard dash supported by a key block from Tom Gregory, and a 30-yard spurt. He carried 16 times for 111 yards, while O'Donnell carried 17 times for 80 yards.

LOTHRIDGE BOTTLED UP

By DAVID M. MOFFIT

ATLANTA (UPI) — Fired-up Florida State reeled off two long touchdown plays in the third period here Saturday to tie heavily - favored Georgia Tech 14-14.

A crowd of 43,802 was stunned by the ferocity of a Florida State defense which bottled up renowned Billy Lothridge and the Yellow Jacket offense for most of the afternoon.

The Seminoles, a 14 point underdog to the 15th ranked Jackets, scored both of their touchdowns within a four-minute span late in the third period. The first came on a 21-yard run by junior halfback Dave Snyder, who broke at least three tackles in his race to the goal.

Kicking specialist Doug Messer converted to tie the score at 7-7 and bring the Seminoles even for the first time since the game was five minutes old.

Four minutes later, sophomore quarterback Steve Tensi connected with sophomore end Fred Biletnikoff at the Tech 40 and the Seminole flankman outraced the defense the remaining distance to complete a 66 - yard touchdown pass play. Messer converted again and FSU led 14-7 going into the final period.

Georgia Tech, which scored its first touchdown early in the first period on a 25-yard pass interception return by senior fullback Mike McNames, tied the score midway through the final period when McNames lunged over from the one-yard line on a fourth down play.

Lothride, who had his worst afternoon of the season, kicked his second extra point to save the Yellow Jackets from defeat.

Florida State completely outplayed Georgia Tech in the first half, yet trailed 7-0 at intermission. The Seminoles out-gained the Jackets 135 to 39 in the first two periods and marched down to the Tech 8-yard line early in the second, but failed to score when Messer missed a 26-yard field goal attempt.

Tech seemed to come to life at the beginning of the second half and swept deep into FSU territory after the opening kick-off, mainly on a 20 yard run by Lothridge. But two penalties staggered the drive and then Seminole safety man Charlie Calhoun, a defensive star all afternoon, really broke its back when he intercepted a Lothridge pass.

TWO FIELD GOALS

Aggies Top SMU With Clark's Toe

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Mike Clark won his second game in two weeks with field goals Saturday as he booted 30 and 37-yarders in the final period to bring Texas A&M a 12-7 triumph over Southern Methodist.

Clark beat Baylor 6-3 with a pair of field goals Oct. 27 and his heroics Saturday that brought his field goal production for the season to five was a school record.

Southern Methodist was being tumbled from the Southwest Conference race by an Aggie team that already was eliminated.

The Aggies did it by cashing in on SMU fumbles. All three of their scores were set up by Southern Methodist bobbles.

It was a battle of fumbles since the Aggies were dropping the ball all over the lot themselves. An Aggie fumble led to the Southern Methodist touchdown.

Southern Methodist scored in the second period and it was a fine kick by Danny Thomas that went outside on the Aggie 9 that set it up.

John Sparling, the Aggie quarterback, fumbled and Ronnie Cosper recovered on the 9. Don Campbell made 8 in two runs then John Ed Clarke pounded over and John Richey converted.

That appeared likely to stand up because the Aggies couldn't do much moving under their own power. But Don Crowder fumbled a punt return and the Aggies recovered on the Southen Methodist 18.

Night Hunters Beware

Night hunting has a way of breaking out just before and just after the Louisiana deer season opens each year. This year has been no exception.

This is especially true in the Delta parishes along the Mississippi River when game agents were moved into the Vidalia area to give a hand on "operation Chlorine."

When the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission made it known publicly that its agents were on the scene at Vidalia, the shooting began back home.

Evidence of this was brought out a few days ago in an announcement by Director L. D. Young, who said that 22 arrest cases for night hunting were made in recent days in Madison, Tensas and Concordia parishes.

Most of the persons arrested were local.

But "Operation Chlorine" is over now and the agents are back at home patrolling at night. Any hunter looking for deer meat at this early date is apt to bump into trouble.

Deer can be killed easily at night since they'll stand and stare into a light. This is the avenue to meat on the table but not sport.

Besides the arrests for night hunting, Young said commission agents have made "numerous arrests for illegal hunting of migratory waterfowl."

He stressed that people are being misled by rumors that enforcement activities will be lax.

Despite its opposition to the poor bag limit that Louisiana got for the coming hunting season, Young said particular emphasis will be made on enforcing regulations covering the hunting of ducks, geese and coots.

In passing, it should be mentioned that game laws were written for the preservation of our wildlife. Except for waterfowl, the bag limits are adequate and should serve as a standard for all.

Licenses On Sale

Deer hunters are getting prepared for the season, which opens the day after Thanksgiving. As usual there'll be some empty plates at the annual Turkey Dinner.

But hunters should not wait until the last minute to purchase their big game licenses required of all deer hunters to carry. They cost $2 each.

This is in addition to the regular $2 hunting license. You must have both to hunt deer, turkey and bear.

The big game licenses are on sale now at your sporting goods dealer and also at the sheriff's departments throughout Louisiana. Don't wait until the day before Thanksgiving.

Remember two years ago? Hunters who waited until the last minute sat up all night while the commission flew additional license from New Orleans.

Waterfowl Count

There has been a noticeable increase in ducks and geese going South these past few days, but the big flights are yet to come although that shouldn't be far off.

At any rate biologist Mort Smith is back on the job, surveying the waterfowl population from Central Louisiana to the Gulf Coast. It's not time to count heads in this neck of the woods, mainly because there aren't anough ducks around to make it worthwhile.

But Mort flew the duck country from October 29 through November 1 and came back with the following nose - count:

2,636,500 ducks; 191,550 geese; 345,000 coots.

Of course most of the waterfowl showed up in Southwest Louisiana, which is the normal trend. And there were around 120,000 mallards in the state.

The big influx of ducks and geese, however, should come between now and Thanksgiving. But it'll probably be on up into December before we'll see waterfowl in large numbers around here.

Washington Report

From Washington, D. C., the 87th Congress enacted several bills pertaining to the outdoors and wildlife, including a major item on wetlands acquisition

This bill authorized an advance loan of $105 - million over seven years for the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife to initiate a "crash" program of wetlands acquisition.

But the bureau suffered a setback when permission was refused to buy or lease land in the critical "pothole" country of North Dakota and South Dakota.

Only the amount of $7 million of the emergency fund was appropriated for fiscal 1963.

On another important subject, the Congress improved the so - called Blatnik Bill to strengthen federal law on the enforcement of pollution regulations.

Grants for waste treatment plants available to municipalities such as Monroe were upped from $50 million to $80 million in 1962, $90 million for 1963 and $100 million thereafter for each of the following four years.

Congress also established three national seashores—Point Reyes National Seashore in California, Padre Island National Seashore in Texas and the Cape Cod National Seashore in Massachusetts.

Little Man's Corner

The little men made little news afield, since interest has dropped off in the outdoors for the time being.

White perch are biting in most places — like Lake Louie, Bayou Louie, Tensas River, Big Lake, Old River, Lake St. John, Lake Concordia, Lake Lafourche.

The dangerous duo were the teeth of an attack that gave the Gators their third consecutive win in the 40-game series. Fullback Jim O'Donnell shared the honors with a fine display of running and blocking.

Shannon's ever-changing strategy had Bulldog defenders moving consistently in the wrong direction, opening holes for slashing runs by Dupree and O'Donnell. Several times the lefthanded quarterback found his receivers covered and took off downfield on sparkling runs.

Dupree, ranked number two in Southeastern Conference rushing, brought fans to their feet with two tremendous touchdown runs—a 42-yard dash supported by a key block from Tom Gregory, and a 10-yard spurt. He carried 16 times for 111 yards, while O'Donnell carried 17 times for 80 yards.

LOTHRIDGE BOTTLED UP

By DAVID M. MOFFIT

ATLANTA (UPI) — Fired-up Florida State reeled off two long touchdown plays in the third period here Saturday to tie heavily - favored Georgia Tech 14-14.

A crowd of 43,802 was stunned by the ferocity of a Florida State defense which bottled up renowned Billy Lothridge and the Yellow Jacket offense for most of the afternoon.

The Seminoles, a 14 point underdog to the 15th ranked Jackets, scored both of their touchdowns within a four-minute span late in the third period. The first came on a 21-yard run by junior halfback Dave Snyder, who broke at least three tackles in his race to the goal.

Kicking specialist Doug Messer converted to tie the score at 7-7 and bring the Seminoles even for the first time since the game was five minutes old.

Four minutes later, sophomore quarterback Steve Tensi connected with sophomore end Fred Biletnikoff at the Tech 40 and the Seminole flankman outraced the defense the remaining distance to complete a 66 - yard touchdown pass play. Messer converted again and FSU led 14-7 going into the final period.

Georgia Tech, which scored its first touchdown early in the first period on a 25-yard pass interception return by senior fullback Mike McNames, tied the score midway through the final period when McNames lunged over from the one-yard line on a fourth down play.

Lothride, who had his worst afternoon of the season, kicked his second extra point to save the Yellow Jackets from defeat.

Florida State completely outplayed Georgia Tech in the first half, yet trailed 7-0 at intermission. The Seminoles out-gained the Jackets 135 to 39 in the first two periods and marched down to the Tech 8-yard line early in the second, but failed to score when Messer missed a 26-yard field goal attempt.

Tech seemed to come to life at the beginning of the second half and swept deep into FSU territory after the opening kick-off, mainly on a 20-yard run by Lothridge. But two penalties staggered the drive and then Seminole safety man Charlie Calhoun, a defensive star all afternoon, really broke its back when he intercepted a Lothridge pass.

TWO FIELD GOALS

Aggies Top SMU With Clark's Toe

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Mike Clark won his second game in two weeks with field goals Saturday as he booted 30 and 37-yarders in the final period to bring Texas A&M a 12-7 triumph over Southern Methodist.

Clark beat Baylor 6-3 with a pair of field goals Oct. 27 and his heroics Saturday that brought his field goal production for the season to five was a school record.

Passes intercepted by	2	2
Punts	6-41.3	6-45.3
Fumbles lost	5	3
Yards penalized	66	59

Southern Methodist was being tumbled from the Southwest Conference race by an Aggie team that already was eliminated.

The Aggies did it by cashing in on SMU fumbles. All three of their scores were set up by Southern Methodist bobbles.

It was a battle of fumbles since the Aggies were dropping the ball all over the lot themselves. An Aggie fumble led to the Southern Methodist touchdown.

Southern Methodist scored in the second period and it was a fine kick by Danny Thomas that went outside on the Aggie 9 that set it up.

John Sparling, the Aggie quarterback, fumbled and Ronnie Cosper recovered on the 9. Don Campbell made 8 in two runs then John Ed Clarke pounded over and John Richey converted.

That appeared likely to stand up because the Aggies couldn't do much moving under their own power. But Don Crowder fumbled a punt return and the Aggies recovered on the Southen Methodist 18.

Anti-Filibuster Senate Forces To Be Stronger

WASHINGTON (AP) — A long-stymied, bipartisan drive for a change in Senate rules to make it easier to choke off filibusters appears to have been given a big boost by the results of last Tuesday's elections.

A move to revamp Senate Rule 22, requiring a two-thirds majority of senators present and voting to shut off debate is expected to churn up a bitter battle right at the outset of the new 88th Congress in recent years. Southern senators who have banked on filibusters to block civil rights measures have led the opposition and consistently succeeded in forestalling change.

In January of 1961, when the Kennedy administration was just coming into office, the Senate shunted aside proposed changes in its antifilibuster rule 50-46.

The key to tipping the balance the other way apparently rests with a handful of newly elected Democratic senators—Thomas J. McIntyre of New Hampshire, Birch Bayh Jr., of Indiana, Daniel B. Brewster of Maryland, Gaylord A. Nelson of Wisconsin, and Daniel J. Inouye of Hawaii.

They will take the seats of senators who voted with the majority two years ago and could provide more than enough votes to reverse the outcome.

The only likely switch the other way as a result of Tuesday's balloting was the defeat of Sen. John A. Carroll, D-Colo., by his conservative Republican opponent Peter H. Dominick. Carroll had supported those fighting for a rules change.

The antifilibuster forces might pick up an offsetting vote, however, if Democratic New Frontiersmen George S. McGovern finally wins the still-undecided Senate race in South Dakota. On the vote in the 1961 rules battle, the late Sen. Francis Case, R-S.D. was among four senators who were not recorded.

But, as seems likely, if Southern senators mount a filibuster against a rules change, there is always the question of whether the issue can be brought to a vote.

Leaders of the move contend that at the outset of a new Congress a filibuster against a change in Senate rules can be halted by majority vote—that the two-thirds rule does not apply—but this position is sharply challenged by the Dixie forces.

Notice that a battle is in the making was served on senators in the closing days of the 87th Congress in separate but similar letters sent out by Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Philip S. Hart, D-Mich., and Republican Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel (Calif.), Jacob K. Javits (N.Y.), Hugh Scott (Pa.), Clifford P. Case (N.J.), and Kenneth B. Keating (N.Y.).

They advised colleagues they will move to modify the present antifilibuster at the opening of the 88th Congress and contended this is essential to obtain action on meaningful civil rights legislation.

Bearing on the success of their move not only will be the changes in the membership of the Senate but also the position taken by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, who also is chairman of the Senate Rules Committee.

Two years ago Mansfield made the motion that carried 50-46 to refer proposed changes in the antifilibuster rule to the Rules Committee for hearings and study. In this he had the support of Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., the GOP leader.

Mansfield said he favored modifying the rules to permit debates to be cut off by a three-fifths majority, instead of the two-thirds now required, but wanted to avoid a long, disruptive fight over the issue at the start of the new Kennedy administration.

He promised to give the Senate a chance to vote on the issue before the session ended, and he did. Late in September, 1961, shortly before adjournment, a proposed three-fifth rules was brought up. But when signs of a Southern filibuster developed, the Senate failed to muster even a majority to cut it off.

For the new fight now in prospect, Southerners have gathered fresh ammunition from the 63-27 vote last August 14 by which the Senate halted a liberal Democratic filibuster against the administration's communications satellite bill.

This marked the first time in 25 years that the Senate had successfully invoked its antifilibuster rule, but Southerners said it showed a two-thirds majority for limiting debate can be obtained when a measure has enough popular backing.

The Democratic and Republican leaders of the coalition drive for a change denied the vote demonstrated the workability of the present rule.

In their letter to colleagues urging support for their move, they said debate-limitation was clamped on the satellite bill only because a number of senators absented themselves when the vote was taken.

GOP Faces '64 Uphill Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic control of governorships in 14 states that voted Republican in 1960's presidential race indicated Saturday the GOP faces an uphill fight in challenging President Kennedy's re-election.

While the Republicans swept the big industrial states into their fold in last Tuesday's election, only Michigan and Pennsylvania represented newly won governorships in states that gave Kennedy their electoral vote in 1960.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's re-election in New York gave the GOP continued control in a third state that backed Kennedy. Otherwise all of the Republican victories were in states that went for former Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

These latter included recapture of governorships in Colorado, Ohio, and Wyoming and the election of the first Republican governor of Oklahoma.

With races in Rhode Island and Minnesota still to be decided, Democrats now control the governors' offices in 33 states, the Republicans in 15. These figures include holdover state executives and the unofficial election of a Republican in Maine and a Democrat in Massachusetts, either or both of which may be contested.

Besides holding on to the governorship of California, which went for Nixon in 1960, the Democrats won in Hawaii, Iowa, New Hampshire and Vermont, all of which voted for the GOP nominee two years ago.

Including holdovers, the Democrats have governors in these additional states that supported Nixon: Florida, Indiana, Kentucky, Nebraska, North Dakota, Tennessee, Virginia, Washington and Wisconsin.

While it doesn't hold true in every state, governors generally are credited with being able to assemble party organizations that can have an impact on the presidential vote outcome in their states.

The political rule of thumb says that the party which has its man in the executive chair of the capitals of key states has a leg up in the national contest.

For the GOP, the 1964 task will be to run a power play with New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan as its pivot.

GOP Faces '64 Uphill Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic control of governorships in 14 states that voted Republican in 1960's presidential race indicated Saturday the GOP faces an uphill fight in challenging President Kennedy's re-election.

While the Republicans swept the big industrial states into their fold in last Tuesday's election, only Michigan and Pennsylvania represented newly won governorships in states that gave Kennedy their electoral vote in 1960.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's re-election in New York gave the GOP continued control in a third state that backed Kennedy. Otherwise all of the Republican victories were in states that went for former Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

These latter included recapture of governorships in Colorado, Ohio, and Wyoming and the election of the first Republican governor of Oklahoma.

With races in Rhode Island and Minnesota still to be decided, Democrats now control the governors' offices in 33 states, the Republicans in 15. These figures include holdover state executives and the unofficial election of a Republican in Maine and a Democrat in Massachusetts, either or both of which may be contested.

Besides holding on to the governorship of California, which went for Nixon in 1960, the Democrats won in Hawaii, Iowa, New Hampshire and Vermont, all of which voted for the GOP nominee two years ago.

Including holdovers, the Democrats have governors in these additional states that supported Nixon; Florida, Indiana, Kentucky, Nebraska, North Dakota, Tennessee, Virginia, Washington and Wisconsin.

While it doesn't hold true in every state, governors generally are credited with being able to assemble party organizations that can have an impact on the presidential vote outcome in their states.

The political rule of thumb says that the party which has its man in the executive chair of the capitals of key states has a leg up in the national contest.

For the GOP, the 1964 task will be to run a power play with New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan as its pivot.

Long Formal Gown In Favor

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

The long formal gown, once worn by teens only in the South, has suddenly become popular all over the country for the high school crowd. Designers lay the new trend squarely at Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy's door.

The First Lady is undoubetdly the current fashion idol among teenagers, and the enormous publicity given to pictures of her in beautiful long gowns has influenced teens to wear them.

The long gown satisfies the teens' desire to look more grown up, as they realize the glamour which such gowns give to Mrs. Kennedy. Her youthfulness has also made long gowns acceptable as a young style.

Lynda Jane Eby, Thomas H. McGehee Are Wed In Grace Episcopal Church

Miss Lynda Jane Eby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Christian Eby, 2310 Marie Place, became the bride of Thomas Harry McGehee of Shreveport, son of Mrs. Edward Lionel McGehee of Zachary and the late Mr. McGehee, on Saturday, November 10.

Grace Episcopal Church in Monroe was scene of the 7 p.m. ceremony performed by the Rev. David Pierson Comegys of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Shreveport and the Rev. W. Alan King of St. Alban's Episcopal Church in Monroe.

Two massive arrangments of white gladioli and chrysanthemums flanked by tall white tapers in seven branched candelabra banked the altar and on the chapel altar were smaller arrangements of the same flowers.

C. Allison Salley was organist. His selections included Trumpet Tune in C, by Purcell for the processional; Bell Symphony, by Purcell for recessional; Hyfrydal, Vaughan Williams for the postlude and Our Father, Bach; O God, Thou Holy God, Brahms; Rhosmedre, Vaughan Williams; The Lord is My Shepherd, Edmundson and Pour Light Upon Us, Oldroyd.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a Sabrina gown of antique white silk faille, fashioned on regal lines. The full skirt fell into a chapel train from a panel of Chantilly lace and silk faille roses. The neckline was framed in hand - cut lace embroidered with seed pearls and the motif was repeated on long sleeves which tapered to lily points ovèr her hands. Her fingertip veil of illusion was held in place by a crown of Chantilly lace and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

Mrs. Edwin Frank Russell, matron of honor, wore a gown of frolic blue chiffon taffeta fashioned on princess lines with belled skirt. A gathered pouf extending from neckline to hem added back interest. Her headdress was a double bow of matching taffeta. Bridesmaids, dressed identically to the honor attendant were Miss Lori Harris of Monroe; Miss Beth McGehee of Zachary, sister of the groom; Mrs. James Walter White of Haynesville and Mrs. David P. Comegys Jr., Shreveport. They carried large white Fuji chrysanthemums with a cascade of minature green ivy and white satin ribbon.

Miss Leah June Eby, sister of the bride, served as flower girl and wore a full - skirted model of frolic blue taffeta. Her headdress was a single taffeta bow and she carried a miniature cascade bouquet.

Gilbert Mills of Zachary served as best man and groomsmen were Edward McGehee of Baton Rouge and John McGehee of Zachary, brothers of the bridegroom; Dr. John F. Day, Zachary, his cousin; T. Norris Samuel of Zachary, his brother-in-law; and John C. Eby Jr., brother of the bride and Edwin Frank Russell of Monroe.

Mrs. Eby chose for her daughter's wedding a gown of regal blue crepe with an overblouse of Chantilly lace and satin cummerbund. She wore a hat of matching satin petals and other accessories were also in regal blue. Mrs. McGehee, mother of the bridegroom, wore a gown of mauve lace over satin with hat of rose mauve feathers, matching slippers and bag. Mrs. John W. Golson, maternal grandmother of the bride, wore a champagne lace sheath with matching velvet hat and accessories and Mrs. Eugene S. Eby Sr., the bride's paternal grandmother, chose a teal blue crepe with hat of complementing shades and black beaded bag.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Bayou DeSiard Country Club, where a mass arrangement of white stock in a tall sculptured container graced the entrance. White flowers in a silver wine cooler, flanked by silver candelabra, centered the refreshment table with silver punch bowls at each end.

The cake table was covered in satin with an overskirt of net, garlanded with small white chrysanthemums. Sprays of lily of the valley decorated the tiered wedding cake, which was served by Mrs. Marcus Mapp, Mrs. Edgar Hemphill, Mrs. Joseph Amman, Mrs. Noel Grower, Mrs. T. Arthur Grant and Mrs. Jesse L. Adams.

Presiding at the punch bowls were Mrs. Jerry Aulds, Miss Lallage Feazel, Mrs. Harriett Demmary, Mrs. Edward F. Hayward Jr., Mrs. Charles Foster, Mrs. Robert McDowell and Mrs. Fred Fudickar Jr. Tea girls were Misses Leila Godwin, Marjorie Godwin, Glenda Grower, Ginger Van Veckhoven, Rene Lolly, Martha Lolly, Kay Adams, Linda Altenberg, Gloria Lewis, Janet Williams, Suzanne Samuel, Sherrie Harris, Melinda Mills, Gay Hargrove, Pam Grower, Cathy Lawn and Diane Lawn.

Rice bags were presented guests by Misses Ann Grower, Debbie Van Veckhoven, Lanell Van Veckhoven, Rowena Altenberg, Nancy Hargrove and Susan Duggins. Long Formal Gown In Favor

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

The long formal gown, once worn by teens only in the South, has suddenly become popular all over the country for the high school crowd. Designers lay the new trend squarely at Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy's door.

The First Lady is undoubetdly the current fashion idol among teenagers, and the enormous publicity given to pictures of her in beautiful long gowns has influenced teens to wear them.

The long gown satisfies the teens' desire to look more grown up, as they realize the glamour which such gowns give to Mrs. Kennedy. Her youthfulness has also made long gowns acceptable as a young style.

Footsteps Offer Clue To Identity, Reveal Character

People's footsteps are as individual as their finger prints. The sound of familiar footfalls identifies the owner as readily as the sight. And this can be carried a step further. A person's emotional state, or mood, can often be gaged by the character of their step. Anger, elation, fear, fatigue, all of these and more are transmitted in the cadence of footsteps. What do your footsteps reveal about you? The rhythm of your walk, the pace at which you walk, and the weight you use, all provide significant clues to your personality.

Notice how many people shuffle when they walk, dragging their shoes weightfully rather than lifting them and planting one after the other. Doesn't their work also reflect a slothful attitude, a weariness and surrender to boredom?

You can learn a great deal about people from their walk. In your office listen to the footsteps of your fellow workers. Can you distinguish one from the other? How? The energetic, ambitious young man walks with a rapid, hard, staccato step. He is on the way up and he wants the world to know it. The well adjusted, happily married woman moves quietly and serenely. The bored typist drags her feet.

Fabrics, Colors Tell Style Story

For classic styles, they, too, are classic. Worsteds, flannels, meltons, shetlands are seen in shades of gray and camel, in black and winter white, in browns, heather tones, rust and gold. Also in a traditional mood are clear reds and blues. Clan and glen plaids fill many a fashion paragraph, as do men's wear herringbones.

To outline the simple, shapely silhouette, fabrics concentrate on elegance and texture interest, double important since trims are kept to a minimum. Colors show richness, whether the tones are clear or muted.

Knits of all kinds, often textured, help to describe a beautiful young fashion season.

BROOCHES BLOOM

Pearls Sold By The Yard

Not long ago the cultured pearl industry was urging parents to buy real pearls one at a time on little girls' birthdays until they grew up to own a dainty strand to wear at their weddings.

Now the industry is urging pearl purchases by the yard.

About 60 inches of pearls will go comfortably around the neck three times, the industry figures. The number per inch varies with the size but averages about 10.

Autumn Theme Prevails At Boyd-Thompson Vows

Solemnized Friday, November 9 at 7:30 p.m. in the First United Pentecostal Church was the ceremony which united in marriage Miss Martha Jean Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billie O. Thompson, West Monroe, and Doyle Wayne Boyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Conway Boyd, Monroe.

Myriad yellow tapers in branched candelabra, entwined with greenery and two baskets of bronze chrysanthemums formed a background for the double ring ceremony performed by Rev. Austin Smith.

Mrs. Wayne Fordham, organist, presented a program of nuptial selections and accompanied Arlan Hattaway, who sang "Because," and "Wedding Prayer."

The bride, who was escorted to the altar by her father, sang "Through the Years." Her gown of white peau de soie with fitted bodice overlaid with French imported Alencon lace and featured a boat neckline, etched with lace scallops and long sleeves tapered to points over the hands. Lace motifs were also appliqued on the floor length skirt. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion was held in place by a crown of pearls and was also embellished with lace scallops. Her bouquet was a cascade of feathered chrysanthemums and stephanotis centered with a yellow - throated white orchid.

Miss Amaryllis Silman, cousin of the bride, served as maid of honor. She wore a gown of gold peau de soie, styled with high round neckline, fitted bodice, three quarter sleeves and full skirt. She wore a small flowered headpiece of matching gold nylon, gold slippers and carried a cluster of talisman roses in graduated sizes.

Dressed identically to the honor attendant were the bridesmaids, Miss Carol Black, Miss Judy Cosby, wearing rust colored gowns; Miss Barbara Boles, cousin of the bride and Miss Sandy Brady, who wore pumpkin colored frocks and the junior bridesmaid, Miss Jerry Gwen Poston, cousin of the bridegroom attired in gold. They carried identical bouquets of talisman roses.

Flower girl, Miss Debbie Thompson, sister of the bride, wore a gold colored peau de soie dress, fashioned with basque bodice, puff sleeves and full skirt. She wore a small matching headpiece and carried a single talisman rose on a background of net.

Candles were lighted by Miss Delores Manning and Miss Betty Tarver, both cousins of the bride, who were gowned in rust colored frocks, made identical to those of the other attendants.

Serving as best man was Jack Clinton Coleman and groomsmen-ushers were George Boyd, and Glen Poston, uncles of the bridegroom; Aubrey Simpkins, Billy Burns, Melvin Silman, cousin of the bride, was junior groomsman and Ricky Lee Boyd, brother of the groom, served as ringbearer.

Mrs. Thompson wore for her daughter's wedding a dress of apple green crepe with dark brown accessories and a corsage of white and green carnations. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Boyd, wore an aqua wool model with black accessories and blue and white carnations.

The autumn theme of the wedding was carried out in the reception which followed the ceremony in the social room of the church. An arrangement of colorful fall flowers, flanked by pale yellow tapers formed a centerpiece for the bride's table, which was overlaid with a white cutwork cloth. Serving the cake were Mrs. Aubrey Cosby and Mrs. Arlan Rawls and presiding at the punch bowl opposite were Misses Faye Poston and Rose Mae Pelligrino. The bride's book was presided over by Gwen Ainsworth.

When the couple left on a short wedding trip the bride was wearing a double knit sheath dress in forest green, with dark brown accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. Upon their return the couple will be at home at 104 Stockton in Monroe.

Mrs. Boyd graduated from West Monroe high school and is now attending Northeast Louisiana State College. A graduate of Ouachita Parish high school, Mr. Boyd attended Louisiana Tech and Northeast Louisiana State College.

BROOCHES BLOOM

Pearls Sold By The Yard

Not long ago the cultured pearl industry was urging parents to buy real pearls one at a time on little girls' birthdays until they grew up to own a dainty strand to wear at their weddings.

Now the industry is urging pearl purchases by the yard.

About 60 inches of pearls will go comfortably around the neck three times, the industry figures. The number per inch varies with the size but averages about 10.

Our poem today is by Emily Dickinson.

The soul selects her own society,
Then shuts the door;
On her divine majority
Obtrude no more.
Unmoved, she notes the chariot's pausing
At her low gate;
Unmoved, an emperor is kneeling
Upon her mat.
I've known her from an ample nation
Choose one;
Then close the valves of her attention
Like stone.

Our poem today is by Emily Dickinson:

The soul selects her own society,
Then shuts the door;
On her divine majority
Obtrude no more.
Unmoved, she notes the chariot's pausing
At her low gate;
Unmoved, an emperor is kneeling
Upon her mat.
I've known her from an ample nation
Choose one;
Then close the valves of her attention
Like stone.

Review Club Has Study On Travel And Adventure

Reds and golds of autumn were depicted in arrangements of fruit, leaves and berries which decorated the Marcus Mapp home Monday afternoon when Mrs. Mapp entertained the Review Club.

Mrs. Claude Smith, president, welcomed Mrs. Herschel Gentry Jr., as a new member and introduced the guests, Mrs. Alton Irwin, Mrs. James Aycock and Mrs. S. O. Bach. Mrs. Bach gave a report from a recent seminar of the general Federation of Women's Clubs in Baton Rouge.

The November topic of study "Travel and Adventure" was announced by the advisory board chairman, Mrs. Fred Huenefeld Jr. Following the theme, Mrs. W. Tom Davis took the club on a treasure hunt with an exciting review of Thomas Helm's book, "Treasure Hunting Around the World," a collection of his unique personal sagas which convey the thrill of hunting for treasures on land and beneath the sea.

After this adventure the members and guests traveled with Mrs. J. C. Loftin to Laos as she reviewed Dr. Tom Dooley's stirring book "Night They Burned the Mountain." In this book the author tells of his experiences in a remote village in Laos. There he waged a fight against an enemy even more murderous than communism, poverty, ignorance, malnutrition: his own battle against cancer.

Jr. Girls Unit Plans Activities For November

Forthcoming activities were discussed at a meeting of the Rodney J. Hobbs Jr. Girls Unit 1809 held Saturday morning, November 3 at the post home.

Miss Rita Simmons, president, conducted the business session, during which it was decided that the Unit would place American flags on graves of World War I veterans on Veterans' Day, November 11. On November 21 the group will visit the Home for the Aged and serve refreshments. As a ways and means project, the unit will sponsor a cake sale on November 23.

The annual Christmas party was announced for December 1, to which each member will bring a gift.

During the program hour Miss Jane Gauthier gave a talk on Veterans' Day. Miss Mona LeBlanc gave the story of "The First Thanksgiving."

Miss Margaret Neveu was accepted into the unit as a new member.

The Advisory Council of the Rodney J. Hobbs Ladies Auxiliary 1809 attended the meeting.

Tall, Slender Look Made Easy

The tall, slender look of models is the modern fashion ideal, but all too often it has seemed that clothes, hairdos and hats were designed as a conspiracy against short women.

This year, fashion is at last going their way. Every seam accents the vertical, every hat rises high and nearly brimless, every hairdo is either softly capped or built high.

Two vertical silhouettes have been revived, the princess and the tunic, which are ideal for lengthening short figures. In suits and coats, vertical seam treatments do the same.

The favorite hat shape is the turban, peaked, slanted, melon shaped or slightly bulbous, but in every variation, the perfect small woman's hat.

So prevalent are vertical fashion effects that any woman should be able to have the illusion of slender tallness.

Jr. Girls Unit Plans Activities For November

Forthcoming activities were discussed at a meeting of the Rodney J. Hobbs Jr. Girls Unit 1809 held Saturday morning, November 3 at the post home.

Miss Rita Simmons, president, conducted the business session, during which it was decided that the Unit would place American flags on graves of World War I veterans on Veterans' Day, November 11. On November 21 the group will visit the Home for the Aged and serve refreshments. As a ways and means project, the unit will sponsor a cake sale on November 23.

The annual Christmas party was announced for December 1, to which each member will bring a gift.

During the program hour Miss Jane Gauthier gave a talk on Veterans' Day. Miss Mona LeBlanc gave the story of "The First Thanksgiving."

Miss Margaret Neveu was accepted into the unit as a new member.

Tall, Slender Look Made Easy

The tall, slender look of models is the modern fashion ideal, but all too often it has seemed that clothes, hairdos and hats were designed as a conspiracy against short women.

This year, fashion is at last going their way. Every seam accents the vertical, every hat rises high and nearly brimless, every hairdo is either softly capped or built high.

Two vertical silhouettes have been revived, the princess and the tunic, which are ideal for lengthening short figures. In suits and coats, vertical seam treatments do the same.

MISS DIANNA JO DOLLAR'S engagement to Joe Oren Harper Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Oren Harper of Gibsland, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Dollar of Jonesboro. The wedding will take place November 30 at 8 p.m. in the Jonesboro Methodist Church with Rev. E. L. Tatum officiating.

Match-Box Look Replaces Shift In New Fall Dress

The season now beginning is always an exciting fashion period. Unlike spring and summer where the emphasis is on keeping cool — fall into winter fashions are usually more traditional — permitting the fashion-conscious woman far more leeway in her wardrobe choice.

For day time, dresses have an impeccable British-inspired look . . . they range from true tailored fashions to simple, but flattering body skimming styles.

SHIFT IS OUT

The shift is out and in are the "spare look" dresses that are eased and more relaxed through the hips and skirt. Their fashion newness lies in handsome cut and seaming.

The new body skimming look is enhanced in many of the fall dresses by the overblouse. It may be as high as the hipbone or as low as the tunic length. Skirts however are eased but are generally slim with pleated or paneled detail.

MATCH-BOX LOOK

Designers favor a lean, rectangular look that's sometimes called the "match box." Center panel seaming and rectangular shapes skim the body, details are kept to a minimum and the concentration is on form. The general silhouette is narrow, with emphasis on [illegible]. A widened line.

Necklines on dresses range from high chin snuggling types to U-shaped low ones that invite handsome jewelry fill-ins. From the barest minimum to the longer, long sleeve, there's a neat look to sleeve treatments.

CHEESE SAUCE

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

"Dear Mrs. Farmer:

"I have not been able to locate any Japanese socks, or "tobi," to wear with my Japanese flip-flops. Besides being fine on the beach, these rubber-thonged sandals are useful indoors, even in cold weather, if worn with a divided sock.

"I stiched down the center of a pair of stretch socks, from the toe to about two inches down, and back again to the toe, leaving a space of about one-fourth inch between the two seams. I repeated this about ⅛-inch outside the first stitching, for reinforcement, before slitting between the seams. One side has room for the first or large toe, and the other side will accommodate the rest.

BROOMSTICK SKIRT

"Dear Eunice:

"Would you please tell me how to make a 'broomstick skirt?' My mother made one for me many years ago. It was very full and pretty, and it seems to me that the skirt had a permanent pleated effect."

Mrs. G.M.

Dear Mrs. G.M.:

I'm sorry but I have no information on this type of skirt. If any of you readers have made one, please let us know how it is done. I will be happy to give the instructions in this column.

BIAS HEMS

"Dear Eunice Farmer:

"I bought some quilted material to make my young daughter a skirt and weskit. Would you please tell me how to finish the seams and hem?"

Mrs. F.C.

Dear Mrs. F.C.:

There are several ways you could finish these seams. Perhaps the best way is to bind the seams in matching bias binding. You could also turn under about ⅛ inch of the seam allowance and machine stitch close to the edge. Since quilted fabric has a tendency to separate, it is a good idea to finish the seams in some way other than pinking them. The hem may be made in the ordinary way, using hem tape.

The weskit would serve "double duty" if you would make it completely reversible and use a contrasting color to complement the quilted fabric. This type of fabric is practical because it requires little pressing and is sturdy.

ROLLED HEMS

"Dear Eunice:

"I have a pattern that calls for a rolled hem. I'm uncertain about how this is done and need your help."

Mrs. G.F.S.

Dear Mrs. G.F.S:

This is a very tiny finish to a garment that is done by hand. There is a little trick that will make this hand hemming easier. Machine stitch about ¼ inch from stitching line. Carefully roll this edge and hand-whip with tiny invisible stitches. The machine stitching is especially helpful when hemming sheer fabrics such as chiffon because it keeps the edge from stretching.

CLEVER APRON

Mrs. W.A.F. says:

"I make hundreds of aprons for the Scouts to sell from odds and ends of material left over from sewing for my girls and grandchildren. It is a plain cut apron with a quilted band on the bottom. Since many women use the bottom of their aprons as a pot holder, you can see how handy this would be. The quilting is done all the way across the bottom. However, I make it wider at each end to fit the hand. You can use worn out blankets for padding the quilted sections.

Please send questions and "new ideas" to Sew Simple so that we may share them with all the gals who sew from coast to coast. Send your mail to Sew Simple, in care of this newspaper.

Hairdos Follow Fashion Trend

By FLORENCE DE SAINTS

There are times when hair styles seem to follow some sweet wandering law of their own. At others, they have a definite connection with fashion. Such is the fact right now, making hairdos the concern of a fashion observer.

The right way to look by day, with all the stoled and muffled necklines, is a short cap hairdo, very gently puffed over the crown, curling round the ears, and with some arrangement of bangs.

The right way to look by evening, with the slim, elegant long gowns, is the same hairdo sleeked back and tucked under a spiraling crown arrangement. The crown arrangement is attained by pinning on a hair piece already set.

CUBAN EXILES SAY

Castro Capable Of U.S. Attacks

MIAMI (UPI) — The Fidel Castro regime, despite removal of Soviet surface missile installations, still is capable of attacking the United States with an island-wide battery of hidden underground missiles, a Cuban exile group said Saturday.

The Cuban Student Revolutionary Directorate (DRE) released a report which, in effect, contradicts the apparent official United States view on Castro's missile stockpile.

Dismantling and removal of the 40-odd Soviet missiles spotted on the ground by U. S. reconnaissance planes reduces Castro's rocket power but does not eliminate it, according to the DRE report.

Castro has at least 10 Soviet-built missile installations on the northern coast of all six of Cuba's provinces, the report said.

A DRE agent, identified only as "Angel," who just returned here from a lengthy mission in Cuba and who was instrumental in preparing the report, gave "eyewitness" information on five specific missile installations in two provinces, Matanzas and Las Villas.

But the Cuban exile organization report also said there are five more installations—some of them built in natural caves—in Pinar del Rio, Havana, Camaguey and Oriente provinces.

The Pinar del Rio base was said to be near Soroa, the area visited by Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan and Premier Castro Thursday, according to Havana radio broadcasts which said they toured "farm cooperatives."

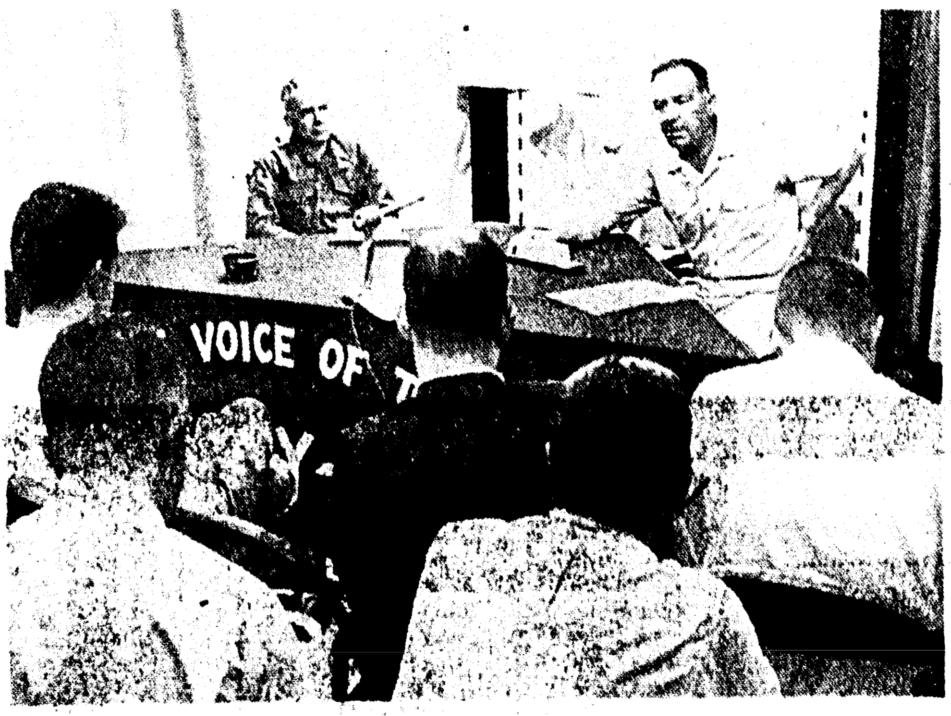
Agent "Angel" said there are at least two bases in Matanzas. One, he said, is possibly the most important installation in Cuba. It is about 62 miles east of Havana at a point on the north coast where the Yumuri River empties into the sea, he added.

A Cuban army captain on duty there claimed the missiles could reach New York, he said. "The Americans are in for a big surprise if they try to invade us," he quoted the captain as saying.

"The missiles were installed there immediately after completion of the base in October, 1961, in a construction job that was begun in February, 1960, with a budgetary allocation of $1 million, the agent said.

PREVENT PUBLICATION

ALGIERS (UPI)—Algerian authorities seized the printing matrices of the Algiers edition of the Paris newspaper Le Figaro, preventing publication Saturday.



REAR ADM. Edward J. O'Donnell, right, commanding officer of the Guantanamo Bay Naval base, tells newsmen an estimated 7,000 to 10,000 Cuban regulars and militia are stationed around the U.S. stronghold. With commander of Marines on base. It was him is Brig. Gen. William R. Collins, first press party on base since Cuban crisis. (AP Wirephoto)

Bossier City Police Probing Shooting Case

BOSSIER CITY, La. (AP) — Bossier City police Saturday questioned a Hot Springs, Ark., dental technician, in the shooting Wednesday night of a wealthy Gibsland, La., merchant.

His identity was not revealed.

The merchant, Namie Namie, 48, was reported in satisfactory condition Saturday at Schumpert Sanitorium here. He received five bullet wounds when two men accosted him outside the Fountain Lounge here Wednesday night.

Police said the shooting was apparently a gangland-type contract affair by someone trying to kill Namie. Three months ago, Namie charged someone had tried to kill him.

Solons To Make New Stab To Redistrict Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The Mississippi Legislature — racing against a state judge's deadline — will convene here Tuesday to take another stab at trying to reapportion the legislature with a plan which would satisfy the courts voters.

Gov. Ross R. Barnett will address a joint session of the lawmaking body at 1 p.m. Tuesday, one hour after it convenes.

Sources indicated Barnett was not, however, expected to make any specific recommendations to the lawmakers.

The sources hinted the governor will review redistricting legislation adopted by other states. Certain to be in his address is the reminder the court will effect a reapportionment plan if they neglect to approve a satisfactory measure.

Chancellor (Judge) W. T. Horton of Jackson has given the legislature until Nov. 21 to approve an equitable plan or he will order into effect a reapportionment plan prepared by him.

A Harrison County group threatened earlier to file a suit in federal court unless the legislature acts with fairness.

The lawmaking body ended a recent session with approval of a plan that would set up an 82-member Senate — one seat per county only to have the voters defeat the measure last Tuesday.

Pre-session talk thus far has centered mostly around an 82-member House and a Senate of from 30 to 49 members, distributed among districts set up on a population basis.

Other legislators favor a plan similar to the court-approved building proposal approved by the Florida Legislature — but which also was rejected by Florida voters Tuesday.

Under the Florida plan, the state membership would total about what the legislature totals now but the seats would be apportioned differently.

The House would be distributed on both geography and population, the Senate on population only.

Rural legislators are reluctant to give up seats in one house without getting some additional strength in the other chamber. They traditionally have blocked all reapportionment tries, but backed the recent reapportionment plan after the threat of federal court intervention arose.

After the lawmakers finished with reapportionment, they are expected to take up teacher pay raises. Sources indicate Saturday Gov. Barnett would seek to get a $300 raise to round out a 1959 campaign promise of $600.

The 1960 legislature provided the earlier half.

Another item which may come up — since Barnett left the way for more matters when he issued the special session call—could be the matter of sheriff succession. Sheriffs have heretofore acted also as tax collectors and could not succeed themselves.

However, a constitutional provision ratified in June, which must be implemented by laws to become effective, will let sheriffs follow themselves in office if stripped of the tax collecting duties.

Soviets Favor Unmanned Test Inspection Plan

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union Saturday gave strong backing to unmanned, automatic seismic stations as an alternative to on-site inspection in helping to police an underground nuclear test ban.

Three Soviet scientists said in the government newspaper Izvestia that "there are unquestionable difficulties in distinguishing atomic blasts and earthquakes."

But they added:

"Today we confidently declare not only that detection of underground tests is possible but this task can be solved by simpler means than proposed by experts at the 1958 Geneva Conference."

Earlier the Communist Party newspaper Pravda supported the proposal for automatic seismic stations.

The scientists were Mikhail Sadovsky of the Academy of Sciences and physicist-mathematicians V. Keilis-Borok and N. Kondorsky. They said "It suffices to use the national seismic services both of the atomic powers and the neutral states."

CUBAN EXILES SAY

Castro Capable Of U.S. Attacks

MIAMI (UPI) — The Fidel Castro regime, despite removal of Soviet surface missile installations, still is capable of attacking the United States with an island-wide battery of hidden underground missiles, a Cuban exile group said Saturday.

The Cuban Student Revolutionary Directorate (DRE) released a report which, in effect, contradicts the apparent official United States view on Castro's missile stockpile.

Dismantling and removal of the 40-odd Soviet missiles spotted on the ground by U. S. reconnaissance plans reduces Castro's rocket power but does not eliminate it, according to the DRE report.

Castro has at least 10 Soviet-built missile installations on the northern coast of all six of Cuba's provinces, the report said.

A DRE agent, identified only as "Angel," who just returned here from a lengthy mission in Cuba and who was instrumental in preparing the report, gave "eyewitness" information on five specific missile installations in two provinces, Matanzas and Las Villas.

But the Cuban exile organization report also said there are five more installations—some of them built in natural caves—in Pinar del Rio, Havana, Camaguey and Oriente provinces.

The Pinar del Rio base was said to be near Soroa, the area visited by Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan and Premier Castro Thursday, according to Havana radio broadcasts which said they toured "farm cooperatives."

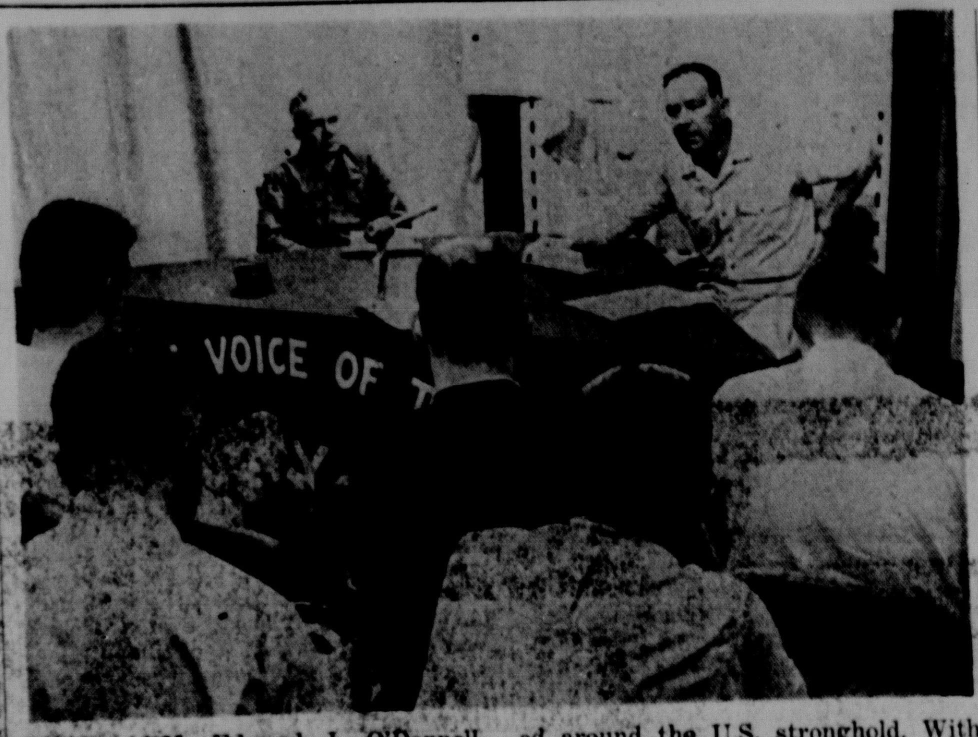
Agent "Angel" said there are at least two bases in Matanzas. One, he said, is possibly the most important installation in Cuba. It is about 62 miles east of Havana at a point on the north coast where the Yumuri River empties into the sea, he added.

A Cuban army captain on duty there claimed the missiles could reach New York, he said. "The Americans are in for a big surprise if they try to invade us," he quoted the captain as saying.

The missiles were installed there immediately after completion of the base in October, 1961, in a construction job that was begun in February, 1960, with a budgetary allocation of $1 million, the agent said.

PREVENT PUBLICATION

ALGIERS (UPI)—Algerian authorities seized the printing matrices of the Algiers edition of the Paris newspaper Le Figaro, preventing publication Saturday.



REAR ADM. Edward J. O'Donnell, right, commanding officer of the Guantanamo Bay Naval base, tells newsmen an estimated 7,000 to 10,000 Cuban regulars and militia are stationed around the U.S. stronghold. Bossier City Police Probing Shooting Case

BOSSIER CITY, La. (AP) — Bossier City police Saturday questioned a Hot Springs, Ark., dental technician, in the shooting Wednesday night of a wealthy Gibsland, La., merchant.

His identity was not revealed.

The merchant, Nomie Namie, 48, was reported in satisfactory condition Saturday at Schumpert Sanitorium here. He received five bullet wounds when two men accosted him outside the Fountain Lounge here Wednesday night.

Police said the shooting was apparently a ganglang-type contract affair by someone trying to kill Namie. Three months ago, Namie charged someone had tried to kill him.

Solons To Make New Stab To Redistrict Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The Mississippi Legislature — racing against a state judge's deadline — will convene here Tuesday to take another stab at trying to reapportion the legislature with a plan which would satisfy the courts voters.

English Bride Gets Extension Of U.S. Stay

CENTRALIA, Wash. (AP) — A young English woman who married a Centralia basketball coach can stay in this country at least until mid-February and may be able to remain indefinitely without congressional action.

Mrs. Brown, 24, who came here on an exchange teacher visitor's visa, had been told previously she would have to leave the country by Dec. 9. She and her husband are expecting a baby in January.

After expiration of the visa extension in mid-February, Boyd said, Mrs. Brown's status will be reconsidered as a hardship case and she may be allowed to remain on that basis.

Otherwise the Browns will seek congressional action to get her a permanent visa.

Mrs. Brown, the former Janet Read of Newport, Monmouthshire, England, met her husband while both were teaching here.

U.S. Mounts Air Defenses Against Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. defense against bomber attack from Cuba is mounting as the Communists persist in refusal to remove a score or more of Ilyushin 28 medium jet bombers with nuclear-strike capability.

The bombers, together with Russian-made MIG jet fighters which also can be used for bombing purposes, remain a menace, even though the Russians appear to have dismantled and shipped out medium and intermediate-range ballistic missiles.

Army Nike-Hercules missiles—capable of hurling atomic warheads up to 100 miles—obviously have been emplaced in southern Florida where batteries of shorter range Hawk antiaircraft missiles already were arrayed.

A published photograph of one position shows two Nike-Hercules, one in vertical position, the other still on a transport beside it. This is the first disclosure that Hercules missiles have been placed in southern Florida—the tip of which is 90 miles from Cuba.

Until now, Nike weapons had been deployed in other areas of the country, primarily around big metropolitan areas and airfields.

The missile defenses are in addition to swarms of Air Force and Navy jet interceptors poised for swift take off from runways and carrier decks.

The radius at which the IL28 can operate is considerably less than that for the intermediate-range ballistic missiles which the Russians had been putting into place before U.S. reaction brought Russian agreement to withdraw the nuclear rockets.

The IL28 is shown in U.S. data to have an estimated range of 1,200 miles. The useful radius (the distance out from take off) would be less than half that, with allowance for maneuvering and time over target. The full range could be used to reach more distant targets, if it were a suicide, one-way trip.

Speed of the IL28 is estimated at about 540 miles per hour, the maximum useful altitude at about 50,000 feet.

To deal with IL28s, the supersonic missiles and interceptors of U.S. air defenses would seek to intercept at the earliest possible moment, before the invading aircraft had reached U.S. shores. Speed of some of the more recent fighters are as high as 1,200 miles per hour, their useful altitude well above the 50,000 foot level.

The Nike-Hercules missile, lofted at supersonic speed, is reported to be capable of altitudes of about 150,000 feet, although this presumably would be reduced at the extreme, 100-mile range.

The MIG jet fighters which Russia delivered to the Cuban government would be more of a problem for the defenders than the slower and lower flying IL28s. The possibility of their use for bombing missions imposes a serious menace, both because of speed and maneuverability. The assumption is that a nuclear bomb might be attached externally to the MIG fighter type.

Woman Booked On 7 Counts By Monroe Police

Monroe police booked a Monroe woman on seven counts early Saturday morning that ranged from public drunkenness to theft and unauthorized use of a movable (automobile).

Mary Van Landingham, no address given, was taken into custody at 12:10 a.m. and booked for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages, reckless driving, unauthorized use of a movable, theft, simple battery, disturbing the peace and public drunkenness. Bond was set at $935.

She was apprehended behind a row of hedges near Apartment Lane after abandoning a taxi cab which she allegedly took from a cab stand located at Hall and Harrison Streets. According to police reports, she had requested the cab to take her to a local destination and then told the driver she didn't have money to pay him. When he insisted she would have to pay him, and she allegedly refused, he took the cab back to the cab stand to call the police. As he left the cab, she reportedly jumped in the driver's seat and took off. Police apprehended her only five minutes later.

In other action, Monroe officers were investigating the theft of some papers from a safe at the office of Greater Monroe Homes at 3216 Breard St. The incident was reported by the office manager, John McCord, who told police the papers were taken in canvas bags from the safe sometime since Tuesday. He stated the papers were very important to the business.

Two other persons were booked for DWI by local police Saturday. Monroe officers booked Loyce Coleman, 38, Negro, 706 Goldman St., for DWI and reckless driving at 2:45 a.m. He was taken into custody at 19th and DeSiard Streets.

West Monroe officers booked Murphy K. Walker, route two, West Monroe, for DWI at 12:15 a.m. He was taken into custody on Coleman Street.

Two Northeast State College students were booked on a number of counts that ranged from simple escape to simple battery early Saturday morning by Monroe officers.

David W. Styron, 22, of 236 Madison Hall, NLSC, was booked for simple escape, resisting arrest, simple battery and disturbing the peace by use of loud and profane language. Another youth, Douglas John Constant, 22, of 307 Ouachita Hall, NLSC, was booked for simple battery, resisting arrest and two counts of disturbing the peace — one for drunkenness and the other for use of loud and profane language.

Constant allegedly struck a police officer while he was holding Styron under arrest and caused a ruckus. The police officer sustained a broken nose out of the incident.

STAGE PRODUCTION

'Papa Is All' Opens Run At Northeast On Monday

"Papa Is All," major stage production of the Northeast Louisiana State College Speech Department, will open Monday for a two-night run. Curtain time is 8 p.m. in Biedenharn Recital Hall on campus.

The three-act play is being produced by Claude C. Fuller, assistant professor of speech.

Mama and Papa Aukamp are of the Mennonite religion. But the son and daughter, exercising the privilege that is part of the Mennonite faith, have not adopted it. They remain "worldly" until they feel the call to become "plain," or Mennonite.

Papa misuses the religious tradition for purposes of his own, suppressing the simple pleasures and recreations of every day life to which Mama, an authentic Mennonite, has no objection.

YOUNG LOVE

Emma, the daughter, is in love with a surveyor who wants to marry her. She precipitates a crisis by stealing away, with Mama's connivance, to attend a picture show in Lancaster with the surveyor. When Papa discovers this, he sets out to avenge what he calls an outrage to his family honor.

Jake, the son, finds opportunity to hit Papa over the head with a monkey wrench, and puts him into a coal car that is upset at a highway crossing, hoping that Papa will be carried away, never to be returned. He reports that Papa is dead — that "Papa is all anymore." But is He?

The cast of the Patterson Greene play includes Murray Burfford, junior speech major of West Monroe, as Mama; Bill Wells, junior journalism major of Monroe, as Jake; Karen Leach, Monroe English major, as Emma; Mike Parkerson, Monroe speech major, as Papa; Charles Machen, freshman speech student of Winnfield, as state trooper Brendle, and Joan Machen, sophomore student in elementary education library science of Lake Providence, as Mrs. Yoder.

Assistant director of "Papa Is All" is Betsy McBride, speech major of Davant. The technical staff also includes Ben Boyett, Beverly Harrelson, Murray Burfford, Mike Parkerson, Barrett Fisher, Sara Womack, Gail Sawyer, Sharon Garland, Charles Marsala, Jerilyn Gilstrap, Francis Yeldell, Carol Beeman, Sherry Wells, Johnny Perkins, members of Phi Beta, national professional fraternity for women music and speech majors, and James W. Parkerson of the speech faculty.

CONCERTS SERIES

Broadway Musical Set In Local Show

"Carnival," the renowned Broadway musical play, will be presented in Neville High School Auditorium at 8:15 p.m., Monday, Dec. 10, to open the season for the Northeast State Concerts Association.

Starring in the Broadway version of the film "Lili" is Elaine Malbin, David Daniels and distinguished supporting actors.

The story has to do with the romance of a wistful gamin and a sullen puppeteer, a bitter young man who can talk gently only through his puppets. There is an engaging villain, a magician, and a girl who is dazzled by a rakish carnival magician but is loved by a crippled puppeteer. The story is embellished by many songs by Bob Merrill.

"Carnival" is one of six attractions to be presented this year by NSCA. Other programs scheduled include the world-famed Vienna Choir Boys on Jan. 27, the San Francisco Ballet on Feb. 19, and the Dallas Symphony Orchestra on March 6, plus two concerts by the Twin City Symphony Orchestra.

A membership drive will be conducted from Nov. 12-17, with campaign headquarters to be located at the Volkswagen Auto Agency on Louisville Ave.

No single seat admissions will be sold to individual programs, and memberships (for all concerts during the season) will be $11 for reserve seats, $8 for adult general admission, and $4 for students other than Northeast State students. NLSC students may secure tickets with identification cards from the office of the dean of the fine arts division so long as available space remains after the sale of memberships.

Dr. Harry Lemert, chairman of NSCA, issued a call for volunteers to sell memberships this week. He asked these volunteers to telephone Mrs. Ben Oliphint at FA 2-4305.

Persons wishing additional information or to purchase memberships should contact the division of fine arts at Northeast State.

Walker Leaves Dallas Hospital For Birthday

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker, undergoing a court-ordered psychiatric examination, took a "week end pass" Saturday to celebrate his 53rd birthday.

Walker, accused by the government of rebellion, insurrection and seditious conspiracy when the University of Mississippi was integrated, entered the hospital Thursday.

U.S. Dist. Judge Claud Clayton ordered Walker to undergo the examination, conducted by Dr. R. L. Stubblefield, chairman of the psychiatry department at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School here.

"Walker said everything is going satisfactorily," Morris said. "He said he is cooperating with Dr. Stubblefield."

Morris said he did not know when Walker would be released.

Kidnap-Slaying Defendant May Plead Guilty

ONEONTA, Ala. (UPI) Michael Anthony Mayola said Saturday that when his trial begins here Monday he will attempt—over the objection of his attorneys — to plead guilty and ask for death in the electric chair.

His attorneys, he said, want to enter an insanity plea. He was recently returned from a state hospital where he underwent examination by a psychiatrist.

"My attorneys think I'm a class-one nut. At times, they almost convince me. But I'm not crazy. I deserve anything I get for the act I committed," he said.

"No one wants to die. But I know what is right and I intend to enter a guilty plea early Monday."

He said his attorneys have told him they will try to prevent him from entering the plea.

Youth Is Injured In Area Shooting Mishap Saturday

Johnny Sanders, 27, Prairie Road, Monroe, was in serious condition in a local hospital Saturday night after being accidentally shot in Columbia earlier in the day.

Sanders, of route one, box 233, Monroe, was undergoing surgery for a gunshot wound in the groin and was believed to be in serious condition. He was shot with a 44-40 rifle while in a car with friends and a member of his family between 5 and 6 p.m. Saturday.

According to members of the family, the three men had been looking at the gun which was on the back seat of the car. One of the men reached back to pick up the rifle and as he was doing so, the gun discharged, and the bullet struck Sanders.

Caldwell Parish authorities were investigating Saturday night.

Gov. Andersen Now Trailing In Vote Count

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The closest governorship election in Minnesota history heads into another crucial stage this weekend as the state's three most populous counties add up their official figures.

In the five days since more than one and a quarter million voters cast their ballots, neither Republican Gov. Elmer L. Andersen nor Democratic Lt. Gov. Karl Rolvaag has taken enough of a lead in the unofficial count to claim a victory.

Rolvaag slipped ahead by 139 votes Saturday as more vote-counting errors turned up and were figured into the tabulations.

Nearly as many voters are concentrated in Hennepin, Ramsey and St. Louis counties as the rest of the state. Their final figures are expected to become available Monday night or Tuesday and may have a heavy bearing in the outcome.

At least three county boards have not scheduled final meetings until Wednesday, adding to the tenseness of a situation unmatched in 105 years of Minnesota elections.

Key West Beach Arms Removed

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Rockets, machine guns and radar equipment began disappearing from a once heavily fortified Key West beach Saturday night.

Working swiftly, soldiers had removed at least half of the bristling array before dark. It was not known whether the weapons were being deployed elsewhere or whether authorities judged there was no further need for them.

West Germany State To Vote On Legislature

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) —The people of Hesse will choose a new legislature Sunday in a state election watched throughout West Germany as a general trend setter. Controversy about federal action against the magazine Der Spiegel heated the campaign.

The legal action against the Hamburg news magazine, whose publisher and four editors are in jail on suspicion they committed treason by publishing military secrets, has aroused widespread criticism of the federal government in Bonn.

Der Spiegel has been a leading critic of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and his Christian Democratic lieutenants, particularly Defense Minister Franz Joseph Strauss.

In the wake of the action against the magazine more than two weeks ago, most independent newspapers have joined the opposition Socialists and elements of the Free Democratic party, a coalition partner of the Christian Democrats nationally, in expressing concern for freedom of the press.

Spiegel mastheads, clipped from cover pages, have been pasted over Christian Democratic election posters in several Hessian towns. Speakers of the Adenauer party were heckled. Students staged protest demonstrations.

Some Christian Democratic party officials have privately voiced fear that the controversy will mean a setback in their efforts to unseat the Socialists, who have run Hesse for the past 16 years.

English Bride Gets Extension Of U.S. Stay

CENTRALIA, Wash. (AP) — A young English woman who married a Centralia basketball coach can stay in this country at least until mid-February and may be able to remain indefinitely without congressional action.

Mrs. Brown, 24, who came here on an exchange teacher visitor's visa, had been told previously she would have to leave the country by Dec. 9. She and her husband are expecting a baby in January.

After expiration of the visa extension in mid-February, Boyd said, Mrs. Brown's status will be reconsidered as a hardship case and she may be allowed to remain on that basis.

Otherwise the Browns will seek congressional action to get her a permanent visa.

Mrs. Brown, the former Janet Read of Newport, Monmouthshire, England, met her husband while both were teaching here.

U.S. Mounts Air Defenses Against Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. defense against bomber attack from Cuba is mounting as the Communists persist in refusal to remove a score or more of Ilyushin 28 medium jet bombers with nuclear-strike capability.

The bombers, together with Russian-made MIG jet fighters which also can be used for bombing purposes, remain a menace, even though the Russians appear to have dismantled and shipped out medium and intermediate-range ballistic missiles.

Army Nike-Hercules missiles—capable of hurling atomic warheads up to 100 miles—obviously have been emplaced in southern Florida where batteries of shorter range Hawk antiaircraft missiles already were arrayed.

A published photograph of one position shows two Nike-Hercules, one in vertical position, the other still on a transport beside it. This is the first disclosure that Hercules missiles have been placed in southern Florida—the tip of which is 90 miles from Cuba.

Until now, Nike weapons had been deployed in other areas of the country, primarily around big metropolitan areas and airfields.

The missile defenses are in addition to swarms of Air Force and Navy jet interceptors poised for swift take off from runways and carrier decks.

The radius at which the IL28 can operate is considerably less than that for the intermediate-range ballistic missiles which the Russians had been putting into place before U.S. reaction brought Russian agreement to withdraw the nuclear rockets.

The IL28 is shown in U.S. data to have an estimated range of 1,200 miles. The useful radius (the distance out from take off) would be less than half that, with allowance for maneuvering and time over target. The full range could be used to reach more distant targets, if it were a suicide, one-way trip.

Speed of the IL28 is estimated at about 540 miles per hour, the maximum useful altitude at about 50,000 feet.

To deal with IL28s, the supersonic missiles and interceptors of U.S. air defenses would seek to intercept at the earliest possible moment, before the invading aircraft had reached U.S. shores. Speed of some of the more recent fighters are as high as 1,200 miles per hour, their useful attitude well above the 50,000-foot level.

The Nike-Hercules missile, lofted at supersonic speed, is reported to be capable of altitudes of about 150,000 feet, although this presumably would be reduced at the extreme, 100-mile range.

The MIG jet fighters which Russia delivered to the Cuban government would be more of a problem for the defenders than the slower and lower-flying IL28s. The possibility of their use for bombing missions imposes a serious menace, both becaue of speed and maneuverability. The assumption is that a nuclear bomb might be attached externally to the MIG fighter type.

Woman Booked On 7 Counts By Monroe Police

Monroe police booked a Monroe woman on seven counts early Saturday morning that ranged from public drunkenness to theft and unauthorized use of a movable (automobile).

Mary Van Landingham, no address given, was taken into custody at 12:40 a.m. and booked for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages, reckless driving, unauthorized use of a movable, theft, simple battery, disturbing the peace and public drunkenness. Bond was set at $935.

She was apprehended behind a row of hedges near Apartment Lane after abandoning a taxi cab which she allegedly took from a cab stand located at Hall and Harrison Streets. According to police reports, she had requested the cab to take her to a local destination and then told the driver she didn't have money to pay him. When he insisted she would have to pay him, and she allegedly refused, he took the cab back to the cab stand to call the police. As he left the cab, she reportedly jumped in the driver's seat and took off. Police apprehended her only five minutes later.

In other action, Monroe officers were investigating the theft of some papers from a safe at the office of Greater Monroe Homes at 3216 Breard St. The incident was reported by the office manager, John McCord, who told police the papers were taken in canvas bags from the safe sometime since Tuesday. He stated the papers were very important to the business.

Two other persons were booked for DWI by local police Saturday. Monroe officers booked Loyce Coleman, 38, Negro, 706 Goldman St., for DWI and reckless driving at 2:45 a.m. He was taken into custody at 19th and DeSiard Streets.

West Monroe officers booked Murphy K. Walker, route two, West Monroe, for DWI at 12:15 a.m. He was taken into custody on Coleman Street.

Two Northeast State College students were booked on a number of counts that ranged from simple escape to simple battery early Saturday morning by Monroe officers.

David W. Styron, 22, of 236 Madison Hall, NLSC, was booked for simple escape, resisting arrest, simple battery and disturbing the peace by use of loud and profane language. Another youth, Douglas John Constant, 22, of 307 Ouachita Hall, NLSC, was booked for simple battery, resisting arrest and two counts of disturbing the peace — one for drunkenness and the other for use of loud and profane language.

Constant allegedly struck a police officer while he was holding Styron under arrest and caused a ruckus. The police officer sustained a broken nose out of the incident.

STAGE PRODUCTION

'Papa Is All' Opens Run At Northeast On Monday

"Papa Is All," major stage production of the Northeast Louisiana State College Speech Department, will open Monday for a two - night run. Curtain time is 8 p.m. in Biedenharn Recital Hall on campus.

The three - act play is being produced by Claude C. Fuller, assistant professor of speech.

The comedy is a story of a Pennsylvania Dutch mother, daughter and son who rebel against a tyrannical father.

Mama and Papa Aukamp are of the Mennonite religion. But the son and daughter, exercising the privilege that is part of the Mennonite faith, have not adopted it. They remain "worldly" until they feel the call to become "plain," or Minnonite.

Papa misuses the religious tradition for purposes of his own, suppressing the simple pleasures and recreations of every day life to which Mama, an authentic Mennonite, has no objection.

YOUNG LOVE

Emma, the daughter, is in love with a surveyor who wants to marry her. She precipitates a crisis by stealing away, with Mama's connivance, to attend a picture show in Lancaster with the surveyor. When Papa discovers this, he sets out to avenge what he calls an outrage to his family honor.

Jake, the son, finds opportunity to hit Papa over the head with a monkey wrench, and puts him into a coal car that is upset at a highway crossing, hoping that Papa will be carried away, never to be returned. He reports that Papa is dead — that "Papa is all anymore." But is He?

The cast of the Patterson Greene play includes Murray Burfford, junior speech major of West Monroe, as Mama; Bill Wells, junior journalism major of Monroe, as Jake; Karen Leach, Monroe English major, as Emma; Mike Parkerson, Monroe speech major, as Papa; Charles Machen, freshman speech student of Winnfield, as state trooper Brendle; and Joan Machen, sophomore student in elementary education library science of Lake Providence, as Mrs. Yoder.

Assistant director of "Papa Is All" is Betsy McBride, speech major of Davant. The technical staff also includes Ben Boyett, Beverly Harrelson, Murray Burfford, Mike Parkerson, Barrett Fisher, Sara Womack, Gail Sawyer, Sharon Garland, Charles Marsala, Jerilyn Gilstrap, Francis Yeldell, Carol Beeman, Sherry Wells, Johnny Perkins, members of Phi Beta, national professional fraternity for women music and speech majors, and James W. Parkerson of the speech faculty.

Kidnap-Slaying Defendant May Plead Guilty

ONEONTA, Ala. (UPI) Michael Anthony Mayola said Saturday that when his trial begins here Monday he will attempt—over the objection of his attorneys — to plead guilty and ask for death in the electric chair.

His attorneys, he said, want to enter an insanity plea. He was recently returned from a state hospital where he underwent examination by a psychiatrist.

"My attorneys think I'm a class-one nut. At times, they almost convince me. But I'm not crazy. I deserve anything I get for the act I committed," he said.

"No one wants to die. But I know what is right and I intend to enter a guilty plea early Monday."

He said his attorneys have told him they will try to prevent him from entering the plea.

Walker Leaves Dallas Hospital For Birthday

Robert Morris of Dallas, one of his attorneys, said Walker will report back to the hospital "either Sunday night or early Monday."

"He relaxed at his home today —doing much of nothing," Morris said of Walker.

Walker, accused by the government of rebellion, insurrection and seditious conspiracy when the University of Mississippi was integrated, entered the hospital Thursday.

U.S. Dist. Judge Claud Clayton ordered Walker to undergo the examination, conducted by Dr. R. L. Stubblefield, chairman of the psychiatry department at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School here.

"Walker said everything is going satisfactorily," Morris said. "He said he is cooperating with Dr. Stubblefield."

Morris said he did not know when Walker would be released.

Youth Is Injured In Area Shooting Mishap Saturday

Johnny Sanders, 27, Prairie Road, Monroe, was in serious condition in a local hospital Saturday night after being accidentally shot in Columbia earlier in the day.

Sanders, of route one, box 233, Monroe, was undergoing surgery for a gunshot wound in the groin and was believed to be in serious condition. He was shot with a 44-40 rifle while in a car with friends and a member of his family between 5 and 6 p.m. Saturday.

According to members of the family, the three men had been looking at the gun which was on the back seat of the car. One of the men reached back to pick up the rifle and as he was doing so, the gun discharged, and the bullet struck Sanders.

SCHOOL BANS LIPSTICK

REGEN, Germany (UPI)—Principal Heinz Stiedl banned lipstick and nail polish Saturday for all girls attending the Regen public high school "so they'll become real mothers rather than fashionable dolls."

Gov. Andersen Now Trailing In Vote Count

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The closest governorship election in Minnesota history heads into another crucial stage this weekend as the state's three most populous counties add up their official figures.

In the five days since more than one and a quarter million voters cast their ballots, neither Republican Gov. Elmer L. Andersen nor Democratic Lt. Gov. Karl Rolvaag has taken enough of a lead in the unofficial count to claim a victory.

Rolvaag slipped ahead by 139 votes Saturday as more vote-counting errors turned up and were figured into the tabulations.

Nearly as many voters are concentrated in Hennepin, Ramsey and St. Louis counties as the rest of the state. Their final figures are expected to become available Monday night or Tuesday and may have a heavy bearing in the outcome.

At least three county boards have not scheduled final meetings until Wednesday, adding to the tenseness of a situation unmatched in 105 years of Minnesota elections.

Key West Beach Arms Removed

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Rockets, machine guns and radar equipment began disappearing from a once heavily fortified Key West beach Saturday night.

Working swiftly, soldiers had removed at least half of the bristling array before dark. It was not known whether the weapons were being deployed elsewhere or whether authorities judged there was no further need for them.

SAME BAD SPOT

6 Persons Hurt At Intersection

Six persons were injured, none seriously, in a three - car collision at the intersection of Jewel Street, New Natchitoches Road and Ridge Drive in West Monroe Saturday afternoon. This is the second wreck at this intersection this week.

State police identified the injured as Miss Emma Patton, 70, Ridgecrest Nursing Home, West Monroe; Mrs. Doris Miller, 30, 103 Fairlane Dr., West Monroe; Robert J. Miller Jr., 30, 103 Fairlane Dr., driver of one vehicle; John V. Williams, 29, Joe Bill Street, West Monroe; Billy Harold Matlock, 19, 1008 S. 4th St., Monroe, driver of a car; and Negro Earl K. Moffett, Chatham.

Three of the Miller couple's children were also taken to the hospital for observation, but were believed to be uninjured.

Earlier this week, a baby was killed and member of her family injured in a collision at the same intersection. The parents of the baby, Delbert Davis, 29, and his wife, Lola Mae, 25, both of West Monroe, were still in serious condition at the Glenwood Hospital from injuries sustained in the accident which occurred Wednesday. Both were still unconscious Saturday night.

State troopers levied charges against all three of the drivers in Saturday's collision.

Miller was charged with reckless driving, while Matlock was charged with driving with a revoked driver's license and Hardy Lee Dobbin, Negro, 20, of Chatham, driver of the third vehicle, was charged with driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages.

According to state police, Miller collided with Matlock who was driving north on Jewel Street. Both cars then skidded into Dobbin's car, which was stopped on Ridge Drive, headed west. All three cars were extensively damaged.

Miller, Mrs. Miller and Miss Patton all sustained bruises, abrasions and lacerations. The two women were in the Miller vehicle.

Williams, a passenger in Matlock's car, suffered lacerations, and Matlock also sustained lacerations. Moffett, riding in the Dobbin vehicle, sustained a laceration of the face. All of the passengers but Matlock, were treated at Glenwood Hospital, and released.

Matlock was treated and admitted to St. Francis hospital. Mulhearn and Kilpatrick ambulances took the victims to the hospitals.

Police juryman Leslie Hamm of ward five told the Morning World Saturday night that he is sponsoring a resolution at Wednesday's police jury meeting requesting that the state install "appropriate and proper warning signals at this crossing." Hamm suffered a broken leg in a wreck at the same intersection several months back.

West Germany State To Vote On Legislature

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) —The people of Hesse will choose a new legislature Sunday in a state election watched throughout West Germany as a general trend-setter. Controversy about federal action against the magazine Der Spiegel heated the campaign.

The legal action against the Hamburg news magazine, whose publisher and four editors are in jail on suspicion they committed treason by publishing military secrets, has aroused widespread criticism of the federal government in Bonn.

Der Spiegel has been a leading critic of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and his Christian Democratic lieutenants, particularly Defense Minister Franz Joseph Strauss.

In the wake of the action against the magazine more than two weeks ago, most independent newspapers have joined the opposition Socialists and elements of the Free Democratic party, a coalition partner of the Christian Democrats nationally, in expressing concern for freedom of the press.

Spiegel mastheads, clipped from cover pages, have been pasted over Christian Democratic election posters in several Hessian towns. Speakers of the Adenauer party were heckled. Students staged protest demonstrations.

Some Christian Democratic party officials have privately voiced fear that the controversy will mean a setback in their efforts to unseat the Socialists, who have run Hesse for the past 16 years.

Red Troops Are Reported Still In Laos

LONDON (UPI) — The International Control Commission for Laos said in a report released here Saturday that only 40 out of an estimated 10,000 Communist North Vietnamese troops are known to have been withdrawn from that southeast Asian nation.

The British Foreign Office released the report of the three-nation ICC which was directed to supervise the withdrawal of foreign forces from Laos as called for under terms of the Geneva settlement.

"We know that at the time of the Laos cease-fire there were about 10,000 Communist North Vietnamese troops in Laos," a Foreign Office spokesman said.

"A number of those chose to withdraw secretly and only 40 passed through the ICC checkpoints. It is not at all clear what has happened to the remainder and how many may have remained."

Under the Geneva accords guaranteeing Laos' status as a neutral kingdom the withdrawal of foreign forces was to take place through a number of checkpoints set up and controlled by the commission which includes representatives of India, Poland and Canada.

The commission's report to Britain and Russia as co-chairmen of the Geneva conference disclosed that only 27 soldiers and 13 officers of the Communist Vietminh (North Vietnamese) forces had withdrawn under ICC supervision.

Red Troops Are Reported Still In Laos

LONDON (UPI) — The International Control Commission for Laos said in a report released here Saturday that only 40 out of an estimated 10,000 Communist North Vietnamese troops are known to have been withdrawn from that southeast Asian nation.

The British Foreign Office released the report of the three-nation ICC which was directed to supervise the withdrawal of foreign forces from Laos as called for under terms of the Geneva settlement.

"We know that at the time of the Laos cease-fire there were about 10,000 (Communist) North Vietnamese troops in Laos," a Foreign Office spokesman said.

"A number of those chose to withdraw secretly and only 40 passed through the ICC checkpoints. It is not at all clear what has happened to the remainder and how many may have remained."

Under the Geneva accords guaranteeing Laos' status as a neutral kingdom the withdrawal of foreign forces was to take place through a number of checkpoints set up and controlled by the commission which includes representatives of India, Poland and Canada.

The commission's report to Britain and Russia as co-chairmen of the Geneva conference disclosed that only 27 soldiers and 13 officers of the Communist Vietminh (North Vietnamese) forces had withdrawn under ICC supervision.

State Baptist Brotherhood Meet Is Monday

The Louisiana Baptist Brotherhood will convene Monday at First Baptist church, Baton Rouge, Sam Dunbar, president, announced.

Highlighting the convention will be the scholarship testimony and offering at the night session and election of 1962-63 officers.

The offering will be taken to add six more scholarships to the three already in use, two at Louisiana College and one at Acadia Academy, Eunice, according to Grady Welch, state Brotherhood secretary.

A speech by Marine Capt. Paul Drake of Cherry Point, N.C., will be a feature of the afternoon session. Capt. Drake is a deacon in First church, Havelock, N.C., and an associational Brotherhood president.

Dr. John W. Drakefore, native of Sidney, Australia, will be the night session's featured speaker on the topic, "Perils of Communism Today."

A native of Sidney, Australia, Dr. Drakeford is professor of psychology and counseling at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Ft. Worth, Tex., and a regular speaker on Southern Baptist radio programs.

NEW UNIT JOINS NATO

DETMOLD, Germany (UPI) — West German Gen. Hans Speidel, commander of NATO ground forces, told the Seventh Panzer Grenadier Division to act as "guardians of peace in the spirit of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel," as the unit was placed under NATO command Saturday. Speidel was Rommel's chief of staff on D-Day.

WANT-AD WONDERS Trade Mark

Want Ad Brought Back Lost $1,000

A woman starred in one of life's little dramas. However an advertisement and a zipper also played important roles. The story situation was this: James McDaniel, Rt. 2, Tuscumbia, lost a thousand dollar bill Tuesday, Feb. 13.

Mrs. Lena Sandy had found a thousand dollar bill Tuesday as she was leaving the Southern Bell office. He identified the bill — where it was nicked by a zipper. Witnesses also attested that McDaniel had been at the telephone office the day the bill was lost. Mrs. Sandy received $50 as a reward and everyone was happy.

WANT-AD WONDERS Trade Mark

Want Ad Brought Back Lost $1,000

A woman starred in one of life's little dramas. However an advertisement and a zipper also played important roles. The story situation was this: James McDaniel, Rt. 2, Tuscumbia, lost a thousand dollar bill Tuesday, Feb. 13. Priday he ran a want ad in the Florence Times and the Tri-Cities Daily:

Mrs. Lena Sandy had found a thousand dollar bill Tuesday as she was leaving the Southern Bell office. He identified the bill — where it was nicked by a zipper. Witnesses also attested that McDaniel had been at the telephone office the day the bill was lost. Mrs. Sandy received $50 as a reward and everyone was happy.

Khrushchev Intends To Keep Strongest Possible Cuba Military Position

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — In spite of his withdrawal of nuclear missiles from Cuba, Soviet Premier Khrushchev evidently intends to maintain the strongest military position possible for Soviet Communist power in the Caribbean island.

U.S officials reporting this Saturday said it leads to several other conclusions about the importance to the United States and its allies of Russian behavior in the Cuban crisis:

1. Khrushchev is giving up in his Cuban position only what he felt absolutely compelled to yield in face of the danger of nuclear war. This suggests that the belief held by Western leaders that he does not want war and will go to considerable lengths to avoid it is correct.

This is an important consideration in the future development of Western policy on Berlin.

2. Because Khrushchev did only what he felt he had to do, the Russian nuclear retreat from Cuba does not provide any basis for hope that great new agreements on disarmament, nuclear testing, Berlin or other world problems may follow in the wake of the Cuban crisis. In this sense the crisis has the character of an incident in the cold war rather than a turning point in world history.

3. The Cuban threat under Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime is a base for Communist political assault on other American nations and is a center for exporting indirect aggression in the form of arms and agents and money to Central and South America will be restored to what it was before the missile storm blew up, if Khrushchev can get his way.

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer is due in Washington Tuesday night for two days of talks with President Kennedy and one of their major topics will be to try to estimate the impact of the Cuban showdown on Khrushchev's Berlin policies.

Adenauer, long an advocate of a tough line on Berlin, may urge Kennedy to harden his over-all Berlin policies against any kind of U.S. adjustments in the Berlin situation.

Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk, however, are understood to feel that this country and its allies must pursue flexible policies where possible and it seems certain that if Khrushchev is interested in further U.S.-Soviet exploratory talks on Berlin issues Kennedy will instruct Rusk to go ahead.

Passman Set For Aid Trip

Rep. Otto E. Passman will depart from Washington today on an around - the - world study of the complex multi - billion dollar foreign aid spending program carried on by the U. S.

The three - week tour will include consultations and inspections in key areas of Europe, the Middle and Far East.

The chairman of the House foreign operations appropriations subcommittee was recently discharged from a Monroe hospital where he underwent surgery, but is said to be recuperating satisfactorily.

Passman describes such missions as the one he is now undertaking as "necessary in order to check the vast claims for spending needs against actual facts on the spot."

Bride-To-Be Has To Prove She's Not Man

BRINDISI, Italy (AP) — Sunday was to have been Antonia Errica's wedding day—but she will have to wait until she can prove she is not a man.

She and her fiance, Nicola Napoletana, went to the City Hall Friday to get the license.

"Signorina," said the city clerk, "you cannot get married."

"Why?"

"Because according to our records you are not a signorina. You are a man."

At birth, her name had been erroneously recorded as Antonio. Now the records must be changed to Antonia. In Italy, that takes time.

Mikoyan Talks With Castro Are Recessed

HAVANA (UPI)—Talks between Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan and Prime Minister Fidel Castro on Russo-Cuban relations in the wake of the missile withdrawal have been temporarily recessed.

Soviet newsmen traveling with the Kremlin trouble-shooter said Saturday he has gone to the Veradero Beach resort and does not plan to return to Havana until Monday.

The talks were not expected to resume until Mikoyan returns to the Cuban capital.

Castro's whereabouts was unknown, but it was reported he was not in Veradero, and that he did not see Mikoyan Friday.

The two have held three lengthy exchanges. Mikoyan held a fourth meetint with President Osvaldo Dorticos and other top Cuban officials. Castro and Mikoyan have seen each other socially however, every day since Mikoyan arrived here Nov. 2, with the possible exception of Friday.

Cuba apparently refuses to budge in its opposition to international on-site inspection of the former missile bases as demanded by U. S. President Kennedy. This was believed one of the major issues in the talks, since Soviet Premier Khrushchev agreed in principle to such inspections in his communique to Kennedy.

Moderate Pace Set By Grains

CHICAGO (AP)—Activity in the grain futures market never reached more than a moderate pace last week and prices on the Board of Trade ended generally little changed.

Extreme temporary gains ran to three cents a bushel in soybeans, while corn posted the broadest losses at slightly more than two cents. Wheat, oats and rye finished in a mixed range.

Trade factors were few and minor. Transactions fell to a low 51.5 million bushels Thursday as the market drifted almost into a stalemate.

HOW FEUDS BEGIN

MIAMI (AP) — If Mrs. Rita Oglesby was mad when Cal Rosenbaum parked his car on her trash pile, it was nothing compared to Rosenbaum's rage when Mrs. Oglesby tossed her trash in his car.

So Rosenbaum had Mrs. Oglesby arrested for malicious mischief and hauled off to jail, where she was released to her attorney.

"That wasn't very neighborly," she said of Rosenbaum, who lives across the street.
